Byrd Blasts Roosevelt High Spending Policy

RIPS FALLACIES IN PRESIDENT'S STAND ON DEBTS

Figures Disclose Big Tax Peril.

IT WAS PLANNED THAT WAY.

A plan whereby the New Deal would socialize most of the productive plants of the nation was announced yesterday by A. A. Berle Jr., assistant secretary of state. The story is on page 1 of today's financial section.

Accompanying is an article by the financial editor of The Tribune exposing the fact that administration insiders knew eleven months ago that the Roosevelt spend-lend policy was doomed to failure and that even then the Berle socialization plan was the real goal of the New Deal policy makers.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 23.—[Special.]—Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] exposed today what he regards the fallacies of President Roosevelt's speech last night to the retailers' convention.

In his defense of deficit spending, the President, said Senator Byrd, adopted "hook, line and sinker the Eccles philosophy of spending and lending to purchase prosperity."

Marriner S. Eccles, federal reserve governor, is leading exponent of the theory that the more we spend in excess of income the sooner we shall attain a national income the taxes on which produce a revenue sufficient to balance the budget.

Mr. Roosevelt said that with a national income of $80,000,000,000 "income from present taxation will be sufficient to meet expenditures on the present level."

Wishful Thinking, Says Byrd.

"It does not take an economist to see that such a statement is more wishful thinking than prudent prophecy," Senator Byrd commented.

"Our spending level is now $9,500,000,000 and will soon exceed $10,000,000,000. Our revenue is $5,500,000,000. It is inconceivable then that from the present schedule of taxes an increase in the national income from $65,000,000,000 to $80,000,000,000, or 22 per cent, will nearly double the federal tax revenue.

"In 1929 our national income was $80,000,000,000, the first and only time in our history. The federal revenue was then $4,000,000,000, so it follows that to balance the budget now it would be necessary to increase two and one-half times the 1929 tax rates on an $80,000,000,000 income which we don't have.

33 Per Cent Tax Possible.

"It is obvious that, although the expectation of increase in the national income is realized, the present revenue from social security levies and taxation on cigarets, gasoline, liquor, inheritances, and corporations—among our main sources of revenue—will not double. If an increase of $15,000,000,000 in national income produces $5,000,000,000 more in revenue, then one-third of every new dollar of national income must be paid in new federal taxes alone, and to this must be added the local and state taxes.

"No one can guarantee or even prophesy the year when we will have a national income of $80,000,000,000. To continue deficits for an indefinite period or until such an income is reached is perilous and will add more billions to the present public debt. A chief barrier today to business expansion is fear of the inevitable day of settlement.

Debt a Perilous Doctrine.

"To minimize the evils of debt—to make debt popular—is a dangerous doctrine to preach. When the day of reckoning comes, as it inevitably must, the people of America will know to their sorrow that the payment of debt is vastly different from spending the proceeds of debt."

Senator Byrd accused the President of misrepresenting the public debt, particularly in stating that a large part of the debt is offset by debts owned the government.

"The published direct debt," said the senator, "includes only a small fraction of recoverable assets in the form of loans. Such operations to

BRITAIN SOUNDS OUT ROOSEVELT ON LONDON VISIT

King, Himself, May Extend Invitation.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 23.—British diplomacy is going seriously about the business of getting President Roosevelt over here next year to repay the visit to America of King George VI. of Great Britain. Under the scheme under consideration President Roosevelt would be the official guest of the British government.

A return visit by the American President is necessary to carry conviction with the continental powers, big and little, that an alliance—or what amounts to the same thing—exists between England and the United States, it is believed.

There is reason to believe that the royal visit to America, described by English correspondents in long dispatches as a triumphal progress, already is having the effect of boosting British prestige among continental peoples.

British Make Soundings.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain during the last week-end sounded out Joseph P. Kennedy, the American ambassador to London, on the possibility of a visit by President Roosevelt. At the same time Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador to the United States, canvassed the proper quarters in Washington, D. C., about whether President Roosevelt would accept an invitation to be the guest of royalty.

On the basis of these contacts King George may extend the invitation in a speech at the White House banquet on June 8. Mr. Roosevelt, it appears, would accept the invitation. To make it easier the invitation would be addressed to the President and not to Mr. Roosevelt personally, because of the effect that might have on the presidential election. If President Roosevelt comes to London he presumably would do so early next spring before the campaign gets under way.

C. I. O. CZAR INVITED

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 23.—[Special.]—John L. Lewis, beetle-browed commander in chief of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, will munch strawberries with Devonshire cream at the British embassy garden party, to be given June 8 for King Geoge VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain.

Lady Lindsay, wife of Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, today disclosed that she had invited labor's bad boy to the fête, along with his arch enemy, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Lewis will bow when the king and queen pass down the embassy lawn. He possibly will not meet the king, but if he does he will have to bow from a distance of six feet, bow again at three feet and bow as he backs away.

Feather in Lewis' Cap.

The embassy invitation is the crown jewel of Lewis' long campaign for social recognition. The labor leader, who feels at home in the soviet embassy, where he has attended a great many receptions and dinner parties, has not been recognized previously by the British embassy, whose invitations are more coveted than those of the White House.

Others invited to the garden party include Henry Ford, auto magnate; J. P. Morgan, banker; John D. Rockefeller, capitalist; Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the A. E. F.; Fiorella La Guardia, mayor of New York; Grover Whalen, president of the New York World's Fair; Charles A. Lindbergh, famous flyer, and Edward Stettinius, head of the United States Steel corporation.

Two Chicagoans on List.

Chicago will be represented by Charles G. Dawes, Vice President in the Coolidge administration, and by Mrs. Alma Kerr, who opened Britain's first schools for Mohammedan girls in Bagdad, shortly after the world war. No other Chicagoans'

DIONNE CHARGES LIBEL BY DR. DAFOE AT SAINT AND SINNERS INITIATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CALLANDER, Ont., May 23.—Because Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe wore a gown lettered "Doctor of Litters" and adorned with nursing bottles and teething rings and carried a medicine bag lettered "A. R. Dafoe, Mass Deliveries," at his initiation into the circus Saints and Sinners club in New York on April 12, Oliva Dionne sued for libel today. The amount of damages was not disclosed.

The suit was filed in the Ontario Supreme court only a day after Mr. and Mrs. Dionne, the famous quintuplets, and six others of the twelve Dionne children, had gone together with Dr. Dafoe to Toronto to meet the British king and queen.

According to legal custom in Canada, the suit was addressed to the very man who greeted and smiled on the Dionne family yesterday, King George. Dionne disclosed that the suit was ready on May 15, but he delayed filing it "in order not to embarrass the king and queen."

FOLLIES GIRL NO CHUMP; GIVES UP STAGE FOR CHIMP

Another former Follies girl was happy yesterday that she had given up a stage career for a home and a baby. She's Sally, the chimpanzee at the Chicago Zoological park in Brookfield. The stork brought her a fuzzy little five pound chimpanzee that has been named Susan.

Sally used to do a Russian dance in the Ziegfeld Follies. She pretends she can't remember how many years ago it was that she retired. For an hour after Susan arrived, Sally paraded the cage proudly with her baby in her arms, showing her to Director Edward H. Bean and to every one else who passed, and giving Susan big motherly hugs.

Queenie Presents Three New Lion Cubs to the Zoo

Lincoln park's zoo has three new lion cubs. They were born yesterday to Queenie, a former circus performer which produced a litter of four cubs last September. Father of the youngsters is Hack, who was brought to the zoo from his native Africa about twelve years ago. Floyd S. Young, director of the zoo, said the cubs would not be exhibited for several weeks.

Rich Woman's Will Reveals Fear of Slaying

New York, May 23.—[Special.]—Fears that she would be poisoned and that impostors would claim her vast wealth after her death were revealed today by the will of the eccentric Mrs. Isabel May McHie, estranged wife of a Hammond, Ind., publisher. Some of the unusual provisions of the will were:

That a $25,000 fund be set up to prosecute any one who might be responsible for her death.

That an autopsy be held over her body to determine whether her death was natural, and that her ashes be strewn over "the middle of the Atlantic ocean."

That, because she had "received letters from extortionists," she wanted "it distinctly understood that any person claiming to be my father is an imposter."

Most Left to Seeing Eye.

Mrs. McHie was about 72 years old. Her father would be 90 or more if he were alive.

Most of her vast estate—she had an income of at least $30,000 a year from one source—she left to the Seeing Eye, Inc., an organization that trains dogs to lead blind folk. Trustees are to be Alexander Woolcott, the writer, and Murray E. Baron. But to her mother, with whom she had frequent legal brushes, and who once had Mrs. McHie declared incompetent, she left $6,000 and an annuity of $1,800.

Strews Big Bills on Train.

In 1923 Mrs. McHie announced that she had left her entire fortune for the founding of an animal hospital, which should house a bust of her with the inscription, "The more I see of humans, the more I think of dogs." She later disclosed that the reason she had changed her bequest to an animal hospital instead of a children's hospital was because of the "screeching of the choir boys" in St. Thomas' Episcopal church across the street from her home on Fifth avenue.

In March of 1935 Mrs. McHie was taken off a train at Battle Creek, Mich., after she had strewn $1,000 and $10,000 bills along its aisles and had tried to stuff others in the car's ventilators. She was found to be carrying nearly $175,000 in cash and jewelry valued at between $150,000 and $500,000 in her handbag at the time. She had been estranged from Sidman McHie of Hammond for thirteen years. She died April 27.

CROWD IN SUBWAY TEACHES 2 BANDITS THE ART OF STEALING

New York, May 23.—(AP)—A subway crowd today made away with $600 of a pay roll of $989 stolen shortly before from a dress manufacturer. Police had seized two men, one of them on the 42d street platform of the City Independent subway, and charged them with snatching the pay roll. The loot, in bills of one, five, and ten dollar denominations, was dropped on a platform. Eager commuters pounced on it before the officer could interfere.

WPA FOREMAN ADMITS FAKING PAY ROLL ENTRY

Edward T. Ruff, a Works Progress administration foreman, was held to the federal grand jury yesterday in bonds of $5,000 after he pleaded guilty to filing false claims against the United Sates.

Ruff was charged with taking $15 a month from Thomas O'Rourke, 2825 North Mason avenue, a department store employé whom he placed on the WPA pay roll. Ruff, who lives at 1335 Touhy avenue, and O'Rourke, allegedly divided $203 which O'Rourke received while on the pay roll.

OLD PRATT PLODS ALONG FAMILIAR 'BEAT' LAST TIME

Seaford, Del., May 23.—(AP)—Old Pratt came back from the farm, plodded his familiar "beat" through city streets for one last time last night, then died. Several weeks ago Pratt, Seaford's municipal work horse, was retired to the farm after twenty years of service. But he broke away and yesterday was seen again along the route he covered each day, pulling the city's trash wagon. By night he was found exhausted in his old stable. Veterinarians were called but were too late. Pratt's work was done.

Lure of Slot Machine Bars Housewife from Jury Duty

Los Angeles, Cal., May 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Estelle Herrel, a housewife, was summoned for jury duty in the case of a druggist charged with operation and possession of a nickel-in-the-slot device that sometimes pays off with prizes. Asked if she could serve impartially, she replied: "Judge, I just love to play those machines myself." The court excused her and commended her on her candor.

Foresee Action by Grand Jury in Slattery Quiz

State's Attorney Courtney.

Grand jury action in the investigation of the stock transactions of Senator James M. Slattery and his daughter, Mrs. Ethel Johnson, while the senator was chairman of the Illinois Commerce commission, appeared likely yesterday. The prediction of early action was based on information that State's Attorney Courtney had caused subpenas to be issued for Mrs. Johnson and Charles [Chick] Evans, one time champion amateur golfer.

Assistant State's Attorney Richard B. Austin has been investigating financial transactions involving public officials, attorneys, and public utility corporations for several months. The issuance of the grand jury subpenas, one of which brought Evans to the prosecutor's office for two hours of questioning, was the first open and affirmative act by the prosecutor in his inquiry.

Mrs. Johnson Away.

Mrs. Johnson did not respond to her subpena. It was left at her home, 2045 Birchwood avenue, Monday night. At this address it was reported that she has been away since Senator Slattery publicly admitted in Washington two weeks ago that his daughter had purchased for cash 1,000 shares of Commonwealth Edison company stock while he was chairman of the commerce commission, which had power to regulate rates of the company. The stock at the time had a value of some $23,000.

Although Evans' subpena was of the regular grand jury form, it directed him to appear in Mr. Austin's office. He could have been taken before the jury and quizzed on the subpena if Mr. Courtney or his first assistant, Wilbert Crowley, had so directed. The jury under the law can of its own volition insist that Mr. Courtney submit to it the results of his investigation.

Although no comment was forthcoming from Austin regarding his talk with Evans, it was reported that he verified in detail the information already obtained from the records of Mitchell, Hutchins & Co., La Salle street investment firm, where Evans was employed at the time of the Slattery stock deal.

Active Trading Reported.

These records, it is reported, disclose active trading in the account during a four month period. Evans, who says he is a long time friend of the Slattery family, has stated the account was in Mrs. Johnson's name. It is reported, however, that he did not receive his trading orders from her.

Evans was given his summons while trying to qualify at the Medinah Country club for the national open golfing tournament. Prosecutor Crowley ordered photographers not to bother him, and when his questioning was over he was left alone in an office with a window leading to a fire escape. Evans took to the hint and the fire escape and thus evaded both photographers and reporters.

State's Attorney Courtney wants to ask Mrs. Johnson about the payment of approximately $25,000 to her at the time the account was closed out. It is reported that she insisted the money be paid in cash; that it was so paid, and that officials of the Continental Illinois National bank were reticent about making the payment.

Identifies His Daughter.

Senator Slattery was called to the bank to identify his daughter before the cash was turned over to her.

Senator Slattery has said that he knew of the stock deals made by his daughter. He has explained that he had given Mrs. Johnson in excess of $23,000 cash, which he took from his safety deposit box, so that she could invest it for income. Mrs. Johnson, he said, suggested she would like to buy the utility stock. He said he advised her the stock was a sound investment. He has maintained there was nothing wrong with the transaction. Mrs. Johnson sold the stock at a $2,000 profit and, it is said, put the cash back in the "family" safety deposit box, from which it was originally taken.

Squalus, Meaning Big Fish, Is Pronounced "Skway-lus"

New York, May 23.—(AP)—Although some seamen pronounce the name of the stricken submarine "Squall-us," Webster's New International dictionary says it should be "Skway-lus." Squalus, from the Latin, means "a large sea fish."

LATEST DEVICES SPED TO AID OF SUNKEN VESSEL

Fear Felt for Lives of Some of 59.

SUBMARINE PICTURES.

Turn to the back page for the first photograph of the scene of the sinking of the submarine Squalus and other pictures; also artists' drawings of interior of a submarine and use of bell method of rescue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Portsmouth, N. H., May 23.—[Special.]—Every facility at the command of the United States navy was thrown tonight into a mighty effort to rescue fifty-nine officers and men trapped in the partly flooded submarine Squalus on the floor of the ocean fifteen miles off this port. Diving operations are expected to begin early in the morning.

Although it was believed most of the imprisoned men were still alive, fears were expressed some might have died under the tons of water that poured into the craft this morning when it went into a deep sea dive with a large air intake valve open.

A high navy officer said a communication from the Squalus indicated that some members of the crew might have been trapped in the flooded after compartment. No sign of life could be raised from one compartment where some of the men had been working when the mishap occurred.

Oxygen for Several Days.

All those alive were given a good chance to see daylight again. They faced long hours of imprisonment as hurried rescue efforts met delays, but they had sufficient emergency oxygen supplies to enable them to exist in reasonable comfort in their present predicament for several days.

Naval craft on the surface were in communication with the trapped submarine tonight. The latest message said: "Conditions satisfactory but cold." It apparently referred to survivors and did not state how many, if any, were dead.

The message, tapped out in Morse code and received by a secret amplifying device, was the first word that had been heard from the Squalus since a telephone line had been broken ten hours before. The line was shot to the surface in a buoy sent from the submarine.

Commander Advises Delay.

In his last message just before the wire broke, Lieut. O. F. Naquin, commander of the craft, recommended that no attempt be made to bring the men to the surface until the arrival at the scene of the navy's submarine rescue ship, Falcon.

Nine ships were at or near the scene tonight and twenty-one diving experts were flown here from Washington. But a systematic effort to free the entombed crew apparently awaited the arrival of the ship on which Lieut. Naquin pinned his hopes.

The all important Falcon, carrying the navy's latest rescue equipment, was racing under forced draft from its New London, Conn., base. It was scheduled to arrive on the scene at dawn. Officers said several hours might elapse after that before a concerted effort could be made.

Rests on 240 Foot Bottom.

The Squalus, a $4,000,000 craft and newest of the nation's submarines, rested upright and on an even keel in soft mud 240 feet below the surface of the ocean. It's location was about five miles southeast of the Isle of Shoals, which is off Hampton Beach, N. H.

The craft submerged at 8:40 o'clock this morning in routine training operations, as it has been doing for several weeks. An intake valve on a thirty inch air pipe which carries air from the bridge to the engine rooms was open at the time, either through accident or defective mechanical operation. As the vessel submerged a flood of water poured through this pipe into the engine rooms and other aft compartments.

The Squalus lay on the ocean floor for several hours before its plight was discovered. About three hours after the mishap, a red smoke bomb—a signal that a submarine is in distress—was sighted on the surface by the stricken craft's sister ship, Sculpin, which had been sent to look for her. The bomb had been sent to the surface by the Squalus.

Searching the area, the Sculpin sighted a marker buoy, an emergency device containing a telephone which had been released by the Squalus. This communication line was maintained only a short time, however, because the Sculpin rolled and broke the wire.

Great advances have been made in recent years in methods of rescuing submarine crews and high hopes are held of saving the men on the Squalus despite the fact that no crew ever has been rescued from a depth of 240 feet. At that depth the pressure is 120 pounds to the square inch compared to air pressure of only 15 pounds to the square inch on the surface of the sea.

Three Methods of Rescue.

Three means of rescuing the imprisoned men were available. One is by equipping each man with a "lung" device and sending them singly through a port hole. The second is a diving bell by which six or eight men could be brought to the surface at a time. The third is by forcing the water from the flooded compartments by pumping air through a tube from the surface, thus raising the craft.

The device for bringing men up singly is known as the Momsen "lung." It is a breathing apparatus which clamps onto the nostrils and has a mouthpiece which is pressed against the gums and is held in position by the teeth.

Air is breathed from a small chamber previously charged with oxygen, its user breathing and rebreathing the same air which is somewhat purified by a chemical agent. The ascent is made gradually along a line attached to the sunken ship.

Diving Bell Described.

The diving bell, which is a large metal chamber capable of carrying eight men, is lowered from a rescue vessel to a hatch of the submarine. The device carries its own operating engine and the motor is geared to a reel which permits the operator to regulate its downward or upward speed.

The bell is composed of two compartments. The upper one carries the operator and those being rescued. The lower is connected to the upper by a hatch through which the men in the submarine are removed.

Around the edge of the bell's bottom is a rubber jacket which fits over the submarine's hatch. After the jacket is in place both the submarine's hatch and that of the diving bell's lower compartment are opened and the men climb into the bell.

Must Overcome Pressure.

The third method available is to attach a tube from a surface ship to the submarine and, with air pressure that exceeds the water pressure, virtually blow the water out of the flooded compartments. Because it is necessary to overcome the terrific pressure of 120 pounds to the square inch, some doubt has been expressed as to the success of this method.

It was believed that about half of the Squalus' compartments were flooded. Lieut. Naquin reported that water was in the crew compartment, the engine rooms, and the aft torpedo room.

Admiral C. W. Cole, commandant of the Portsmouth navy yard, who was directing rescue operations from aboard the U. S. S. Sculpin, said the $4,000,000 sunken ship could be blown out and raised after the crew is rescued.

"The navy's primary consideration is the safety of those trapped below," he said. "We will take everyone out whether we lose the submarine or not."

Fear for Safety of Some.

The belief that some of the crew might already be dead sprang from Lieut. Naquin's assertion in his early phone communication that he had tried without success to communicate with the stern compartments. Navy officers on the surface reason that he would not have made this move if all of the fifty-nine aboard were safe in the forward compartments.

It was also suggested that some of the men might have been trapped in compartments separated by flooded units from those compartments in which most of the men apparently had taken haven.

As the imprisoned men breathed their steadily diminished oxygen supply, worried naval officers on the surface were not even sure that they had lights with which to cheer their ordeal.

The officers said, however, there was enough food and drinking water aboard the Squalus to last the men for from three days to a week. Each compartment on the submarine is equipped with emergency air, water, and food equipment.

Sit Quietly and Wait.

Theorizing on what might be happening aboard, those on the surface said the "navy way" would be for the entombed officers and men to lie perfectly still so as to husband the precious store of oxygen.

It is possible, they said, that the men have free movement of half the craft, although it was the general impression that officers would give orders for each man to pick a spot and stay there.

Besides full regular rations aboard the Squalus is equipped with emergency supplies of canned beef, canned beans, and soda crackers stored in numerous air tight compartments throughout the submarine. Extra bedding always is distributed in various compartments.

But with all these comforts, observers said cold was the chief worry of the imprisoned men. This sea area is far from the warm gulf stream. The last message—"Conditions satisfactory but cold"—indicated that the temperature already is a disturbing factor.

Other Officers Listed.

The navy department at Washington said that in addition to Lieut. Naquin, the commander, whose home is in Alexandria, La., other officers aboard the submarine were:

Lieut. William T. Doyle Jr., executive officer, Baltimore, Md., married, and has a stepdaughter, 9 years old, and a son, 3 years old.

Lieut. [J. G.] Robert N. Robertson, engineering officer, Quanah, Tex., single.

Lieut. [J. G.] John C. Nichols, gunnery and torpedo officer, 6705 Stewart avenue, Chicago, married, and has a daughter a year old.

Ensign Joseph H. Patterson, Oklahoma City, Okla., married, no children.

In addition to the five regular officers there were fifty-one crew members and three civilians aboard. The civilians, two employés of the navy department and a contractor's representative, had made the cruise in connection with the training test.

Navy's Newest Submarine.

The Squalus, commissioned March 1, is the navy's newest and finest submarine. The black hulled craft is 290 feet long and is rated at 1,450 tons. It was authorized under the naval appropriation act of 1937, constructed at the Portsmouth navy yard, and launched Sept. 14, 1938.

The submarine represents the type of medium displacement undersea craft now regarded most useful by naval authorities. She and her sister ships, the Sculpin, Seal, Saury, Sargo, Spearfish, and other submarines—all names for fish—are of the "S" class, considered the most modern and successful.

The Squalus mounted a three inch gun which could be used against aircraft as well as surface vessels, and had a number of torpedo tubes. The exact number of tubes is a military secret, as are numerous other details of equipment.

LANDIS TO HEAR CHARGES AGAINST HARRY BRIDGES

Washington, D. C., May 23.—[Special.]—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins today announced that James M. Landis, dean of the Harvard law school and former chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission, has been designated trial examiner to hear deportation charges against Harry Bridges, radical Australian leader of the C. I. O. maritime union on the Pacific coast. The hearing will open June 26 at San Francisco.

She announced her intention of reopening the proceedings after the recent Supreme court decision in the Strecker case, in which the court ruled that previous membership in the communist party is not a ground for expulsion of aliens.

The proceedings against Bridges will be based upon the charge that he is now a member of the communist party and as such advocates the overthrow of the government through force or violence.

DESCRIBE STEPS IN MANEUVERING OF A SUBMARINE

Ballast Is a Big Factor in Diving and Rising.

A step by step report of the procedure in submerging a modern submarine and bringing it back to the surface was given yesterday by a naval officer stationed in Chicago who has seen considerable service on undersea vessels.

Before tracing the procedure the officer explained the power system of the submarine. At the surface submarines are propelled by Diesel engines. Under water the boat is propelled by motors operated by storage batteries. These batteries are charged by the Diesel motors while the vessel is on the surface.

Under the water the Diesels cannot be used because they consume large quantities of air, which is at a premium when a submarine is beneath the surface.

Outside Openings Closed.

Prior to submerging the ship is "trimmed over all." This means that its buoyancy is adjusted to neutral. In other words, its weight will be equal to that of the water it displaces. While this is being done, by taking water into the ballast tanks, all outside openings are closed. The last thing to be closed is the conning tower hatch. The Diesel engines are stopped and the shift is made to the electric motors.

Then diving planes [sometimes called hydroplanes] at the bow and stern are adjusted for submerging, that is, they are tilted at an angle that draws the vessel downward. At the same time more water ballast is taken into ballast tanks to give the boat weight. The vessel then submerges due to the action of the diving planes and the ballast.

Ballast Water Taken In.

Modern submarines weigh around 1,500 tons at the surface. For deep submerging they require as much as 600 tons of water as ballast. The ballast tanks run lengthwise along the vessel. They lie one above the other and form an outer jacket around the interior of the boat. The water, of course, is valved into these tanks from the outside. Gauges tell the amount of water taken in and there are indicators which reveal the depth that will be achieved for any amount of water.

To bring a submarine to the top again it is necessary to expel these tremendous quantities of water from the ballast tanks. This is done by forcing air pressure into the ballast tanks, expelling the water, and causing the craft to rise. The diving planes may be tilted to accelerate the return to the surface.

In the big new submarines only sufficient air [from compressed air tanks] is blown into the ballast tanks to raise the conning tower to the surface. Then the hatch is opened and fresh air is drawn in by pumps which complete the blowing.

DOCTOR ORDERS FOOD; SEES IT AND SHOOTS TWO

Peoria, Ill., May 23.—[Special.]—Enraged over what he said was a small quantity of food served him in a downtown cafeteria, Dr. William Patterson, 50 years old, optometrist, fired five shots. He wounded two persons and threw several patrons into a panic.

Sam Weinstein, proprietor, was shot through the right wrist and Z. A. Eaton, 23, a Bradley student employed as bus boy, was shot through the mouth. The bullet knocked out several teeth and lodged in Eaton's neck. The doctor walked from the cafeteria and was arrested later by police. He was carrying two revolvers and two knives.

Parolee Sent to Bridewell for Stealing Silverware

Frank Mason, 26 years old, a paroled convict, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan of the Felony court to one year in the Bridewell for stealing a case of silver from a loop department store. He was sentenced to Joliet penitentiary in October, 1934, for grand larceny and was paroled in June, 1938.

CHICAGO PARENTS HOLD HOPES HIGH FOR SON ON SUB

Speak Proudly of His Rise in the Navy.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Nichols talked and thought of no one but their son, Lieut. John C. Nichols, last night in their home at 6705 Stewart avenue. Lieut. Nichols was one of 59 men aboard the submarine Squalus, down off the New Hampshire coast.

Both father and mother kept their hopes high while awaiting news reports. They spoke proudly of their son's record and rise in the navy.

Interested in Submarines.

"John was always interested in submarines," said the elder Nichols. "He said it was the best branch of the service; the most interesting, and with the best opportunities."

Lieut. Nichols will be 29 years old next month. He was graduated from the United States Naval academy at Annapolis in 1934 and was assigned to the U. S. S. Maryland, where he remained two years.

Married in Honolulu.

Then he spent six months in submarine school at New London, Conn., and was assigned to the S-26. While in Honolulu on the S-26 he was married. His wife, Eloise, and their daughter, Louise, 1 year old, are in Portsmouth, N. H.

Lieut. Nichols returned with the S-26 to Philadelphia last December, his father said, and in January went to Portsmouth.

Lieut. Nichols has a brother, Frederick, in the New York office of the Chicago Tribune advertising department.

Hodes Settles Doggy Point About Diplomatic Immunity

Mrs. George Stavros, a clerk in the office of D. C. Benetatos, Greek consul in Chicago, will have to pay for her dog's city license. Mr. Benetatos requested a free license for the dog and City Clerk Ludwig D. Schreiber asked Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes about it. Hodes ruled yesterday that free licenses may be issued only to pets of foreign consuls and other authorized representatives of foreign governments and not to their employés.

DIES OF BULLET WOUND.

Gerald W. Davis, 19 years old, operator of a filling station in Big Rock, Kane county, died yesterday in the Copley hospital, Aurora, of a bullet wound accidentally inflicted when he was cleaning a target rifle.

WITNESS TELLS OF $39,850 PAID AID OF JUDGE MANTON

New York, May 23.—(AP)—The government submitted testimony today designed to show that $39,850 had been paid to an intermediary of former United States Circuit Judge Martin T. Manton by Alfred F. Reilly, a Massachusetts industrialist, for judicial favors in patent litigation.

Testifying in Manton's trial on charges of entering a conspiracy to sell his judicial integrity, Reilly, president of the Evans Case company of North Attleboro, Mass., said he had made a series of payments to William J. Fallon, who, the prosecution claims, solicited bribes for Manton as a go-between, after Fallon had boasted that he was a great friend of Manton.

Fallon has pleaded guilty to conspiring with Manton and probably will testify for the government. Reilly, insisting that he had not regarded the payments to Fallon as bribes, but rather that he had made them because he was afraid to incur his ill will, said he never had dealt with Manton himself.

The case in question, a suit for patent infringement brought by a metal works company, ultimately was decided in Reilly's favor with Manton's vote.

TWO UNABLE TO HELP; WOMAN DIES.

Rochelle, Ill., May 23.—[Special.]—Mrs. Genevieve Brogie Babb, 37 years old, formerly of Rockford, died today after drinking poison at her home yesterday. Her husband is bedridden and her father, William Martin, blind and deaf, was unable to help her after she took poison. A roomer found her an hour later. A son and a daughter survive.

Four Men Killed in Crash of British Bombing Plane

LONDON, May 23.—(AP)—Four members of the crew of a royal air force bomber were killed and a fifth was injured when the plane crashed today near Newark, England.

"For thirty years constipation caused me headaches and pains in the back. Awful gas bloating crowded my heart. Adlerika helped right away. Now I eat sausage, bananas, pie, anything I want and never felt better."—Mrs. Mabel Schott. Two things happen when you are constipated. FIRST: Accumulated wastes swell up bowels and press on nerves in the digestive tract. SECOND: Partly digested food starts to decay forming GAS, bringing on sour stomach, indigestion, and heartburn, bloating you up until you sometimes gasp for breath. Adlerika gives double relief with DOUBLE ACTION. Adlerika relieves STOMACH GAS almost at once. It often clears bowels in less than two hours. No griping, no after effects, just quick results. # KING SPEEDS ON TO WHEAT LANDS, CANADIAN PLAINS

Told His Mother's Injury Is Not Serious.

ABOARD ROYAL TRAIN EN ROUTE TO WINNIPEG, May 23.—(AP)—King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain tonight sped westward toward the prairies and wheat lands of Canada, due to arrive at Winnipeg at 11:30 a. m. [Chicago time].

They were reassured by word from Buckingham palace that Queen Mother Mary, who had been in a car accident in London, was "unhurt and quite well."

For a while there had been great anxiety among the royal party and undoubtedly the tour of Canada and the United States would have been ended if anything serious had happened to Queen Mary. Now it is expected the schedule of the tour will continue unaltered.

Leave Populous East.

Today the train left behind the great cities and mass demonstrations of eastern Canada and sped along the sparsely settled shores of Georgian Bay and Lake Superior. Hitherto the train had stood at night on sidings, but last night the royal party slept for the first time on the train in motion.

White River, in the wilderness of northern Ontario, tried to live up to its reputation of being one of the coldest in Canada by having a light fall of snow blanketing the ground when the train arrived. The king and queen got off and talked to many persons on the platform, including Indians who had come eighty miles by canoe to see them. The queen was given a miniature canoe full of wild flowers and congratulated the Indian craftsman who had made the canoe.

At the Jackfish coaling station the king was informed of the accident which befell his mother. Twenty miles farther on, in Schreiber, he had further news from London and told one of his welcomers, "I am glad to be able to say that the injury was quite slight and nothing at all to be worried about."

Wind Spoils Decorations.

At Schreiber a forty-five mile wind and storm last night had blown down many of the decorations and the temperature was 2 degrees above freezing, but the populace was out en masse, joined by Indians, prospectors, and trappers from the hinterland.

Two hundred carloads of people from the Duluth region drove to Fort Arthur and Fort William to see the king and queen on their drive around the great grain shipping center. There were six bands from the United States. The king and queen saw the great elevators of concrete and steel which store wheat for shipment on the Great Lakes.

All day the train was rolling through rugged country, around hairpin bends between vistas of green forests and the blue waters of Lake Superior with the blue sky above. For miles the king and queen saw no houses or other signs of habitation. At one point where no roads or houses were visible a man and woman stood beside the tracks waving at the king and queen.

QUEEN MARY HURT IN MOTOR CRASH; ORDERED TO REST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 23.—Queen Mother Mary was suffering from bruises and shock tonight after an accident in which her automobile was overturned in a collision with a two ton truck in Putney, a west London suburb.

The queen, widow of King George V. of Great Britain and mother of King George VI. and the duke of Windsor, former King Edward VIII., was taken to her residence, Marlborough house, where a bulletin was issued saying her condition was satisfactory but that she would need several days' complete rest.

Queen Mary, who will be 72 years old on Friday, May 26, was returning from the royal horticultural society's gardens at Wisley, Surrey, to Marlborough house when her car was struck at an intersection. She was accompanied by Lady Constance Milnes-Gaskell, lady in waiting, and Lord Claude Hamilton, controler and treasurer in the queen's household. She suffered minor injuries.

names were made public by Lady Lindsay. However, she did not reveal the entire guest list. In each case she mentioned wives as also being invited.

John W. Davis, lawyer and unsuccessful Democratic candidate for the presidency in 1920, will attend. Norman Davis, ambassador at large; James W. Gerard, war time ambassador to Germany, and Alanson B. Houghton, former ambassador to the Court of St. James, are on the guest list.

Lady Lindsay explained that all former ambassadors to Great Britain and widows of former ambasadors have been invited. Invitations also went to widows of Presidents.

Invitations were mailed to former President and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, but the Hoovers declined with regrets, Lady Lindsay reported. She was not certain, but believed that an invitation was sent to Alfred M. Landon, unsuccessful candidate at the last presidential election.

All members of the President's family here for the royal visit were invited. These include Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother; his four sons, James, Elliott, Franklin Jr., and John and their wives.

Vincent Astor, on whose yacht Nourmahal the President took fishing trips in Florida waters, will be among the guests. James Edward Freeman, Episcopal bishop of Washington, received one of the coveted pasteboards.

PREDICT BRITAIN WILL PLEDGE AID TO RUSSIA IN WAR

LONDON, May 23.—(AP)—British-Russian negotiations were believed near a showdown tonight with informed Paris and Geneva sources reporting that an agreement in principle already had been reached for a soviet-British-French mutual air accord. The British cabinet will meet tomorrow to decide whether to accept Russia's terms for joining the British-French front.

The Geneva and Paris reports said Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax of Great Britain had agreed in principle to those conditions. Informed London observers believed the British government was ready to meet the soviet desires.

Reports from Geneva said Halifax was convinced by talks with Ivan Maisky, soviet ambassador, that the only way to bring Russia into the British-French bloc was by promising aid in event the soviet union is attacked. Halifax will return to London by plane for the cabinet meeting.

VIENNA, May 23.—St. Rupprecht Missionary school at Kreuzburg, near Salzburg, is reported to have been confiscated by the Nazis, who will use it for their own educational purposes. Among the reasons cited for the measure were unhygienic living conditions and that the school was a center of anti-German agitation.

BAPTIST LEADERS ACT TO PRESERVE CHURCH FREEDOM

Redefine Their Stand on Religion and State.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Presidents of a score of national Baptist conventions, representing 11 million members throughout the country, agreed yesterday on a program for 1940 which will relate evangelism with individual freedom and the separation of church and state.

The results of yesterday's meeting, called by The Baptist Minister, a national publication, will be incorporated into the program of the Baptist World alliance when that body meets on July 22 in Atlanta, Ga.

The Rev. Mike Elliott, editor of the journal, explained that trends against Baptist ideals of freedom have been so marked that Baptist leaders of all groups have been drawn together for self-defense.

Four Viewpoints Defined.

The group set forth four views of the relations of church and state in a formal statement. The first is that the church is above the state. The second is that the church parallels the state, as in countries like England, where a state church is maintained. A third view, held by dictator governments, puts state above church. The Baptist, or fourth view, calls for complete separation of church and state.

"The separation of church and state is championed by Baptists everywhere," the statement declares.

The statement then asserts that the government in Washington is tending toward paternalism.

Paternalistic Trend Traced.

"The greatest charity agency on earth is the federal government," the statement explains. "As a nation we are becoming paternalistic. Efforts are now being made to place in the hands of government the pensioning of those who are employed by the churches and to grant to sectarian schools financial aid from tax raised funds, and to support from public funds institutions that are established and managed by sectarian bodies."

The conferees appointed a committee of six to develop procedures for the 1940 drive. The members are the Rev. Drs. Roland Q. Leavell, Atlanta, Ga.; Walter E. Woodbury, New York, and Peder Stiansen, L. K. Williams, Edward Catlos, and Mike Elliott of Chicago.

David Velen in bed at his home.

His foot was all done up in plaster paris and bandages, but David Velen, propped up against his pillows yesterday, was not unhappy. David, 13 years old and an eighth grader, was on patrol boy duty Monday noon at the Lawson school. Suddenly a runaway horse, a milk wagon swaying behind him, came down Spaulding avenue, two blocks from the school at 13th street. The smaller youngsters were all out playing.

Out into the street David ran and grasped the reins of the plunging horse. The animal halted for a moment. Then it bolted again, crushing the foot of the courageous lad.

David was taken to Mount Sinai hospital. Later his father, Hyman Velen, who is a painter and decorator, came and took David back home to 1239 South Spaulding avenue. A steady stream of visitors has been pouring in to congratulate David.

COMMONS O. K.'S BRITISH PLAN TO FREE PALESTINE

Called Victory for Hitler and Duce.

LONDON, May 23.—(AP)—The British government tonight won approval in both houses of parliament for its new Palestine plan despite opposition taunts that the policy was another victory for Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini of Italy and would poison relations with the United States.

As an amendment to the motion for approval was withdrawn in the house of lords, the house of commons defeated a similar amendment, 281 to 181, and voted approval of the plan, 268 to 179.

The government's white paper, announcing the plan to create an independent Palestine state which Jews claim will leave them a permanent minority among the Arabs, next will be placed before the permanent mandates committee of the league of nations.

Lays Violence to Dictators.

Herbert Morrison, Laborite, criticized the plan in today's debate.

"The agents of Hitler and Mussolini seem to have the habit of lodging bombs in suitcases in various places," he said. "It has happened in Jerusalem and I gather it is happening in London. A large part of the disturbances in Palestine can be traced to Germany and Italy."

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal, referring to American public opinion, declared the hostility of the Irish people for generations had poisoned British relations with the people of the United States, and added:

"That hostility now is happily allayed, but if we accept these proposals we shall substitute the hostility of 5,000,000 Jews and their Protestant sympathizers in the United States."

Warns of Dishonor.

David Lloyd George, world war prime minister, blamed mischievous activities fostered by Italians and Germans in recent years among a small section of Arabs for driving Britain into what he called an act of national perfidy which will bring dishonor to the British name.

HITLER AND WAR AIDS CONFER ON PACT WITH ITALY

Discuss Co-operation of Armed Forces.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 23.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler summoned his military chiefs to Berlin for a conference, which took place in his chancellery tonight. Nazis explained that the Fuehrer informed his military aids of the scope of Germany's new alliance with Italy to enable them to perfect the coöperation between the two countries.

British-German naval rivalry, one of the main factors that led up to the world war, once more is certain to become a reality. It is understood that Hitler has given orders to build a battleship fleet closely rivaling that which Britain now is building.

Preparations have been completed to lay down six battleships, each displacing 42,000 tons. The vessels will mount 16 inch guns as their main armament. The gun turrets will be protected by 406 millimeter armor plate [approximately 16 inches].

3 Aircraft Carriers Planned.

These six battleships will be built in addition to the Bismarck, the Admiral von Tirpitz and the third battleship now under construction. The latter three vessels each displace 35,000 tons and mount eight fourteen-inch guns as main armament.

The German naval program, which was altered after Hitler denounced the British-German naval treaty in his reply to President Roosevelt's peace message before the reichstag on April 28, is said to provide for the building of three additional aircraft carriers.

[Under the British-German naval pact Germany was restricted to 35 per cent of Britain's naval tonnage.]

An increase in the submarine fleet is under consideration. To date the German navy has seventy-one U-boats either in commission or under construction.

It is understood that the admiralty also is planning the construction of a new type of heavy cruiser. It is assumed this vessel will displace 16,000 tons.

Seek Substitute League.

In the economic and political war raging between England and Germany on the continent, the Nazis are trying to create a substitute for the league of nations in which the dictatorial powers would be the directing factors.

Friends of the Nazis in Rumania and Jugo-Slavia are trying to induce the foreign ministers of those countries to cancel the Balkan pact and form a new southeastern bloc, excluding Turkey, which has a mutual assistance pact with Britain.

"This bloc could be used as the beginning of a new league," Nazis said.

HITS DEMOCRATIC JUDICIAL SLATE AS DICTATORIAL

C. Wayland Brooks, Republican nominee for governor in 1936, said in a radio speech last night that the formation of the Democratic ticket for the judicial election by the inclusion of ten Republicans along with sixteen Democrats resembled the Roosevelt Supreme court expansion plan.

"Just as the federal government sought to pack the Supreme court," he said, "so the local administration has sought to dictate to the people of Cook county who shall sit on the bench as judges of their fellow men."

Brooks said that in this election the Republican party once more is the last line of defense against dictatorship.

AMNESIA VICTIM IDENTIFIED.

Hitler Sets New Fashion in Uniforms: White Jacket

BERLIN, May 23.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler took the occasion of the signing of the German-Italian military alliance to start a new fashion in uniforms.

At a dinner given last night by Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop for Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italy's foreign minister, Hitler appeared in a snappy white uniform dinner jacket.

Over the jacket and pinching it in at the waist gleamed the silver belt of the commander of Germany's armed forces.

HOMEMAKERS OF TOMORROW

By CALEB

CLUSTERED around one of our drinking fountains, I found a group of some twenty girls, of twelve to fourteen years—expectant, clear-eyed—with one of our tour guides in charge. The latter lady seemed to be having as interesting a time as anyone present.

"Yes," she acknowledged my query, "we're 'taking in' the store. These earnest young ladies are from the seventh grade in a Cicero elementary school, and they're working on a 'project.' They have to plan a home—so many girls plan the dining room; so many more, the living room; another number, the bedrooms; still others, the kitchen. Then the class as a whole assembles the information from these units into a Modern Home Notebook, filled with their data on color schemes, period furnishings, draperies, accessories and utensils—embodying their collective ideas in drawings, models, pictures and photographs.

"And maybe you think," she beamed, "these youngsters aren't enthusiastic—full of questions! I have taken groups of four each five times through each of our exhibit homes, in order to cover the subject thoroughly and understandably. Now we're en route to the household utilities section—and will their eyes widen there!" . . .

In our Trend Home, one of the older watchers of these small guests expressed the significance of this daily-enacted episode in terms that compel any adult's thoughtfulness. "What a change," she exclaimed, "from my own girlhood! These children are learning things, at their most formative age, that I didn't have clearly in mind until I had been married some fifteen years! Color harmonies—the right types and kinds of materials; the right sort of furnishings, lighting schemes, table settings, floor coverings—think what a practical educational advantage this brings to their own thinking and planning as they grow toward homes of their own!" . . .

Student tour-groups are a continuous feature of the store's activities. High school and university inspection parties, made up of young men and women who intend to become stylists, buyers, designers, or salespeople, find our various sections a ready-made clinic for observation and study. And we extend them every co-operation possible, in the way of talks by experts in such matters, supplementary to the work of the store guides themselves.

That this non-merchandising, informative service to the young citizens and homemakers of tomorrow is a source of pride and satisfaction, goes without saying. It is a phase of our operations whose good influence reaches as far as that of our finest merchandise.

[This is the sixteenth of a series of stories on candidates in the judicial election of June 5. Today's sketch discusses three Republicans.]

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

Arthur J. Murphy has an impressive war record and is active in civic and war veteran organizations. He is 42 years old, was born in Chicago, and was graduated from De Paul university and the University of Chicago law school. He obtained his law degree in 1921 and entered practice the next year.

Arthur J. Murphy.

The bar association committee on candidates described him as a careful, industrious, and capable lawyer, and added: "He possesses the temperament, character, ability, and capacity essential to holding judicial office. He bears an excellent reputation for integrity and fair and courteous dealing. He is well qualified for office."

Receives 690 of 2,083 Votes.

In the lawyers' balloting on candidates he received 690 out of a possible 2,083 votes.

Mr. Murphy enlisted in the world war three days after the entrance of the United States and was overseas twenty months. His enlistment was in the 1st Illinois field artillery and later he was in the marine corps. He was wounded and gassed at Chateau Thierry in June, 1918, and in the battle of the Champagne in October, 1918. He lost the sight of one eye in the latter engagement.

ARNOLD BAAR IN RACE

Arnold Baar is president of the City club and also heads the Citizens' Schools committee. His law practice has been largely that of a specialist in the field of federal income taxation.

Arnold Baar.

He is one of the six Republican candidates indorsed in the bar association vote, receiving 1,079 votes in 2,083 ballots cast. The bar committee on candidates said of him: "He is a courageous, public spirited citizen, judicious, and effective in leadership. He possesses legal ability of a high order, unquestioned integrity, and capacity for judicial office. He is well qualified."

Mr. Baar was born in Jersey City, N. J., forty-eight years ago and moved to Chicago with his family when he was 5 years old. He took his law degree from the University of Chicago in 1914 and entered practice that year. Organization and civic work is his hobby, for he believes that clean local government is the core of liberty.

In addition to his City club and schools committee duties, he is a member of the education committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce. In 1934 he was a candidate in the Republican primaries for a post on the county board of tax appeals.

JOSEPH Z. WILLNER

Joseph Z. Willner, whose name heads the list of Republican candidates for the Circuit court, has lectured frequently on legal subjects, and was a speaker for the G. O. P. national committee in the Hoover and Landon presidential campaigns. He has an extensive law practice and a large library. The library, he says, is his compensation for lack of a formal university education.

Joseph Z. Willner.

Mr. Willner is 42 years old. He was born in New York City and after being graduated from a Chicago grammar school won a scholarship to the Joseph Medill High school. The scholarship, together with his earnings as a newsboy, enabled him to continue his education and help support his family.

He obtained his degree at the John Marshall Law school and entered practice in 1917.

The bar committee on candidates said of him: "He has had a broad professional experience and is a lawyer of ability, but we doubt whether he possesses the requisite qualifications for judicial office."

In the bar election he received 217 votes on 2,083 ballots.

Secret Mate's Meetings with Other Woman Told.

Two private detectives, hired by the father of a secret bride to trail her husband to nocturnal meetings with another woman, told details of their three months' assignment yesterday before Judge Ralph J. Dady in Waukegan.

The detectives' testimony was instrumental in obtaining a divorce for Mrs. Marion McMahon from her husband, James H. McMahon Jr., a salesman, on the ground of adultery. McMahon did not contest the suit. Mrs. McMahon was granted permission to resume use of her maiden name.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis N. Bard of Highland Park. Mr. Bard is president of the Barco Manufacturing company, maker of railway supplies.

Suit Discloses Marriage.

The secret marriage of Miss Bard and McMahon did not become known to their friends until it was disclosed April 8 by the filing of the divorce suit. They were married in Jeffersonville, Ind., on Nov. 4, 1938, and lived together until last Jan. 27.

Miss Bard was represented by Attorney Kenneth B. Hawkins of Chicago and by Attorney Clarence Diver of Waukegan. She testified that she left her husband when she learned of his misconduct with another woman and had not seen him since.

Earl J. Browne, 4423 North Hamlin avenue, one of the private detectives, testified that he had been hired by Mr. Bard in January to follow his son-in-law. Browne said he saw McMahon and a girl enter McMahon's apartment at 1217 Albion avenue on two mornings last February.

Visit to Room Told.

McMahon moved to 1244 North Dearborn street in March, Browne said, and on March 25 the young woman visited him in his room, No 420. Browne and his partner, William H. Clark, had room 424.

"At 3 a. m. on March 30," said Browne, "we placed a match in the door in such a way that it would fall to the floor if the door were opened. McMahon and the girl were in the room at the time. The match still was in place at 7 a. m."

Browne and Clark told of a raid on McMahon's room at 12:40 a. m. on April 11. He said they found McMahon with the young woman.

200 MEET TODAY AT LUNCHEON FOR JUDGESHIP SLATE

Two hundred prominent Chicagoans will meet today in the Palmer House at a luncheon-reception to the Superior and Circuit court judges who are on the coalition ticket in the June 5 election. The group comprises the citizens' nonpartisan campaign committee and is headed by Henry F. Tenney of Winnetka, member of the law firm of Tenney, Harding, Sherman & Rogers. One Democratic and one Republican judge will be among the speakers, Judge Hugo Friend said last night.

GOODSPEED SEEN AS LIKELY CHOICE FOR HARDING JOB

G. O. P. Treasurer Urged for Harmony.

BY PARKE BROWN.

C. B. Goodspeed, treasurer of the Republican national committee, it appeared yesterday, may be chosen as the Illinois member of that body to succeed the late George F. Harding.

While the movement is not exactly one to draft him, definite action has been started to determine whether a solid majority of the state central committee can be lined up for him before its next meeting at Springfield on June 10. It has been made clear that this is the only basis on which Goodspeed will permit his name to be presented.

Refused to Run at First.

Immediately after Harding's death, Republican leaders generally agreed that Goodspeed was a natural choice to succeed him. He has been actively identified with the national organization for three years, is on excellent terms with Chairman John Hamilton and other leaders of the national committee, and has demonstrated that he is a first class money raiser. But Goodspeed refused to run

Then came what now is considered the premature meeting of the state committee on April 29. It was called by State Chairman A. K. Stiles before there was a majority behind any candidate and a deadlock developed. Charles R. Walgreen, chain store magnate; Philip W. Collins, American Legion politician; Hill Blackett, advertising executive, and Thomas J. Houston, each had a block of votes sewed up.

None Certain of Majority.

In the last three weeks there have been incessant activities for each of the four candidates. The general conclusion, however, is that none has shown signs of being able to attract a definite majority of the committee.

Under these conditions party leaders not identified with the state committee have felt that a new candidate must be found if a prolongation of the deadlock with possible accompaniments of hard words and bitter feelings is to be avoided.

Those leaders who have talked with Goodspeed believe he will allow his name to be presented if he can be given advance proof that the majority of the state committee wants him as national committeeman.

SUPREME COURT CANDIDATE FROM PIONEER FAMILY

L. E. Murphy of Monmouth on Bench 14 Years.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Monmouth, Ill., May 23.—[Special.] —Judge Loren E. Murphy, Democratic candidate for justice of the Supreme court in the fourth district, has served fourteen years as county and Circuit judge. A Democrat, he has been elected in a strong Republican area. Thus, his friends say, his career typifies nonpartisanship in the judiciary, which is the aim in holding bench elections in June, separate from general elections.

Judge L. E. Murphy.

In his home town of Monmouth, Judge Murphy has been outstanding in public affairs. Postmaster Lloyd Irey, one of his intimates, sums it up thus: "The judge is the type of man called on by the community to do public things."

Comes of Pioneer Stock.

Judge Murphy comes of pioneer stock in this part of the state. He was born on a farm near Cuba, in Fulton county, July 23, 1882. More than a century ago his great-grandfather, William Murphy, went from Ohio to Fulton county, arriving in 1832. The judge's father, J. W. Murphy, 82, and his mother, 83, live on a farm near Cuba.

Murphy studied law at the University of Michigan and was graduated in 1906. He at once hung out his shingle in Monmouth. Four years later, in 1910, he was elected county judge of Warren county, and was reëlected in 1914. Warren county is an old Republican stronghold but in both elections Murphy rolled up large majorities.

After eight years on the county bench, Judge Murphy reëntered private practice in 1918. He served on the Monmouth school board from 1920 to 1927, most of the time as board president.

Serves Without Pay.

He led in the organization of the Monmouth park system and did the work gratis. For years he was attorney for the park board. Murphy was elected mayor of Monmouth in 1927 and served two years.

After the death of Judge W. F. Graham, Judge Murphy was elected in November, 1932, to fill the Circuit court vacancy in the 9th district. It was a special election, but the ticket went on the regular ballot headed by Roosevelt. The judge went through in the landslide, but to demonstrate his popularity he led Roosevelt in the district by 2,000 votes.

He was reëlected for the full term in 1933 without opposition by a biparty arrangement whereby two Republican judges and one Democratic judge were named on a coalition ticket. Judge Murphy's friends call attention to the fact that he is the only Democrat elected as judge in the 9th judicial circuit since it was organized in 1890, the one Democratic judge elected in well nigh fifty years.

Named for Appellate Duty.

Dwelling on this, one piece of campaign literature says: "This speaks volumes for Judge Murphy's legal ability, his courage to make decisions after fair and honest deliberation, and the wholesome dignity he brings to the high position he holds.

"Consider, too, there are fifty-one Circuit judges in Illinois outside Cook county. Nine of these are selected for Appellate court duty, and Judge Murphy is one of the nine. This is proof of his judicial qualifications."

The Supreme court appointed him Appellate judge in the 4th district in 1933 soon after his election, and reappointed him in 1936.

Singer Disappears

RINA KETTY.

PARIS, May 23.—Police are trying to solve the mystery of the disappearance of Rina Ketty, pretty Paris music hall artist, who vanished on a north African tour last month. After singing at Tunis, Algiers, and Casablanca, Rina was last seen on April 29 at Oran, which she left for an unknown destination. She was scheduled to sing at Montpellier, France, April 26, but failed to put in an appearance. Since her departure from Oran nothing has been heard of her.

CHOSEN TO SHOW THE WAY!
Going to the Memorial Day races at Indianapolis? Keep your eye on that Buick Roadmaster, chosen by the race management as the car to set the pace. On the race track as on the highway, it's the beauty!

WHAT we're concerned about is simply this: Lest you admire the size and swiftness and smartness of this trim Buick—and mistakenly decide it's a car you can't afford.

Lest you figure, since it's an eight and an eight of a hundred-and-then-some horsepower, it might cost more to run than you'd like to pay.

Lest you listen to all you hear about its wondrous comfort, and the smoothness of its BuiCoil ride—and class it as luxury beyond your reach.

All of which, of course, is wrong!

This is an eight—a valve-in-head straight-eight—but it's also a Dynaflash eight, and it gets more good out of every drop of gasoline.

Mileage figures that owners report to us even beat some of the sixes!

And it's certainly a luxurious carriage to ride in—not only in size and comfort but in the completeness of its equipment. Every model has two horns, two sun-visors, two windshield wipers, plenty of ash receivers, an automatic electric lighter—not to mention automatic choke, Handishift transmission and the Flash-Way direction signal.

Even so—the list prices still run less than a year ago—less than some sixes—and probably considerably less than you think!

We'd hate to have you miss out on a whale of a lot of fun simply because you didn't have the whole story. So—since your Buick dealer doesn't know how to reach you—why don't you call on him?

Don't worry about his pressing you to buy! When you see how little this honey costs—and how much it does for that little—you'll be pressing him to hurry delivery!

ECONOMY BLOC CRUSHED; MORE MILLIONS VOTED

House Upholds Senate on Farm Parities Stand.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 23.—[Special.]—The economy bloc was crushed in the house today by a narrow but decisive margin. Its leader, Representative Clifton A. Woodrum [D., Va.] declared that all prospects of economy in government or sane budgetary control at this session has been dissipated.

Economy advocates fell before the onslaught of the farm bloc. A test vote came in connection with the 1 billion 200 million dollar agriculture department bill, already approved by the senate. When the roll call ended the farm group stood victorious by a vote of 192 to 181. The ballot, in effect, was an approval of the senate's appropriation.

Senate Hits New High Note.

On March 28 the house passed the farm bill, after defeating, 204 to 191, a proposal to add 225 million dollars in parity payments to the measure. [Parity payments are designed to raise the prices farmers receive for their products toward the level enjoyed in 1909-'14.] The total appropriation approved by the house was approximately 817 millions.

The senate took the farm measure and speedily raised its total to record breaking proportions. It added not only the 225 million dollars for parity payments, but 133 millions for the disposal of surplus farm products and an additional 25 millions for a farm-tenancy program.

The senate added a cool 383 millions to the measure and tossed it back to its sister chamber.

Farm Bloc Seizes Reins.

The house farm bloc, defeated in the March 28 fight, was jubilant. Its leader, Representative Clarence Cannon [D., Mo.] asked unanimous consent today to send the measure to conference with representatives of the senate. As prospective leader of the house conferees, Cannon was prepared to yield readily to the senate amendments and the house would have no alternative but to agree to the conference report or have no farm bill at all.

The rules committee immediately proffered a resolution permitting the bill to go to conference. Only one hour's debate was permitted under a typical gag rule.

After the bill had been ordered sent to conference by the eleven-vote margin, Speaker William Bankhead appointed conferees. He named Representatives Cannon and Malcolm C. Tarver [D., Ga.], both committed in favor of parity payments, and Representatives William P. Lambertson [R., Kas.], against them. With two of the three senate conferees pledged for the payments, a conference report in favor of them is assured.

Heart Attack Is Blamed for Broker's Death in Car

A heart attack was blamed yesterday for the death of Otto Herzmann, an insurance broker, whose body was found early in the day in his automobile in a garage at 1216 Madison Park. Mr. Herzmann, 57 years old, left his home at 5020 Woodlawn avenue Monday night. When he failed to return his wife, Fannie, sent a daughter, Eleanor, to see if the car was in the garage. An inquest was continued to June 7.

Safety Court Sets Aside 90 Day Term for Doctor

Judge Thomas A. Green in the Safety court yesterday set aside a ninety day jail sentence imposed on Dr. George J. Bilek, 35 years old, 2650 South Homan avenue, a physician, for leaving the scene of an accident. Dr. Bilek was then fined $100. He indicated he would withdraw his previous motion for an appeal.

Mrs. Charlotte Quenneville told Judge Robert C. O'Connell yesterday that when she rebuked her husband, George, for coming home at dawn, he said: "I'm tired of punching a time clock; I'm going home to mother." And he went.

Mrs. Quenneville, who is 27 years old and lives at 3725 Grand avenue, was granted a divorce on the ground of desertion. Quenneville, a lithographer, lives at 2541 Monroe street.

The Quennevilles were married Jan. 29, 1936, and the home-to-mother episode, said Mrs. Quenneville, took place the next Nov. 1.

BILL TO PENSION STATE EMPLOYES VOTED BY HOUSE

Means Big Tax Load, Republican Warns.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 23.—[Special.]—State employés would be brought into a pension plan for the first time under a bill passed by the house today. Although the measure carries only $250,000 appropriation, Republicans warned that it would saddle the state with many millions of additional expense in years to come.

Originally the bill contained an appropriation of $2,000,000. It was amended to make the amount $250,000 by Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski, leader of the Democratic minority. In this form it was quickly passed by a vote of 115 to 5.

Warning on Big Future Cost.

"This is strictly a come-on proposition," said Le Roy Green [R., Rockford]. "The next legislature will have to make a deficiency appropriation to meet the cost for the two years starting July 1. Each succeeding legislature will be called upon to appropriate more.

"Once more we have the situation whereby workers with no income security—farmers, laborers, merchants—will be compelled to provide through taxation for the future contentment of government payrollers."

Adamowski argued for the bill.

"Only state employés, of all public employés in Illinois, have no pension provisions," he said. "They do not even come under the federal social security plan."

Senate concurrence with the house action is expected.

House Kills Two Bills.

The house today killed two bills by concurring with the committee recommendations that they not be passed. One would have required counties to distribute tax penalties among all local governments instead of keeping this money. The other would have outlawed leases and deeds on real estate which discriminate against persons of any race or color.

STORMY WITNESS DEFIES DIES QUIZ ABOUT NEW KLAN

Traces Anti-Red Program and 'Jew Problem.'

Washington, D. C., May 23.—(AP)—A tale of an international anti-communist movement heading up in Italy and Germany was unfolded before the Dies committee today by a stormy and defiant witness who interspersed his testimony with references to "the Jew problem," "Jew bankers," and "Jew communists."

George E. Deatherage.

The witness was George E. Deatherage, national commander of the Knights of the White Camellia, whose oath—"the same as a Klansman's oath," he said—forbade him to say how many members his organization has, where its chapters are located, and who its leaders are.

Balks at Taking Oath.

Deatherage took the oath as a witness after some truculent discussion with Chairman Martin Dies [D., Tex.] on whether the oath was a Christian oath and Dies warned him to answer questions and not to volunteer information.

"I don't know about that," said the witness, rising and adding something drowned out in the confusion, but apparently intended to make it clear that he had evidence of his own to present.

"Sit down," Dies roared.

"You come over here and make me sit down," Deatherage roared back.

Dies signalled the capitol policemen, who were guarding the hearing. Two seized Deatherage by the elbows and plumped him into the chair.

G. O. P. Leader Testifies.

After that, the witness proceded to give the committee a lengthy account of his activities and beliefs.

Not so voluble was his predecessor on the witness stand, Felix McWhirter, Indianapolis banker, and treasurer of the Indiana Republican state central committee, who told how the committee invited Major General George Van Horn Moseley, United States army, retired, to speak at a luncheon in Indianapolis. Previously he never had seen any anti-semitic statements in Moseley's speeches, he added, but in Indianapolis the general "overstepped the line."

REDDICK, ILL., MAN DIES AT 72.

Kankakee, Ill., May 23.—[Special.]—Fred Eldred, 72 years old, of Reddick, life resident of Kankakee county, died here last night.

THE MASSACRE
Chicago's 1939 Trafic Toll

GIRL, 16, ROBBED OF $220.

Bonita Zimich, 16 years old, a high school girl, was held up last night while tending her mother's store at 2250 Blue Island avenue. Two armed bandits took $220.

ACCIDENT DRIVER GIVES SELF UP TO FACE CHARGE

Clarence Hinkel of 935 Concordia place surrendered to Shakespeare avenue police last night on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. His car struck John O'Brien of 350 North Wabash avenue last Wednesday, breaking an arm.

Joseph Steller, 63 years old, 10727 Buffalo avenue, died yesterday in the South Chicago hospital of injuries incurred April 8 when he was hit by a car at Avenue O and 107th street.

Enrico Salotti, 74 years old, 4943 Congress street, who was struck by an auto on March 30 at Harrison and Halsted streets, died last night. Bystanders reported that Salotti walked into a car driven by Charles Cox of 950 North La Salle street.

Joseph J. Kruetz, 38, of 1853 North Mohawk street, was killed last night when his motorcycle struck a work car on the Chicago avenue car line at Monticello avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 328 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 257 were killed in Chicago, where 7,598 were injured in the same period.

GOV. HORNER AND KELLY SPLIT ON CASH FOR RELIEF

Mayor Told 3 Millions Monthly Is Limit.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 23.—[Special.] —An increase in Illinois taxes was discussed today by Gov. Henry Horner and Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago during a three hour conference on relief needs.

The problem before the Democratic leaders was the matter of raising an additional one million dollars a month, which represents the difference between what the governor insists is the maximum of state aid and what the mayor says is the minimum need.

Mr. Horner held adamantly to three million dollars a month as the limit that could be taken from the state treasury. Mr. Kelly was firm in his assertion that at least four millions were required.

Meeting Ends in Deadlock.

A deadlock developed. Although the conference was understood to have been friendly, should the clash continue a rift in the friendly relations between the two men might develop.

Today's talk was reported to have veered to additional tax levies with the following receiving consideration: 1, a tobacco tax; 2, increase of the liquor revenue tax; 3, raising the pauper tax above the present rate of 30 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. A doubling of the real estate levy would produce about $4,000,000 annually, it was said.

Another item on the conference agenda was the proposed pegged levies for the Chicago park district, which call for $10,500,000 for 1939 and $11,00,000 for 1940 and 1941. No agreement was reached, according to reports.

In fact, no decisions were made nor was a future meeting date selected. About the only direction given at the conference was to S. L. Nudelman, director of finance, who was asked to examine the state's financial condition and make an exact determination of the state's ability to make relief contributions. Last week Nudelman declared that $3,000,000 monthly was the limit.

Mayor Kelly was spokesman for the conferees who included the governor, Nudelman, Lieut. Gov. John Stelle and Ald. J. M. Arvey, Chicago, on the Chicago city council's finance committee.

Ward Bill Faces Revision.

The legislature recently enacted bills presented by the mayor's legislative spokesman, Senator Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago], increasing the state's monthly relief contribution to $4,500,000 for the months of May and June.

Ward has pending a measure to raise the contribution of $5,000,000 monthly after July 1, but Mr. Kelly said after his talk with the governor that this bill would not be pushed at that figure.

STAFF OF HEALTH BOARD WELCOMES BUNDESEN BACK

The staff of the board of health yesterday welcomed Dr. Herman N. Bundesen back to his post as board president. He had been on a voluntary leave of absence since last November.

Mayor Kelly requested him to return to his duties after Dr. Robert A. Black, who was acting president of the board, asked to be relieved. Dr. Black said he wanted to devote full time to his private practice.

Dr. Bundesen said he has prepared his defense against federal charges of conspiring with others to fix milk prices and control milk production. During his leave he remained in close contact with the health department.

HOUSE BILL REVISES SALTIEL LAW FOR PRE-MARRIAGE TEST

Springfield, Ill., May 23.—[Special.] —Representative Edward P. Saltiel [R., Chicago], sponsor of the premarital examination law enacted two years ago, today introduced a bill in the house to modify its provisions.

The Saltiel law requires that couples intending to marry be examined for venereal diseases.

Saltiel's new bill would eliminate the specific requirement that Kahn or Wassermann blood tests be made for syphilis. It provides that any serological test approved by the state department of health may be made.

Another proposed change would require that tests be made in laboratories approved by the state health department.

Marriages which would legitimatize children would be exempted from the present law.

Still another change would permit physicians to qualify applicants for marriage if they were victims of congenital syphilis or if the disease were noninfectious.

The new measure's purpose, Saltiel said, is to make the law keep pace with medical advances.

The bill was advanced to second reading without reference to a committee.

HANGED IN TEATCHER WOODS.

The body of an unidentified man about 60 years old was found hanging yesterday to a tree in Thatcher Woods, River Forest, a part of the county forest preserves.

They left April 20. It took them eight days to make the trip east but they came home in four. The car was on exhibition at the fair for ten days. It cost them $85 for the round trip.

BLEACHED HAIR BANDIT TALKS IN LAWYERS' TRIAL

Two Accused of Plot to Obstruct Justice.

Edward A. Fisher and Francis J. Kennedy, former assistant United States district attorneys charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice, went to trial yeserday before Judge William J. Lindsay of the Criminal court.

The lawyers are accused of manufacturing evidence on which they hoped to void prosecution of a client, Hubert Heintz, who has since confessed his guilt as a robber. One of the alleged overt acts was the bleaching of Heintz's dark hair so he could avoid identification.

Heintz, who is the son of Philip F. Heintz of Winnetka, a broker, was the first witness for the state. He admitted that he held up the Household Finance company office at 3150 Lincoln avenue on Nov. 4, obtaining $57.

Robbed on Impulse, He Says.

"It was just on impulse," he said. "I was broke and unable to support my wife and our home at 6447 North Rockwell street. After the robbery I went to my uncle's cottage near Woodstock. I was planning to kill myself, but my uncle, John von Rosenberg, persuaded me not to do that. So I went to my father and told him all about it."

The elder Heintz, the witness said, took him to Attorney Fisher's office, where he retold the complete story of the robbery to both lawyers. He quoted Fisher as saying, "We'll take care of everything. We'll get it all straightened out. Don't worry."

Heintz said he remained the rest of the day in Kennedy's office with a man introduced to him as Mr. McCafferty, a policeman. In the evening, he continued, he got into a car with Kennedy and was driven to a corner near the city hall. There, he said, they picked up Miss Christine Conzo, 28 years old, of 21 South Menard avenue. They started for the west side, Heintz said, and Kennedy told him, "I want to pick up my brother, who is a policeman."

Goes on Stand Again Today.

At this point court adjourned. Heintz will be on the stand when the trial is resumed this morning. In his earlier confession he named Miss Conzo as the person who purchased the hair bleach for him.

The stratagem almost succeeded. Heintz was arrested Nov. 21 after the police traced the auto used by the robber to his father-in-law, Dr. Tracy H. Clark of 4456 North Ashland avenue. Witnesses to the holdup had described the bandit as dark haired and smooth shaven, but Heintz appeared with light hair and a mustache. He was freed in the Felony court.

Investigators were not satisfied. They continued their work and Heintz was rearrested. This time he confessed, implicating the attorneys in the plot. His father has claimed that Fisher and Kennedy threatened him for more money after he paid them a total of $2,300 in fees.

FOUND DEAD IN BED.

Police broke into a basement flat at 1310 North Hoyne avenue last night and found Ignatz Pabisiak, 50 years old, dead in his bed. Death apparently was due to natural causes.

POLICE HUNT 2D ACCOMPLICE OF WOUNDED BANDIT

Police last night sought a second accomplice of Robert Burns, 19 years old, 3552 64th street, who was shot in the back yesterday after he held up a liquor store at 6505 Normal boulevard. Burns was in a serious condition in the Bridewell hospital.

Chester Kaminsky.

John Forrester, 20, of 6517 Peoria street, who admitted driving the robbery car, was held by Englewood police. Burns said that he, Forrester, and another youth stole the car Monday night.

Burns was shot by Joseph Goldstein, owner of the store, after he had seized $4.25 in the robbery. The bandit escaped in the car and twenty minutes later he and Forrester appeared at a first aid station at 4157 South Halsted street. They threatened the attendant, Chester Kaminsky, ordering him to give burns medical aid. Kaminsky sent them to County hospital and notified police, who arrested Burns at the hospital entrance.

MICHIGAN LABOR RELATIONS BILL UP TO GOVERNOR

Lansing, Mich., May 23.—(AP)—Michigan's projected labor relations law holding prospective strikers to a "cooling off period" before walkous received senate approval by a vote of 23 to 3 tonight and needed only Gov. Luren D. Dickinson's signature. He had urged its enactment.

The present bill, a compromise measure differing radically from that proposed by the late Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, provides for a five-day wait between a decision to strike and the walkout.

A formal declaration of intent to strike is demanded, and during the five succeeding days it would be "the duty of both employés and employers to use their best efforts to avoid a cessation of employment." The present bill creates a three man board to help settle industrial disputes, and arbitration is voluntary. It forbids company unions, sitdown strikes, and coercion of workers into joining unions.

PICKET TELLS OF SHOOTING IN STORE DISPUTE

Harry Thieme, business agent of the egg inspectors' union, will testify tomorrow before Master in Chancery Harold Sullivan, who is hearing evidence on an appeal by the Farm Food Store, Inc., for an injunction to stop members of four unions from picketing the store. Thieme was shot in a fight between pickets and employés of the store, which is at 6520 South Cicero avenue, on April 16. Herman Brandt, an employé, is under indictment for the shooting.

Union witnesses charged that the fight was started by Herman Wadler, the proprietor, and his employés. At the hearing yesterday Emmett Huston, a picket for the meat cutters' union, said he saw Brandt start toward Thieme during the fight, but that he could not see whether Brandt had the gun in his hand at the time. A pistol taken from Brandt and a revolver taken from Wadler before the shooting were introduced in evi-

CALL 2 INDIANA POLITICIANS IN RELIEF INQUIRY

Subpenas were issued yesterday for two prominent Indiana Democrats to appear today before the Lake county, Ind., grand jury investigation of the county's relief mess.

Those summoned are Philip Zoercher of Indianapolis, chairman of the Indiana state tax board, and Joseph E. Finerty of Gary, county auditor.

It was learned that they will be asked why they are trying to block the relief investigation which was undertaken by the county council and the grand jury. Felix A. Kaul, prosecuting attorney, recently accused them of attempting to block the inquiry.

Discouragement . . . disillusionment . . . disintegration . . . they're in the air

Have you sensed the loss of guts—the weakening of moral force and purpose—the faltering pride in being AMERICAN?

HAVE YOU FELT IT, TOO?

Have you resented it? Have you HATED it? Have you wondered why "somebody" didn't bring back the lost leadership—the spunk—the fight—the SPIRIT THAT MADE AMERICA . . . now, in 1939?

Have you wanted—have you really longed to salute your flag and shout "That's mine! That's Old Glory—God bless 'er—she's flying again!"

FRIEND—FELLOW AMERICAN—you've overlooked something.

There IS a rallying point for America—America who wants to be proud of herself—America who IS proud.

Millions like yourself have found it—ARE rallying.

IT'S LIBERTY—THE MAGAZINE.

Ink and paper, yes. A rallying point?

Don't laugh. The Declaration of Independence—the Constitution—the Emancipation Proclamation—were ink and paper.

The American Flag is dyed bunting.

America itself is—first of all—the minds of its men and women.

Not plains and mountains and forests and cities and harbors, but—first of all—MIND.

That is all that has weakened—the aggregate MIND of America—the aggregate WILL—the aggregate SPIRIT. As Fulton Oursler, Editor of Liberty, remarked in a recent issue:

"Nothing can destroy Americanism except a lack of good citizenship."

Ink and paper, through the impact of ideas that build instead of sabotage—that ring instead of whine—can recharge this MIND, restore this SPIRIT.

Ink and paper are doing it. LIBERTY is doing it—for the mind and spirit of the 2,500,000 families who read it regularly.

PREVIEW OF THE THIRD TERM.

The Mr. Roosevelt who said, "You and I know that a continuation of that habit [spending above revenue] means the poorhouse," is now the Mr. Roosevelt who says that the great national debt for which he is responsible is a conservative investment and treasury profligacy is sound national economy. His debts and deficits do not mean the poorhouse. He says they are the foundation of national welfare.

When Mr. Roosevelt knew that the poorhouse awaited the government as well as the person spending beyond income and running into debt, he was cocksure that he had the answers to all the nation's problems. He thought that recovery would follow along arm in arm with his reforms. In this belief he could afford to be sensible. He could be rational. He could admit that the consequence of excessive spending and debt would be ruinous.

Now Mr. Roosevelt observes the consequence of his adventures. He sees that he has stopped private enterprise. He calls it the failure of private capital. Two considerations impel him to stick to debt and deficit as his way out: One, because this is the only way in which he can avoid a confession of failure and error; second, it is, in his opinion, the only political ground upon which he can ask for a third term.

Federal spending is a way of buying another nomination and another election. By expropriation and by the distribution of doles, subsidies, and government contracts Mr. Roosevelt may hope to retain a following primarily interested in converting other people's property to their own use and advantage.

As a third term candidate he can hope to gain from only one particular of his record. Huey Long had a name for that particular. It was "Share the Wealth." If Mr. Roosevelt were to say that he now, as he did before, still regard debt as the door to bankruptcy, he would have to confess that his only accomplishment had been a ruinous one. When he did not know that it was to be his only achievement he properly condemned such a procedure. He has not relieved unemployment. He has not permitted the business expansions he knows are necessary. He has seen the savings of the country collect in unproductive pools, except as they are withdrawn for his own unproductive spending. He has only one achievement and it consists of the debt and deficit, which he must defend.

Many people have known for several years what he would do. He would campaign against private enterprise. He would arouse class antagonism. He would create a feeling of bitterness against industry. He would attack men as selfish capitalists and as exploiters. He would arouse as many hatreds as he could and he would use repressive measures to create conditions in which the venture of money under private management would be uncertain. Then, having done everything he could to break down private enterprise, he would say that it had failed and that the country could not rely upon it but must look to the government for its welfare. These prophesies have been carried out to the crossing of the "t" and the dotting of the "i."

Mr. Roosevelt is not as inexplicable or grotesque as he seems to be. He talks nonsense unless it is understood by his hearers that debt, the suppression of private enterprise, and the sterilizing of private savings have a destination beyond the poorhouse. It is to be found in the dictatorial economic state which expropriates all productive property, conscripts labor, and runs the business of the country. With that in view there is no nonsense in Mr. Roosevelt's determination to continue spending all the money that can be raised by taxation and debt. Such a program eventually will put the government in charge of all private affairs.

The support which Mr. Browder and the American communists give Mr. Roosevelt for a third term is not the only evidence that his ideal state is akin to the Russian. The distinctions he himself makes between dictators in favor of Stalin and against Hitler and Mussolini are revelations of his sympathies and antipathies and safe enough guides for the revolutionaries whose objective is the overthrow of democracy in the United States. They will see the significance of Mr. Roosevelt's remarks and they will recognize the trend of his public action and secret thoughts.

A third term candidacy, then, would be based upon expropriations and the further extension of the government into productive economy. It will be designed to attract the support of people who have learned how to extract profit, privileges, and subsidies. If the people who desire to take the other fellow's money and property away from him and use it themselves are now in the majority in the United States, Mr. Roosevelt has his campaign well thought out. It outlines what the third term would be. It would require the establishment of the socialized state with no alternative, because there would be no private enterprise and the only operative economy in the country would be controled by the government. In the light of that program Mr. Roosevelt is not talking nonsense. He is talking for a third term revolution.

This depression is Mr. Roosevelt's. He willed it from the beginning. He has cherished it as his greatest political opportunity. It and only it can be made the springboard for the jump to the third term. In a country returning to normal the third term idea would expire at the first mention of it. The White House family has enjoyed the depression, with its privileges and profits. To move out would be a domestic calamity. It would be exile from gainful publicity.

Probably the people should be glad that Mr. Roosevelt in his speech did not draw the sword again and start for Europe. They must beware, however. The third term may need a war even as it needs debt and destitution.

THE BAPTISTS.

Religious toleration is today such a deeply rooted American principle that we are prone carelessly to amplify the virtues of our colonial ancestors, attributing to them a tolerance they were far from possessing.

Their zeal that inspired so much of the colonial settlement had no base in tolerance. When they spoke of religious freedom they meant freedom to practice their own religion. When they had established that freedom the wilderness zealots yielding nothing to the established churches of the old world in the bigotry and in some instances the bloodthirstiness with which they persecuted all who doubted their particular method of salvation.

Roger Williams was the exception among these early colonial fathers, a man whose principles were a century ahead of his times. And the Baptist church, which Williams helped establish in Rhode Island in 1639, was the first church on this continent to tolerate other religious beliefs and to recognize that the only stable basis for such toleration is the complete separation of church and state.

It is 328 years since the English Baptist refugees at Amsterdam first wrote that declaration into their creed. In more than three centuries it has gained acceptance by all creeds in this country, but none have been more faithful to it than the Baptists. The leaders of various conventions of that church, comprising 11,000,000 members, who met yesterday in Chicago took proper pride in this record.

State influence over the church may be exerted by the state taxing the church. Churches, however, have not always been so quick to recognize that it can be exerted just as effectively if the state contributes to the church or its activities. Admiration for the heroic German preachers and priests who have dared to stand up against Hitler should not dim appreciation of the fact that the German churches would have been in better position to resist Nazi oppression if they had not permitted previous German governments to maintain them financially.

The Baptist leaders, both at their Chicago meeting and at other recent conventions, have shown proper appreciation of the danger that religious freedom faces in the expansion of governmental activities in America and abroad. They are faithful to the traditions of Roger Williams.

MONEY FOR HOUSING.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance company is spending a sum estimated at from 50 to 65 million dollars in the construction of Parkchester. The site covers thirty-nine city blocks in New York and when the buildings are completed they will provide accommodations for more than 40,000 people. More than 2,400 building mechanics are at work on the huge project.

The insurance company has set aside 100 million dollars for such large scale housing, but none of that money or the money of any other insurance company will be invested in Chicago, though much of it comes from here, unless the public service housing corporation bills are enacted. The Metropolitan company was fortunate in being able to acquire the Parkchester site from the Catholic church in New York, which formerly used the 120 acres for a charitable institution. To acquire a site of adequate size in Chicago, and particularly in the run-down sections where there is the greatest need for rebuilding, some means must be provided for acquiring a large block of land at a fair price. The public service housing corporation bills are intended to meet this need.

Corporations organized under the provisions of the bills would be permitted to obtain property by condemnation proceedings only if more than half the land desired had already been acquired by ordinary purchase. The land and buildings would be assessed for taxes exactly like any other real estate in the city. The plan would operate only in so-called blighted areas. All the architectural drawings as well as the financing of the projects would be subject to review and regulation by the public authorities. Only a relatively small proportion of the total area could be covered with buildings.

The investment in Parkchester gives substantial basis for the hope that with the enactment of the public service housing bills Chicago may become the site for similar projects. Unless the bills are passed there can be little hope of eradicating the slums in Illinois cities and in the process providing employment for the idle men in the building trades.

ELECTRIC BRAIN.

[Washington Evening Star.]

At a meeting of the American Physical society there was exhibited a remarkable invention called a sine curve adder, and nicknamed the Electric Brain. In charmingly simple terms the inventor describes some of its functions. It will, he says, if kindly treated, multiply an angle by its coefficient, look up sine terms, multiply the sine by an arbitrary number, add the results, and plot them on photographic paper without pausing for breath or asking for a goldfish. It is capable of numerous other cute mathematical tricks as well, but thrives best when fed on sine curves, the more the better. This scab device will, in half an hour, do the same amount of work that a human calculator can accomplish in two days, and do it better, as it automatically and electrically produces correct results with no possible chance for error.

So far, the machine has been used only by mathematicians, but other possibilities loom in the offing. It should prove an immense boon in the service of the government, as it needs no appropriation for salary, secretaries or mileage. Supplied with a few common or garden kilowatts and an occasional drop of oil, it magically renders infallible decisions. At the proposed inception of each new alphabetical agency, all the available figures and data could be dropped into its gently smiling jaws, and the juice turned on. With a gentle hum the gears mesh and the mechanical brain goes into high. An hour or so later it stops and coughs up the answer in all its details. It will tell, to the exact dollar, just how much money will be lost, and the number of taxpayers and the number of years required to make up the deficit.

ANOTHER MYTH EXPLODES.

A part of this column's purpose in life is to free the popular mind from some of its petty superstitions. Today we plan to abolish the myth that monkeys have fleas, and spend most of their lives in catching them. Practically all Americans cherish this belief and, as in more important matters, are completely misled by the evidence.

At this point we are prepared to hear hoots, catcalls and angry cries of "Certainly monkeys have fleas! Take a look at any monkey! What is he doing? Why, catching and eating fleas!"

On the same kind of evidence, it was formerly believed that the sun revolved around the earth, and that the earth was flat. The evidence of the senses of poor and incomplete observers.

When you think a monkey is catching fleas, he is really plucking off his dandruff. His skin is flakey, and he likes to keep it in the pink. He is one of the cleanest animals in the world, with a positive mania for polishing up his delicate hide. If a flea should happen to jump upon him, it would never live long enough to raise a family. He has a habit of conveying the débris that he removes to his mouth because these flakes of skin have a slightly salty taste.

So This Is Paris!

If you think that we have overdone the subject of Chicago's old streets and old houses, consider the city of Paris. It maintains a historical library which has 240,000 books and 25,000 manuscripts dealing with such matters. . . . There is a street on the Left Bank, not more than four blocks long in our measurements, called the Rue Cherche-Midi. A volume of 589 pages is devoted entirely to its history and archæology.

Cheers from an Old Sailor.

That man C. S. Forester, author of "Captain Horatio Hornblower" [May 16], sure is or was a real sailorman. He has evidently had a lot of windjammer experience. He is in Capt. Marryat's class with a little of W. Clark Russell thrown in for good measure, but even better than the former. And he must have been a man-of-war's man, too, or he would never have got out the fighting dope he did.

I have to confess to having handled, or helped to handle, the old time smoothbore, cast iron guns, with side tackles, roller hand spikes, round shot and serge powder bags, we used to have in Uncle Sam's navy between fifty and sixty years ago. Anybody who has ever straddled a gun out near the muzzle with a "sponge" and rammer, and reads that story, can't help some of the old brine leaking out of his eyes a bit.

Please pardon an old relic of the past for pestering you with this stuff, but it was your own comments that did it, when I thought that no one else cared a cuss for stories like that; and it did me a wonderful lot of good.

A Nice View if You Can Find It.

Catalpa blossom time in Edgewater is almost as good as cherry blossom time in Washington, D. C., but nobody seems to have tumbled to the fact. Several streets in this region are thickly planted with catalpas, and when the trees display their large white flowers it's quite a picture. Thorndale and Magnolia avenues may be taken as a focal point of observation. The catalpa is a late blooming tree in Chicago, especially in cold springs. Warm sunshine, however, will bring them out en masse, maybe between June 10 and 15. In some years the trees wait until early in July.

TAKE THE OFFENSIVE AGAINST FLIES.

The first thing we know summer will be upon us and many a home may be unprepared to resist the swarms of flies—attracted by food. These pests have brought more annoyance and illness to the human race than any other insect with the possible exception of the mosquito. They abound everywhere throughout the world—other than at the poles—and are persistent pursuers of mankind.

The reason that every house should be screened snugly is that flies are utterly devoid of the slightest sanitary sense. They do not know the difference between clean articles and filth. As a result they drag their hairy legs through all sorts of infected offal which may be transported to the kitchen where their very touch brings contamination. A single specimen has been known to carry on its body as many as six million organisms with about five times as many in its alimentary tract. Thus it is that microbes capable of causing dysentery, colitis, and other types of intestinal disorders may become mixed with our edibles. During the Spanish-American war—at Chickamauga, especially—these roamers occasioned the deaths of thousands of soldiers from typhoid fever.

How rapidly do they multiply? On the average, a female will lay about 120 eggs at a time. The hatching process comes six to eight hours later, producing tiny white maggots which grow speedily, attaining a length of half an inch. Within four or five days each worm exhibits a hard brown casing from which the matured form emerges in a like period. In other words, only ten days elapse from the time the egg is laid until the adult is buzzing about. In one season as many as ten or twelve generations will be let loose to prey upon us. Some one has estimated that from one pair—within forty days—140 pounds of progeny will come if only half the eggs develop. It requires approximately 3,000 to weigh an ounce.

From these figures we can understand why "swatting"—helpful in ridding the luncheon table of an insistent and uninvited guest—would be useless as a general exterminating procedure. The only plan of elimination which can be successful is that which destroys breeding places. The mother fly, knowing that her offspring will need nourishment, picks out a garbage or manure pile wherein to start her brood. Any kind of decaying organic matter will do, just so there is something for the worms to feed upon.

Spraying gallons of insecticides and wielding a score of swatters will be futile if the alley is filled with refuse. The careless handling of kitchen waste—leaving garbage cans uncovered or spilling some of the débris about the receptacle—may be responsible in many a locality. If an alley a block long harbors a dozen breeding sites the vicinity cannot avoid a plentiful insect population.

Communities will be freed from these disease spreading hordes if scrupulous attention is given to sanitation. Unfortunately, a fly that is full grown will live for several weeks and travel seems to be the chief joy of existence. Marked species have been known to cover eight to ten miles. All of which means that the cleanup crusade must be city-wide if it is to be effective.

For our immediate comfort we can make certain that the window screens are tight, well fitting, free from holes, and that traps or spray devices are handy should the opening and closing of doors admit the invaders. Special care must be exercised to protect the nutriment of babies and young children. They are far more susceptible to digestive disturbances—bacterial in origin—than are grownups. Even though the most painstaking technique is employed in the preparation of the formula, one fly alighting on the mouth of a bottle or the rim of a cup may plant enough germs to cause trouble.

If one's living quarters are in an infested neighborhood—and it seems impossible to avoid their presence entirely—babies, particularly, should be shielded with mosquito netting. This material is cheap and a few yards will encase the carriage, the crib, or the play pen.

WHEN BODY OUTRUNS MIND.

J. B. R. writes: Is there any special diet for children whose bodies have outgrown their minds? By that I mean children who are so overdeveloped by the time they reach 15 or 16 years of age that mental traits have lagged behind.

REPLY.

I am afraid that diet will not help. If you provide a balanced menu you have done your full duty. Adolescents now and then appear to be sluggish mentally. Time is a great adjuster.

IT COULD.

E. H. writes: Could sinus trouble cause sharp pains in the head from time to time?

REPLY.

An infected sinus is painful, particularly when proper drainage is not established. Other conditions may be responsible.

CARBOHYDRATE CONTENT.

D. L. writes: What is the meaning of a 10 or 20 per cent vegetable or fruit?

REPLY.

OUR OWN REFUGEES.

Chicago, May 23.—What does Prof. Compton propose to do about our New Deal refugees? A month or so ago down in the state of Missouri, in the U. S. A., we had refugees of our own making sitting out in the road with nothing but the blue sky for a roof.

In the state of Kentucky, also in the U. S. A., we have a little girl around 12 years of age living with her parents in a cave, getting married to take up residence in a shack that would not make a good stable.

If Senator Wagner, Helen Hayes, the professor, and all the rest of those pseudo humanitarians will only look around they will find plenty of refugee children that do not have to be brought in on boats.

LOOKS FOR A BETTER DAY.

Evanston, Ill., May 18.—If it were not such a serious matter it would be amusing. One would think we had "money to burn"; that our government was immune to bankruptcy. We support millions of men to whom we pay billions of dollars year after year to do nothing, and pay to farmers millions of dollars to raise nothing.

Soon, I hope, men will be placed at the head of our government who are interested in the good of the people as a whole, who will tell us this is a free country, where men work in accordance with their free will, then more plants will open up and the army of idle men will be reduced by thousands. Men will arise in the morning happy because they have a job to go to, and come home to a happy family in the evening bringing the bacon which has been earned instead of bacon as a dole.

SWEEPSTAKES HERE AT HOME?

Chicago, May 22.—THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE says: "Over half of sweepstakes tickets held in United States." Obviously these people were able to buy tickets in spite of the postal regulations.

Why not have our own sweepstakes in this country; keep the money here instead of sending it to Ireland; use the proceeds for old age pensions on a national scale?

Doubtless a law that would make lottery legal would meet opposition from those who still believe human nature can be changed by making laws. Our Noble Experiment did not stop drinking, but did breed a wave of lawlessness that we are still combating.

The same holds true with sweepstakes or lotteries. The difference is that liquors today are paying taxes and sweepstakes money is going overseas and the country has plenty of counterfeit tickets that benefit crooks.

ANY ONE RECALL SAMMONS LANDING?

Chicago, May 18.—I have an old map of Michigan. Cities on the east shore are shown from north to south from Ludington as follows—Pentwater, Sammons Landing, Muskegon, Grand Haven, Holland, South Haven, and Benton Harbor.

Now I wonder what has become of this city of Sammons Landing which was at that time of enough importance to merit mention on the map along with the others. Having traversed the territory on foot, it seems to have disappeared. Perhaps some of your readers would know.

"BOYCOTT" IS POISON TO HER.

Chicago, May 21.—There is one word that is poison to me and that word is boycott! Nowhere in the world do civilized people employ that word as much as here in the United States. The air is filled with entreaties to boycott this firm, this individual or that nation.

It seems inconceivable and quite insane for the citizens of a country that has stood for individual liberty since its birth to be the first people in the world to inflict hardships on other human beings. A person who boycotts is un-Christian and a murderer at heart!

MISTRESS AND MAID.

Chicago, May 21.—We hear and read much about the difficulty of securing satisfactory domestic help. The writer has worked as a maid for the last two years and so feels that she can make a few suggestions that may be helpful.

The maid is a woman and not a robot. She becomes tired and discouraged when overburdened with work. Quite often you hear of a woman who complains that her maid neglects certain details, breaks too many dishes, and is inclined to be ill tempered. Were the matter investigated a situation like the following would in all probability be disclosed: The maid was required to work twelve or thirteen hours a day. She must act as cook, laundress, chambermaid, nursemaid and housemaid, and be expert in all departments.

When an otherwise perfect meal is served, instead of expressing a word of praise, the mistress has come into the kitchen to complain that the roast or biscuits were a little too brown or not quite brown enough. Let this woman put herself in the maid's place for just one day and I think she would then be more considerate. The following rules, if observed, will make for more harmony in the home and a happier relationship between mistress and maid:

1. A pleasant and attractive room—it is the maid's home.
2. Not longer than nine hour working day.
3. Compliment instead of criticizing wherever possible.
4. Pay sufficient wages so that when a rest or vacation seems necessary the worker will not be dependent on her friends or relatives for a home.

PROPERTY TITLE.

Burlington, Wis., May 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Am inquiring about title to property. This case is in Illinois. A husband and wife have lived on and owned a 200 acre farm for thirty-five years. It is in husband's name. In 1933 husband and wife both thought it best to put it in joint tenancy. It was deeded to a third party, who deeded it back to them in joint tenancy. Then husband deeded it [all property] to wife, giving her a quitclaim deed. Husband did not deed it first to a third party when giving it to wife.

1. Was it legal for husband to give it to wife in this manner without third party participating in the second transaction? The property is used as a home by both husband and wife. There are no children.

2. Wife wants to know if her title is perfectly legal and clear?

3. Can she will away all the property?

4. If not, what part? It is not all in her name and the original investment was her money. There is a mortgage of $10,000.

J. T.

1. Yes, in the sense that such direct conveyance of the homestead was expressly authorized by a 1919 amendment of the homestead law.

2. No, in the sense that she holds the title subject to her husband's dower.

3. No, in the sense that he could renounce the will and take instead his statutory share.

4. We advise her to employ an attorney to draft the will.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ESTATE MATTER.

Chicago, May 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If the certificate of title to the family automobile is in the husband's name alone, [1] how could the wife sell same in case of his death?

2. Could the certificate of title be amended so that the wife would have full title in case of his death? Government bonds are issued to "John Doe" or "Mary Doe."

3. Would they become the sole property of "Mary" in case of his death?

J. A. M.

1. The procedure would be somewhat different, depending on whether the estate was probated. Take the matter up with the secretary of state.

2. See 1.

3. We understand that the government raises no question as to the rights of the survivor. We assume that the estate is not large enough to involve an inheritance tax.

FIVE NAZI SHIPS REACH SPAIN TO TAKE OUT TROOPS

Expeditionary Force Will Sail for Home Friday.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIGO, Spain, May 23.—Five German troop ships arrived in Vigo today to take home 6,000 men on the Condor legion. The Nazi expeditionary force is due to sail from Vigo Friday.

Carrying out Gen. Francisco Franco's past contention that foreign fighters would leave Spain when a victory was won in the civil war, Italian troops were also completing preparations to return home. They say they will leave Cadiz between June 1 and June 6.

Hold Review Today.

In brilliant sunshine the five big German vessels, all painted a creamy white, steamed up Vigo bay. On their funnels was the emblem "Strength Through Joy," the Nazi pleasure organization to which they nominally belong. The Robert Ley and the Wilhelm Gustloff were especially built for that organization and for such uses as the present. The other three, the Stutgart, Der Deutsche, and Sierra Corboda, are old vessels.

Local residents are speeding their parting guests with enthusiasm. A review of 20,000 Spanish and German troops will be held tomorrow in dual honor of the Condor legion and the Spanish general, Miguel Aranda. Aranda has been awarded Spain's highest military honor, the Grand Cross of San Fernando.

The Germans and Italians will leave behind them much of their artillery and motorized equipment. Some of this has been paid for, more is to be paid for, and the rest will be presented to Spain on a suitable occasion.

Italy Prepares to Collect.

ROME, May 23.—(AP)—Italy is preparing to collect war debts from nationalist Spain by accepting Spanish materials valuable in munitions making, a reliable informant said today.

The total owed by Gen. Francisco Franco for aid to the Spanish nationalist cause is said to be about $500,000,000. This does not represent cash advances but airplanes, guns, munitions, and other supplies.

Italy is said especially to want iron ore in return. Italian plans are to exploit the ore reserves with Italian technicians, and possibly laborers, and to transport the ore in Italian ships.

5,000 EMPLOYES OF GAS STATIONS WIN PAY BOOSTS

Officials of the Gasoline Retailers' association, which represents 1,600 filling station proprietors in the Chicago metropolitan area, signed a wage contract and closed shop agreement yesterday with the Oil Drivers' and Filling Station Employés' union, local 705.

The wages of more than 5,000 gasoline station workers will be boosted immediately by the contract, it was stated. Station managers will receive $31.20 a week, pump operators $24.96, lubrication men $21.60, and car washers $18.24. Overtime will be paid at the regular hourly rate.

C. E. Ragen, president of the association, predicted a further rise in retail gasoline prices because of increased labor costs under the agreement.

Many dealers advanced prices 1 cent a gallon yesterday, Ragen said, to absorb a 1 cent a gallon increase in wholesale prices which went into effect yesterday morning. Their new prices are 19½ cents a gallon for ethyl, 17½ cents for regular, and 15 cents for third grade gasoline. Other stations were selling for less.

Papa Robin Helps

An injured baby robin was living like a canary yesterday in the home of Mrs. Dorothy Dahl, 5047 Winthrop avenue. The robin tumbled from its nest, tucked away under a corner of the Dahl roof, last Sunday.

The janitor found him in the yard, and the robin spent the night in a candy box in Mrs. Dahl's kitchen. Monday he was put into a canary cage. Mrs. Dahl set the cage on the porch of a cottage at the rear of her home.

Mama and Papa Robin are taking care of the job of feeding the baby. All day long they hurry to and from the cage, bringing him the choicest worms and insects, which they drop between the bars into his yawning mouth. His brothers and sisters in the nest above watch enviously. At night the cage rests in the warmest corner of the kitchen.

BILL TO LICENSE PAINTERS HALTED IN STATE SENATE

Springfield, Ill., May 23.—[Special.]—The senate today refused to pass a bill to license painters and painting contractors, similar to one which was defeated two years ago. However, as the measure neared the end of the roll call, its sponsor, Peter P. Kielminski [D., Chicago], postponed further consideration. He said he will try again tomorrow.

Painters under the bill would be examined by the state department of registration and education. They could be jailed for painting without a license. Contractors would have to post $1,000 bonds.

"Next thing you'll want a college degree for painters," said R. Wallace Karraker [D., Jonesboro]. "This bill is unnecessary and a burden upon the people. Painters' rates would go up. It is a bad bill and should be defeated."

FOIL ST. CHARLES AX MAN'S PLOT TO ESCAPE JAIL

Details of a plot by which two former inmates of the St. Charles School for Boys and two other prisoners planned to escape from the Kane county jail at Geneva was revealed yesterday. The plot failed because a trusty learned of it and informed Chief Deputy Sherif Cecil Reilly.

The plotters were Vivian Denton, St. Charles parolee, who is awaiting trial for a murderous hatchet assault on Mrs. Meta Christiansen, wife of the farmer to whom he was released; Lynwood Hale, under sentence of 1 to 10 years in prison after a crime spree following his escape from St. Charles; Thomas Kelley, under sentence of a year to life for armed robbery; and Fred Ussery, awaiting trial for auto theft.

The escape was planned for Monday night. Denton, using catchup for makeup, was to feign injury in a bull pen fight and call for a doctor. The others were to attack the doctor and the guard and steal the latter's keys. The only result, however, was that Sherif Marcus Damisch took Hale and Kelley to Joliet prison immediately to begin serving their terms.

STERN JUSTICE IS HANDED OUT TO 5 YOUNG THUGS

Boys of 15 Get Long Prison Terms for Robbery.

Judge James F. Fardy of the Criminal court yesterday dispensed stern justice to a gang of young thugs who had terrorized street car conductors for a month. Five of the gang, all but one 15 years old, were sentenced to long prison terms for robbery. The two others were allowed to apply for probation, but with no assurance that they will get it.

Two Allowed to Seek Probation.

Those sent to prison were Joseph Martinez, 245 West 24th street; Samuel Guarisco, 2341 Wentworth avenue; Nick Puccio, 2435 Wentworth avenue, and Frank Nardi, 245 West 24th place, all 15 years old, and Ignacio Elizable, 17, of 2411 Wentworth avenue. All save Nardi were sentenced to concurrent terms of one to twenty years for robbery and one to five years for attempted robbery. Nardi got one to five years.

The two who were allowed to apply for probation were Joseph Saverino, 15, of 2510 Wentworth avenue, and Leo Cuicco, 16, of 261 West 24th place.

Street Car Men Robbed.

Under the law it would be possible for the state parole board to turn any or all of the five boys loose after eleven months in prison, but the practice in such cases has been to keep one to twenty year prisoners locked up for five to eight years. With time off for good behavior Martines, Guarisco, Puccio, and Elizable could win their release in slightly less than twelve years without parole. Nardi, who got one to five years, would be eligible to release on good behavior in about three years. It was considered unlikely that he would be paroled before that time under present parole board practices.

The young toughs usually operated after dusk. They would pull the trolley off the wire when a street car slowed for an intersection. Then they would rob the conductor.

SUE WM. M. RYAN TO ACCOUNT FOR $277,710 IN STOCKS

William M. Ryan, founder and president of the Ryan Car company at 13501 Baltimore avenue, is defendant in a suit filed yesterday for an accounting of $277,710 in securities said to have been owned by the company. The suit was brought by Charles M. Bates, federal trustee in bankruptcy for the firm, which is being reorganized under section 77-B of the bankruptcy act.

Bates charged that the company, which manufactures and repairs freight cars and other railroad equipment, authorized Ryan to sell the securities in 1930 to repay a loan. But Ryan reinvested the money in speculative ventures after selling most of the securities, according to the suit, and the company lost.

Ryan said yesterday he believed the charge resulted from a transaction in which he had pledged some of his own securities as collateral for a loan obtained by the company.

MILLION POPPIES RAISE $80,000 FOR AID OF WAR VETS

A million red poppies brightened the lapels of Chicagoans yesterday. The sale far exceeded last year's, Harry A. Sewell, secretary of the Veterans Poppy Day association, said last night. The amount collected by the 10,000 women workers will not be known until late tomorrow, but Mr. Sewell estimated it would approximate $80,000.

The red-petaled flowers, reminiscent of the blossoms that spread a brave blanket over battlefields in France, were made by disabled war veterans. The annual sale is for the benefit of disabled veterans and dependent families of veterans. United in the Poppy Day association are the Grand Army of the Republic, United Spanish War Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, and the American Legion.

3 Accused Young Burglars Are Held to Grand Jury

Judge J. M. Braude yesterday held three young men to the grand jury in bonds of $15,000 each on charges of burglary. Police charged they stole $900 worth of gasoline from filling stations. They were arrested Friday in a station at 5283 Elston avenue. The prisoners are Harvey Hedden, 18 years old, 5042 Winthrop avenue; Fred Rost, 17, of 5063 Haddon avenue, and Fred Dillon, 19, of 4805 Winthrop avenue.

Epitaph.

"When I die," Chester Albright told the youngest of his three daughters recently, "I want a plain tombstone with the word Father, followed by three exclamation points. He overheard her telling a friend about it later:

"Father is so funny. When he dies he wants just a plain tombstone with Father written on it and three question marks after it."

Cuff Notes.

Miss Lupe Velez, who prays agitatedly in a corner of her dressing room before going on to do her turn at Chez Paree, like a bull fighter before entering the arena, considers nine her lucky number. She wanted a hotel apartment on the ninth floor, and would consider 19, if necessary. Two nines in the number would be still better. She finally is established in 904-5 at the Blackstone and very happy about it.

Summer-is-on-the-way notes: The woman who yearly has lots of green boxes planted with flowers on her roof, near the L tracks north of the Larrabee station, has just removed the dead foliage of last year and replanted for the season, with colorful seed packages on fresh sticks in the boxes as guides. Syrian Son-in-Law Trouble.

Dr. C. W. McEwan, field director of the Oriental institute's expedition in North Syria, has brought the records and files of his expedition back to Chicago. Included is a letter from Hadji Ahmed Medeni, "tenant and manager" of the Grande Hotel d'Amerique in Aleppo, who wrote on behalf of his son-in-law, Huseyn Djavid:

Dear Sir: I am sure that the admission of Huseyn Djavid, my son in law, to your service has been by the consequence of the mercy and benevolence of your Highness, and for your kindness we are all grateful. But I did not at all emagine that after nine years' service and after your permission of his marriage, he could be put out of his employment and would be victime to misery. Since 5 months, I have undertaken the expenses of his family in spite of my unableness and putting myself under debt. . . .

It is not necessary to tell you that the duty of great persons is to forgive his employes, to conceal their faults, and to manage them with clemence, if some times it is necessary to warn and to punish them for improvement, it will not be according to your tender conscience to expell them and to extinguish a hearth of a family, but to save them under the wings of your kindness and pity.

I am hopeful that again you will deal according to your fine character and greatness, and you will let me know your grace and pardon and give satisfaction to my present petition.

Waiting to your most favorable answer, I remain very respectfully yours . . .

All Ages Like the New Dresses for Graduation

BY RHEA SEEGER.

June graduates and their rather bewildered parents are cheering with relief. Graduating dresses are so cleverly designed that all parties are satisfied . . . and that's something of a record.

The buying parent will no doubt look with approval on picturesque gowns of almost forgotten demure charm. Graduation dresses are miracles of youthful freshness, without any hint of slinky sophistication. Short sleeves, lovely feminine silhouettes, charming square cut necklines, and small, neat waistlines in exquisitely sheer cottons make them practically flawless models.

The younger set will approve the wide, wide full skirts, the rows of lace, the tucking, the flounces, the crisp embroideries and the glamorous flavor of every single find. They'll like the old fashioned new fashion of cross-bar organdy, the sheer loveliness of dotted swiss trimmed with yards of white rickrack braid, the exciting organdies with literally miles of narrow Val lace . . . the extra perfect affairs trimmed with snow white grosgrain ribbon and the stunning dresses made of luxury alluring eyelet embroidery.

New long sleeved finds are spotlight stealers of this season's showings. They have that very feminine, flattering look. Most of them are shirred into exceedingly narrow band cuffs. The skirts of these are also cut with a wide flare around the ankles but smoothly fitted over the hips. Fine lace, wide and narrow, alternate bands of swiss embroidery and lace insertion, very full ruffles, tucking and handwork all combine to make the present showings of graduating dresses the most appealing models ever unpacked.

Fashion photograph . . . classic tennis outfit featuring the tennis dress with an extremely flared short skirt. Sleekly tailored in popcorn white sharkskin, such details as notched collar, tie belt and a perfectly cut top without sleeves all add smooth comfort and eye appeal. The sunshade and striped flannel blazer complete the ensemble. Satin lastex shorts are worn under the skirt.

Reveal Details for Festival at Ravinia Park

BY JUDITH CASS.

RAVINIA Park and petunias are associated in every one's mind almost as closely as Ravinia Park and good music. Every season for years and years beds of the gay little flowers have contributed color to the setting for the north shore's concert series. Renslow P. Sherer of the Ravinia Festival association, "vice chairman in charge of petunias," as he described himself yesterday at a luncheon at the Casino, assured the guests that the usual beds would be filled with blooming plants by the night of the opening concert, Thursday, June 29.

The luncheon guests were the men and women who help to make the Ravinia season possible by raising the guaranty fund and by selling coupon books. Howell W. Murray, guaranty fund chairman, presided in the absence from the city of the president of the association, Percy B. Eckhart. Mr. Murray told the good news that the fund of $40,000 needed to back the season is almost complete. Francis M. Knight, program chairman, announced the names of the conductors for this summer. Sir Adrian Boult, musical director of the British Broadcasting company orchestra, will conduct during the first two weeks; Vladimir Golschmann, conductor of the St. Louis Symphony orchestra, will lead the Chicago Symphony orchestra during the third and fourth weeks, and Artur Rodzinski, conductor of the Cleveland orchestra, will appear as guest conductor during the last two weeks.

First Chicago Visit for British Conductor.

Sir Adrian will be paying his first visit to Chicago. He is coming to this country to conduct the New York Philharmonic orchestra in two British concerts at the New York Fair on June 9 and 10. He has been in this country before, however, for in 1934 he conducted the Boston Symphony and the General Motors orchestra and last season he led Toscanini's radio orchestra after the latter had finished his engagement. Josef Hoffman, pianist, will appear as soloist at Ravinia on the first Friday and Saturday night, June 30 and July 1.

Emanuel Fuermann, cellist, will be the soloist during Golschmann's régime as conductor, appearing on Saturday night, July 15, and the next afternoon. Golschmann conducted at Ravinia in 1937. Rodzinski, too, is known to Ravinia audiences, for he was here last summer. He will choose the soloist to appear with him.

Each Town to Have Ticket Salesman.

As important as are the conductors to the success of the Ravinia festival, they are no more so than those hard working persons who, by disposing of thousands of coupon books, insure large audiences. John Eugene Davis, ticket chairman, announced those who will be in charge of ticket sales in the various north shore towns.

Mrs. Walter R. Knupfer is Wilmette chairman; Mrs. T. Weller Kimball, Kenilworth; Mrs. Ernst Von Ammon, Winnetka; Mrs. Dwight C. Orcutt, Glencoe; Mrs. Henry Getz and Robert A. Gosling, Highland Park; Miss Juliette Brown, Lake Bluff; Mrs. Rush E. Husse, Waukegan; Mrs. Ewing T. Webb, Lake Forest, and Mrs. Gilbert Smith, Evanston.

Stores and banks in the loop and along the north shore also will sell coupon books. Sales headquarters is in room 1522, 231 South La Salle street. A book, costing $10, represents a saving of $3.50, for each one includes eighteen coupons, each of which is good for a 75 cent admission to the park or a 75 cent reserved seat at any regular concert. The sale closes July 2.

[Tribune Studio Photo.]

This tennis outfit is of popcorn white tailored sharkskin. The dress is cut with a flared short skirt worn over satin lastex shorts. The top is sleeveless, cut with a notched collar, and is wide in the back for action. Sun shade of white and a brilliantly striped flannel blazer complete the ensemble.

Through the Looking Glass

How would you like a bright, brisk red nail polish? No blue in it for a change, no hazy tone to dim its brilliance. The newest shade one of the famous houses has brought out is a Polynesian red—six times redder than the reddest rose—clear and true and rich. It's a wonderful change from the shades we've been seeing and it's just what you want for your spring clothes.

It's beautiful, as you might expect, with navy. And with black, and slate grays and whites. It's frankly a gypsy red and not for ultra conservatives. It was created, as a matter of fact, for wear with the gypsy colors that are so popular now.

The quality of this polish is excellent. It is a cream polish but not so thick in the bottle that it doesn't spread easily. And it lasts very well.

If you're faithful to the red with blue undertones this same house has a polish that's sensational. It's in three intensities of the same lovely shade, which is a little on the plum side. One is a smoky, conservative, lightish interpretation of the color. Another is a little deeper and the third is deep as can be. We love the last—and two coats are stunning.

The dark polishes, you might like to know, are more and more popular. The most timid women are adopting them. And more and more women are coating the nail completely, not even leaving moons at the base for color relief.

We advise all women to be open minded about deep polish shades. Don't just sneer at the idea—and for goodness sake give them a try at least occasionally.

and ACE, the Wonder Dog.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

The world is full of those who love dogs and stories about dogs. To these, despite flaws in the story, "Almost a Gentleman" will be a gratifying picture. Because its hero is a noble animal that triumphs over tremendous odds and proves again that "dog is man's best friend."

Far be it from me to give you the complete lowdown on this movie. To detail the yarn would be to rob you of the suspense you must experience if you are properly to enjoy the film. . . . But I CAN tell you that "Picardy Bob" [was it "Bob"?—I think so] is accused of murder, brought to trial and almost sentenced to death when—

The "when" is what provides the photoplay with its punch.

The canine here is a beautifully trained shepherd dog that causes you to remember wistfully the exploits of Rin Tin Tin. He carries his rôle with ease the while engaging your affection and arousing your championship.

The humans in the cast do well with no very great shakes in the way of opportunity, and the same may be said of the director.

Because it isn't very long, and because of the charm and ability of its hero, "Almost a Gentleman" proves a consistent interest holder.

"NEW HORIZONS."

Directed by Gregory Kozintsev and Leonid Trauberg.
Presented at the Sonotone theater.

The Sonotone's current propagandic film is a sequel to "The Youth of Maxim." It features Boris Chirkov who appeared in the earlier movie.

The story revolves around the building of the U. S. S. R. and Maxim has become commissar of the government bank. As before, his sweetheart, Natasha, is by his side. She now is chairman of the Vyborg district soviet in Petrograd.

"Where Is Thy Sting?"

Hollywood, Cal., May 23.—Actors, actresses and directors will tell you that there are three types of scenes always sure-fire, [1] a death scene, [2] a courtroom scene, [3] a scene with a baby. . . . Of them all, performers prefer death scenes. . . . In "Good-Bye, Mr. Chips," Robert Donat got his crack at one of them. . . . In "Dark Victory" Bette Davis peaked her grand performance by dying. . . . In "Jaurez" Brian Aherne faces a firing squad and says: "Please give my money to the men—and tell them to aim at my heart."

In "Test Pilot" Spencer Tracy almost stole the flicker from Gable and Myrna Loy by doing a death scene. . . . Veteran Thomas Mitchell did not have much of a part in "Only Angels Have Wings," but he compensated for it in a death scene that every actor envies—he chased everybody out of the room while he cashed in his chips. . . . In "Algiers" Charles Boyer died on the dock, shot down by one of Calleia's men. . . . Gary Cooper strengthened his dramatic position in films by death scenes in "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" and "The Plainsman."

"Stage Door" made Andrea Leeds a star in a death scene that was reminiscent of "Maedchen in Uniform." . . . John Garfield died in "Four Daughters," asking Priscilla Lane for a cigaret. . . . Annabella's most important United States picture was "Suez," and the reason: She died in the simoom trying to save Tyrone Power.

Alice Brady won an academy award as a supporting player because of the prairie grave scene in "In Old Chicago." . . . The picture that made Edward G. Robinson was "Little Cæsar," with its stirring death scene when Robinson is shot down behind a billboard by police tommyguns. . . . George Arliss topped off his performance in "House of Rothschild" by a deathbed scene. . . . In "Three Comrades" Margaret Sullavan yanked at the heart strings with the death scene in the sanitarium. . . . R-K-O didn't give Sam Jaffee, as "Gunga Din," much of a part in that picture, but Sam evened up in the big death scene.

Leslie Howard and Humphrey Bogart made "Petrified Forest" a memorable emotional experience when Bogart, in response to Howard's pleas, kills him at the last curtain. . . . In "Angels with Dirty Faces" Cagney's death in the electric chair was the big sock scene of the melodrama.

Norma Shearer did very handsomely by herself in the guillotine scene of "Marie Antoinette," one reel after Robert Morley almost stole the picture in his farewell scene with the children. . . . "Farewell to Arms" found Helen Hayes dying.

Don Ameche hit a double jackpot, not only dying in "Ramona" but doing a repeat in "In Old Chicago." . . . Highlight of "Jesse James" was the scene in which Tyrone Power was shot down by John Carradine's accomplice.

Death scenes can be handled in a variety of fashions, but Director Lewis Milestone did it in "All Quiet on the Western Front," in the scene that made Lew Ayres over night. . . . Ayres, dying, reaches out to release a butterfly pinioned on the barbed wire. . . . Garbo had "Camille," for which all actresses point their careers, and in addition she had "Queen Christina" and "Mata Hari."

In "Broadway Bill" the horse died, just as Black Gold did in racing history. . . . One of Walter Huston's greatest scenes was at the grave of Ann Rutledge in "Abraham Lincoln." . . . Despite the amazing antics of that seal in "Spawn of the North," George Raft won equal billing in the trade papers by strapping himself to the tiller of Tamiroff's fishing skiff and plunging it to an icy death.

Cecil B. De Mille has played death to a fare-thee-well, and in "Union Pacific" Robert Preston had one death scene and Barbara Stanwyck and Bill Lundigan had another. . . . Two deaths is hardly par for the De Mille dramatic course, because he has thrown Christians to the lions, and in "Buccaneer" he wiped out a whole regiment of British regulars. . . . England took out the scene, London resenting the inference that British regulars were mowed down by a band of swamp bandits.

In "Fury" Spencer Tracy burned to death. . . . In "Rasputin" John Barrymore clubbed Lionel to death. . . . In "A Free Soul" Lionel won the academy award by dying after his speech to the jury. . . . In "The Rains Came" Myrna Loy will die.

Both on the stage and on the screen death is the No. 1 scene stealer of them all, because Victor Herbert's "Sweet Mystery of Life" is not so compelling as the grim mystery of death.

The River Bend Feud

By William MacLeod Raine

(Copyright: 1939: By William MacLeod Raine.)

SYNOPSIS.

Jeff Hunter, an American mining engineer, awaits execution in a Mexican jail by order of Pancho Banderas, rebel leader. A peon friend helps him escape to Texas. Jeff meets Joan Raleigh, lost in the vastness of her feudal estate, and assists her home. He meets her brothers, Bill and Phil, and Phil's wife, Mary Lou. When they learn Jeff went to college with their cousin, Raeburn, he is invited to be their guest. An old feud against the Raleighs is being renewed under the leadership of Butler Lane, suspected of poisoning their aunt, his wife, and forging her will. Banderas, routed from Mexico, has joined Lane. Jeff offers to try to make peace with the better element, and with Jim Williams, starts for the ranch of Carl Nielsen. They are pursued and fired on by Banderas and his men, but manage to reach the Nielsen ranch. Banderas and his men appear. Jeff disarms the bandit and his men. Nielsen is shocked by the outlaws. The feud has prevented a romance between beautiful Olga Nielsen and Bill Raleigh. Next morning Nielsen leaves with Jeff for a conference with Phil Raleigh. Joan and Phil are missing—kidnaped in their own plane and made the prisoners of Banderas. Jeff, Jim Williams and Raeburn Raleigh trail Lane Butler to the ranch of his ally, Rannigan. When Butler leaves Jeff confronts Rannigan and is forced to shoot one of the gangster guards. He forces Rannigan to lead them to the kidnaper's hideout.

INSTALMENT XXXIII.

DEATH THREATS.

Phil saw, in memory, a picture of Pancho Banderas' little greedy cruel eyes as they had watched Joan. It would not do to wait too long. But he did not tell her so. Perhaps she did not need to be told.

He shook his head. "No, I'll make a deal . . . give him what I have to give . . . if he'll meet my conditions."

"What conditions?"

"One is that you are to be taken safely home at once."

"No," she protested. "Not without you."

"Yes." His steady frosty eyes held fast to hers. "This is no business for a woman. I'll make Lane see that. He'd be a fool to hold you. All Texas would be on his neck."

"I'd be safer here with you than with those he would appoint to take me home. Don't you see, Phil? This Pancho would be one of them."

"No," he cried harshly. "Lane would never dare do that."

"Do you think Pancho is taking orders from Lane?" she scoffed. "He never has taken any from others, not since he left the reservation and started raiding. Pancho would do as he pleased. I'm afraid of that man, Phil. I'm just a woman to him, like those Mexican women he seized and took away on his raids. But here in camp with you . . . and with others, even men like Fidler . . . there's a check on him. He can't run completely wild."

Phil paced from one corner of the hut to another. Joan was right, as far as Pancho was concerned. If he had a hand in taking her home she would get there only when it suited him. But Lane would see that, too. To save his own skin he would have to protect her from the bandit. He could arrange to send her back to River Bend at a time when Pancho was in town.

"I'll talk with Lane," he said. "Scoundrel and villain though he is, the fellow has sense enough to know that no harm must come to you. That would defeat his purpose." Black bitter anger and self-contempt surged up in Raleigh. "I'm a fine leader for our side. I let Lane trap me before we've even started to fight. As soon as one of his thugs throws a gun down on me I give up meekly and let him take me prisoner."

"Don't be silly, Phil," Joan said. "You would have reached for your gun fast enough if he hadn't been pointing his weapon at me. What else could you do?"

"I don't know. Of course it never occurred to me they would have the nerve to try to capture me on one of our own places. But that doesn't excuse me. I should have known Lane better, remembered how wily and audacious he is. As it is, I've let him make a fool of me."

Joan comforted him as best she could. She made light of his distress with cheerful talk, an occasional sparkle of gayety in it. This was adventure. One day soon they would look back on it as a spot of high excitement in lives altogether too drab.

"When Jeff was waiting for Pancho to shoot him at Los Portales, I don't suppose he exactly enjoyed it," she said. "But I'll bet he is glad now he went through the experience. Of course he was in a really desperate plight and we're not. All we have to do is to say, 'Help yourself to what you want, dear Uncle Butler,' and we'll turn us loose. It's a little humiliating, but we don't have to paw up the ground about it."

"Jeff worked his own way out of the jam he was in," Phil answered gloomily.

"With some help from outside," Joan reminded him. "When you have your tail in a crack, you can't get it out until some one pries open the door a little. That's what our friends are going to do."

It was dark outside, though later the moon would be up. Through the open space that had been a window they could see stars come out.

They waited in the sod cabin for many hours. It was midnight when they heard the sounds of horses moving, of voices raised in question and answer, of footsteps approaching the hut.

The door was flung open.

A voice called, "Come on out of there."

The prisoners walked out into the open, and a mocking voice greeted them. "My dear nephew and niece, it is good of you to drop down into our poor camp for a visit. I hope I find you both well and happy."

Butler Lane was a sleek dark man, slender and nonchalant in bearing, with arrogant shoulders and a light elastic tread. His short curly hair was completely white, but the massaged face beneath it had scarcely a line of age. Out of doubt he was handsome, with a touch of the grand duke about him fascinating to many women. His thin lips were like a steel trap, the eyes swift and piercing. He might be an unscrupulous charlatan, but he seemed a competent one.

Phil looked at him out of cold contemptuous eyes. "I've been expecting you," he said.

"Ah! Then I haven't disappointed you. It is good to have such pleasant family welcome." The derisive smile that flashed into the man's face without warming the chill eyes was feline in its quality. "We must all work together in friendly concord. Don't you think so, dear Joan?"

"I think you are the vilest man I ever met," she answered in her soft throaty voice, yet somehow with the singing sting of a rawhide whip in it.

He raised his soft palms in protest. "Still impulsive and extravagant, dear child, and under the circumstances . . . indiscreet."

"Why did you bring us here?" demanded Phil. "What do you want?"

"But I didn't bring you here, dear boy, though of course I'm always glad to see you." He added, cheerfully: "I expect to spend a good deal of my time at the River Bend in future. It is not good for us to be so far apart."

"I asked a question. What is it you want with me?"

"A more cordial entente. A recognition of me as the head of the family. To be quite blunt, a very different division of the spoils."

"Since bluntness is what you want, I'll mention that you are an unmitigated scoundrel and a callous villain."

"Don't mind my feelings," Lane said blandly. "Free your mind. I'll put it all in the bill."

"You can't get away with this," Phil told him quietly. "We're too strong for you . . . have too many friends in high places. The state will take a hand. So will Washington. You'll be hounded down like a wolf."

"Interesting, if true," purred Lane, with his cat-and-canary smile. "And may I ask, merely for information, who will be the witnesses against me?"

The Raleighs understood the inference. He could not have said more plainly that dead men—and women—tell no tales. There were a thousand places in the jungle swamps where bodies could be sunk and hidden till the day of judgment.

Phil's gaze swept the half circle of faces that ringed him and his sister. Not one of them could have read fear in the stony face, the close-gripped jaw, or the thrust of the salient chin. None the less the heart died under his ribs. He might as well have brought Joan into a pack of wolves. Whitey the dope—the other gunmen standing with blank evil faces tc the right and left of their leader . . . Pancho, close to the girl, his glittering hungry eyes fixed on her . . . Mallow and Sowder, minor villains in a plot moving swiftly out of their control. There was no hope in any of them.

Don't Correct Teen Age Child When in Public

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Just how tactful are you in correcting your adolescent sons and daughters? And just how much do you refrain from ever correcting them in public, or even before any one outside the immediate family?

"They act like that," said a girl of 17 about some 15 year olders being smart-alecky at their monthly formal, "because they're not sure of themselves—sorta scared. They'll get over it." Pretty discerning, I thought. She was close enough to them in age and experience to understand them.

It's a fact a lot of us parents should know, and that knowledge should make us tolerant. But I was talking about correcting these boys and girls of ours—or even of calling them down in public—as I saw one father do not long ago.

Humiliation is one of the most painful emotions, and particularly for the boy and girl in their teens. They are supersensitive at that time because they are not sure of themselves in their new rôle in the world, and are yet extremely conscious of themselves as people. They have had no time in which to learn imperviousness, and not enough experience to teach them how to grow a protective shell. They, being only part child, are still treated as children, and so because of these factors they have no defense when they are humiliated by a grown person in public.

I do not mean by this to imply that even younger children's feelings can be disregarded in situations where correction has to be administered before people. But they are living in a different world at 7 than they are at 15, and one can whisper to a little boy in public, "Take off your hat, son," or before guests to a little girl, "Don't interrupt, Jane," without their minding it as they will in their adolescent days.

Spellman Installed as Head of Catholic Church in New York

New York, May 23.—[Special.]—In an impressive ceremony, the most Rev. Francis Joseph Spellman was installed today as the sixth archbishop of New York, the spiritual leader of 1,000,000 Roman Catholics in the metropolitan area.

The ceremony, dignified by the richness and splendor of the age-old ritual of the church, took place in Manhattan's St. Patrick's cathedral on Fifth avenue. It was crowded to capacity, while outside thousands of others lined the streets and listened to the service by means of amplifiers. Overcast skies and threats of rain failed to cut the size of the crowd.

The service, which lasted more than two hours, began with a long and solemn procession into the dimly lighted cathedral. It included the enthronement of the new archbishop and the service of the obedience, in which the clergy filed to the throne to kiss the archbishop's ring in pledge of their obedience and loyalty and devotion.

Only the families and most intimate friends have received invitations from Mr. and Mrs. James McHenry Hopkins to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Kay Sawyer Goodman, to Garfield King. The wedding will take place on Saturday, June 10, at 4:30 o'clock in the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest. A few more friends have been invited to the reception following at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins.

Miss Goodman will have two matrons of honor, her sister, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey Jr., and Miss Betty Armour, who will become Mrs. Gerald V. Hollins on June 3. The bridesmaids will be the bridegroom's subdeb nieces, Ginevra and Marjorie Mitchell [cousins, not sisters]; Miss Betty Mead, Miss Mary Adams, Miss Mary Gardner, and subdeb Shirley Hopkins, Mr. Hopkins' granddaughter.

Plan Only Two Prenuptial Parties.

Howard F. Gilette Jr. will be best man for the only son of the Charles Garfield Kings, and ushering will be three New York friends, Peter Grace, Huntington Smith, and Thomas Stockhausen, and young Mr. Dewey, Mr. Hollins, Chauncey K. Hutchins, Gordon Palmer, Michael Cudahy, Robert H. McCormick III., Joseph E. Rich, and Joseph T. Ryerson Jr.

Miss Goodman is not having any prenuptial parties except a bridal dinner and a dinner-dance that her fiancé's three sisters, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. Clarence Mitchell, and Mrs. John I. Shaw, will give at the Onwentsia club following the Hollins-Armour wedding.

The bridal dinner will be given the night before the King-Goodman wedding by Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins at their week-end house on Insull Lake in Wauconda. Only the families will attend this party for the house is a small one. Mr. King and his bride will live in Chicago.

Set St. Luke's Fashion Show for Oct. 17.

At the first meeting of the committee that will manage St. Luke's 1939 fashion show the date was set for Oct. 17. As usual, the show will be given in the afternoon and again in the evening in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

Bathroom Set Is Easily Crocheted from Rug Woolens

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Rug wools and heavy fourfold knitting worsted have been enjoying a busy season since women have discovered how beautifully these yarns adapt themselves to household items. The crocheted bath rug and seat cover are an easy and simple crochet job and require little time to make. These are the most utilitarian and durable items ever designed, and sets which may be laundered frequently without fading.

One Pattern for Accessories

BLOUSES AND JACKETS.

There's only one pattern, but it is the means of creating a good many accessories for your late spring and early summer wardrobe.

At the top, three versions of the blouse mode, all in the cardigan spirit. None has a collar, buttons are used on two, and buckles or bowknots on the other. The more tailored blouses use twin pockets high on the bodice, and the other omits them. All types of silks, cottons, linens, and sheer woolens make up well.

At the bottom, a trio of boleros to dress up your simple basic frocks. Two of them are cut away at the hemline, and the other is square. Two have no collars, but the other has a rolled one extending well down the front of the model. Pockets, if you like them, and matching sashes, too. For these accessories use any type of colorful silk, cotton, or linen.

Style No. 3166 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

The main course of this quick dinner is prepared in one skillet. Thick slices of bologna, sliced sweet potatoes, canned or cooked, and fresh or canned sauerkraut are arranged neatly in a buttered pan, and sautéed until hot and lightly browned.

While the dinner course thus cooks itself, cornmeal muffins are popped into a hot oven, and salad and dessert are constructed. In short order the whole meal is ready for the table. And it's a good meal.

Jewish Charities Launch Drive to Raise $400,000

The Jewish Charities of Chicago launched a campaign yesterday to raise $400,000 to make up a deficit in the organization's $1,500,000 budget for 1939. Several hundred workers for the organization, which conducts most of the Jewish charitable work in the city, met in the Standard club. Charles Aaron is general chairman of the campaign. Samuel A. Goldsmith, executive director of the Jewish Charities, was one of the speakers.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Some of the traps laid by wily declarers are so well disguised that only the most seasoned campaigners can avoid them. Others, however, are so flimsy that a bunny should be able to escape them. No self-respecting bunny would have been as naïve as East was in the following deal:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ A 4
♦ A K Q J 6

WEST
♠ Q 10
♥ 10 7 5

SOUTH

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 spade | Pass | 3 diamonds | Pass |
| 3 spades | Pass | 4 no trump | Pass |
| 5 hearts | Pass | 6 spades | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

There were two points in the above bidding that were questionable. North, with a solid diamond suit and a total count of four honor tricks [including plus values] was correct in his original jump take-out and also in his use of the 4-5 no trump convention. It is a close point whether South should have rebid his spade suit on the second round, or whether he should have mentioned the hearts. True, a six card suit should almost invariably be rebid before a four card suit is mentioned for the first time, but in this case South's six card suit was rather anæmic, whereas his four card heart suit was very impressive. Be that as it may, there would have been no difficulty if North's final action had been more logical. Granting that he did not want to play a minor suit contract in match point scoring, nevertheless he had a better bid than six spades over five hearts. He should have bid five, or even six, no trump at this point.

The above, however, is academic; the fact is that South was saddled with a six spade contract and, not unnaturally, wanted to bring it home. West opened the club ace and, after taking a look at dummy and his partner's "come-on" signal, the eight spot, continued with clubs. Dummy's king was played, declarer discarding a diamond, and then declarer called time out while he went into a huddle.

The most optimistic of players hardly could have viewed the situation with any pleasure. The Q-J-10 and two other spades were missing, and nothing short of a major miracle could prevent the loss of a trump trick. After some thought, declarer decided to engineer the miracle and try to get the opponents to execute it for him. He left the trump suit severely alone and started to run diamonds. On the second round, he discarded his heart jack, and when the third was played, East rushed to the rescue. He ruffed the diamond queen with a vehemence that virtually shouted: "You'll do no more discarding on this suit! If, through accident, East had happened to choose the jack of trumps as his ruffing card, his team would have lost nothing but, needless to say, he used a small trump. Declarer promptly overruffed and then, breathing a silent prayer, led a low spade to the ace and back to his king. Great was the fall thereon! The defensive trump trick vanished much more quickly than the snows of yesteryear, and the contract was home.

I don't like to insult readers' intelligence by going too deeply into this matter, but for the sake of just a few, perhaps I should point out why East should not have ruffed the third lead of diamonds. It should have been completely obvious that declarer was not really trying to discard losers on the diamond suit. If that had been his plan, he first would have drawn trumps to prevent a defender's ruffing in. Although the declarer did the best he could under the circumstances, his trap was necessarily made of cobwebs and East had to be a very small fly to become enmeshed.

Their Escorts Too Courteous; Girls Wonder

BY DORIS BLAKE.
[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"We are three attractive girls who were introduced to three handsome and perfect gentlemen, and we mean 'perfect.' Their only vice is smoking, apparently.

"In the short time that we have known them said young men have never made any advances toward us. They've never tried to kiss us, not even good-night. For goodness sake, they won't even hold our hands. Yet they cater to our slightest whims too willingly. They are punctual in calling for us and bring us home at a too respectable hour. So, we write you in dead earnest, to ask you if they are on the level, or just wolves in sheep's clothing. Our parents say that they are too good to be true.

"Should we drop them while the dropping is good, or shall we continue to share their dull, unromantic company? And will you please be human enough, Miss Blake, to publish this letter in the hope that these boys will read it and come to their senses? "THREE SMART GIRLS."

Your signature confuses us, ladies! You're sure it shouldn't be "Three Smarty Girls"? You wouldn't be fooling us, making up your yarn just to see if it would make this column? We suspect you mostly because of the comment attached to your parents. We doubt if any parents would make such a remark.

But if you are in earnest, as you write you are, we think there's something wrong with you young women and not with the boys.

The Housewife

Here's a clever little helper for the person who likes to mix drinks. It's a handy silver metal jigger measure that is also a stopper. The cork part with the tiny tube inserted in it goes into the top of a bottle. Then, when you wish a few drops they are poured into the little cup which is attached to the cork at the side. Not a drop is wasted. And this insures accuracy of measurement.

Miss Howe Honored for Work on School Festival

The High School Music Teachers' club gave a dinner at the Medinah club last night for Miss Helen Howe, director of public school music. The dinner was in recognition of Miss Howe's work in organizing the high school music festival held March 28-30. # Music Events

Hannah Shaykin, pianist, played Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Liszt, Brahms and a modern group in Kimball hall last night. Her performance had consistent aliveness. Some items, notably the Tcherepnine bagatelles and the minuet in the Beethoven sonata, were marked by nice effects of color and tempo.

A friendly audience applauded throughout the evening, compelling a repetition of Edward Collins' "Cowboy's Breakdown," and thus obtaining another opportunity to hear that great glissando squeal toward the end.

Miss Shaykin might work for a rounder, more luminous tone and for a greater general suavity. Often she mars her playing by overly heavy accents and by taut, nervous rhythmic eccentricities.

Samuel Sorin, long a music student in Chicago and for some time an usher at Orchestra hall, has won the national federation of music club's prize. He will receive $1,000, as well as an opportunity to appear with the New York Philharmonic and the Philadelphia orchestras.

The De La Salle Concert band will present concerts in Orchestra hall tonight and tomorrow. Assisting are the glee clubs of St. George, St. Mel, and St. Patrick high schools.—E. B.

'Temperament' Merely Temper, Asserts Diva

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.
[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Temperament is only bad temper," says the distinguished soprano, Margaret Speaks.

"Any one who wants to succeed in anything in this world must curb his temperament [or temper], and certainly a singer has to. No artist can afford to give way to a display of it," says this young woman who has sung the world over.

She insists that her career has been built upon curbing the urge to burst into tantrums. She has learned from the time she was 5, when she threw her bread, jelly side down, on the home carpet, and found she was only making an idiot of herself by giving way to temperament.

Miss Speaks does not believe that a singer should be granted any more privileges in hysterical and personal dramatics than is a business man. No really good singer has the time or energy to devote to such nonsense. Besides, outbursts of the sort ruin the physical appearance, show an individual up in her ugliest light, and age her as nothing else does. Which, Miss Speaks thinks, should be reason enough for temper control among women, at least.

For our purposes here it is Miss Speaks' comments about lack of temper control making a woman appear in her least flattering light that should be considered, and that women actually do age in these dire moments which can just as well be controlled.

DAY WINS IN EIGHTH; MONTANEZ SUFFERS EYE INJURY

CHICAGO BOXER SCORES UPSET IN GARDEN RING

7,122 Cheer Davey in Comeback.

Fight Decisions

At Houston, Tex.—Johnny Barbara beat Tiger Pelon [10]; Gene Spencer stopped Sammy Musco [8].

New York, May 23.—[Special.]—Davey Day, Chicago welterweight, recently defeated by Champion Henry Armstrong in a battle for the welterweight crown in Madison Square Garden, fought his way back into title consideration in the same ring tonight when he scored a technical knockout over Pedro Montanez of Porto Rico in the eighth round of a scheduled ten round bout. Day weighed 137 pounds and Montanez 144¾.

It was Montanez's first setback in sixteen starts and the first time he ever had been stopped.

The end came after 2 minutes, 37 seconds of the round had elapsed when Referee Frank Fullam halted the proceedings because of a deep cut over Montanez's left eye. The crowd of 7,122 saw Day rally gamely after taking severe punishment in the early rounds, and Davey's victory, although not the result of a knockout punch, was a popular one.

Physician Makes Ruling.

Referee Fullam sought the professional opinion of Dr. William Walker, physician for the New York commission, before ending the show. Dr. Walker decided, after examining the Porto Rican, that it would be dangerous for him to continue.

The blow which opened the wound over Montanez's eye came in the second round. It was a short right which caught Pedro off balance.

Day did his best work at long range, bouncing a number of rights off Pedro's jaw but the Porto Rican, kept charging in in his attempts to pound Day's body.

Many ringside observers believed Day was holding his own going into the decisive eighth round. Several who scored the punching, round by round, credited each battler with three rounds of the first seven and called the other one even.

Result Was an Upset.

The verdict in Day's favor was a distinct upset, inasmuch as he was the shortender in the betting at 3 to 1 before the fight.

Gross receipts were $14,073.

Tony Zale of Chicago, Day's stablemate, defeated Ernest [Babe] Orgovan, Houston middleweight, in a spirited six round battle. Zale's persistent use of a long left to the head earned him the award over the Texan, who did his best work at close quarters. The winner weighed 161 pounds and the loser 160.

In the semi-final, listed for six rounds, Irving Eldridge of the Bronx received credit for a knockout victory over Pat Foley, Worcester lightweight. The situation was similar to that in the main bout, Referee Artie McGovern stopping the action after the second round had ended because Foley had a cut right eye.

DUROCHER FINES POFFENBERGER $400; BANS HIM

Cincinnati, O., May 23.—[Special.]—Cletus Elwood Poffenberger, Brooklyn Dodger pitcher, is in trouble again. The eccentric right hander today was fined $400 by Manager Leo Durocher and indefinitly suspended without pay. Poffenberger was fined $200 for insubordination and another $200 for remaining out of the team's hotel until 3 a. m.

Poffenberger refused to go to the Reds' park this afternoon. He remained in the hotel lobby. He said: "I know I'm stubborn, but I'm not going to the game."

Said Manager Durocner:

"When Poffenberger didn't show up at 1 o'clock this afternoon, the time all players are supposed to report, I held a meeting and announced to the players I fined Poffenberger $200 for being late. That was an act of insubordination. I then fined him another $200 and suspended him for not coming into the hotel until 3 o'clock this morning."

BAER, AT 30, GETS LAST BIG CHANCE AND HE KNOWS IT

He's Keyed Up to Beat Nova, but Can He Do It?

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ferndale, N. Y., May 23.—Max Baer, at 30 years of age, is preparing for what he considers to be his most important campaign in the ring. Logically, it is most important because it will be Baer's last unless he can whip young Lou Nova a week from Thursday evening in Yankee stadium.

The result of this bout, which is expected to lead to a match with Champion Joe Louis, if the Bomber disposes of Tony Galento according to specification later next month, will be determined by [1] has Baer the desire to win and [2] will Baer be able to regain physical condition necessary to win?

Baer's a Lucky Fellow.

Max is emphatic in his assertion that he wants to whip Nova, knock him out if possible, and win a return match with Louis. It would be strange indeed if Baer didn't wish to win now that he has been given one more opportunity. Nothing in his record since his humiliating defeat by Louis nearly four years ago has warranted such a gift, unless you count his victory in New York over Tommy Farr.

Baer said today that he believes he will be ready for Nova. He argues, not as vociferously as at other training camps, but perhaps more sincerely, that two months of road work and boxing and rigorous living will send him into the ring June 1 better prepared than since the night he knocked out Primo Carnera five years ago.

It's the Same Old Speech.

Baer can't know, and neither can any one else know, exactly the toll he has paid for his span of high living. But many suspect that physically he is older than 30 years. Then, too, Baer's reasons sound more than faintly familiar. Baer is talking as he talked at his cloistered camp near Speculator. Change this beautiful spring of apple blossoms in the Catskills to the chill September of red maples in the Adirondacks and Max would have the background for today's four year old speech.

"I went four rounds with Louis," Max said today, "and these others who have been knocked out in one round—Schmeling, Roper, John Henry Lewis—are heroes because they stayed one round."

There is now one principal difference in Baer's garrulous comment. He isn't talking about Nova and he did talk about Louis for hours before that bout. Evidently Max isn't worried about Nova. He's never seen him fight, but he is convinced Nova can be whipped. Many others agree, for Nova still is inexperienced.

Sparring Partner Belts Max.

Baer boxed six rounds this afternoon under the warm sun in the open arena. He wore a mask to protect a cut on the bridge of his nose which hasn't healed because of daily scuffing. Big Elza Thompson, who sparred the opening two rounds, showed Max more punches and harder clean hits than he can expect to take from Nova and win. Sandy McDonald and George Youssen were the other sparring mates.

Thompson is from Indianapolis and he knocked out Lorenzo Pack as an amateur in 1935. Later amateur officials discovered he had fought professionally and barred him. More recently the Hoosier stopped Alex Kettles. This afternoon Thompson lefthooked Baer enough to have Max fuming at his inability to escape the blows, and then Thompson added, for full measure, at least five crushing rights to the head.

"I can't move my jaws in this thing," he shouted between rounds.

"Fine," Ancil Hoffman retorted from ringside. "We'll have you wear it a couple of hours each day and you won't talk so much."

Lincoln Fields Is Ready for 'They're Off'

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The Lincoln Fields management had a busy time yesterday greeting newly arrived officials, conferring with owners and trainers and making final arrangements for the opening of the Chicago district racing season tomorrow. Meanwhile there was a steady procession of horses from the unloading chute to the barns.

Christopher J. FitzGerald, veteran racing official, arrived from his home in Connecticut, and paid a visit to the track where he will resume his duties as steward representing the commission. This will be his sixth consecutive year in that capacity on Illinois tracks. He had intended to retire at the end of last season, but Chairman Leo Spitz and the other commissioners asked him to reconsider.

Ready for the Betters.

E. A. Weidekamp, supervisor of the mutuel department, also arrived yesterday to check over the totalizator and get everything ready for the big betting crowd that is expected during the early days of the meeting.

Track Superintendent Tom Young reported that the racing strip had dried out well after the week-end showers and will be very fast tomorrow if the weather remains clear. Some horses went six furlongs in 1:15 and others seven-eighths in 1:30 during yesterday's workouts, indicating that the track was in satisfactory condition.

E. F. Woodward and Thomas Piatt will send in several carloads of horses today to make their contribution to the thousand thoroughbreds which are to be ready for action when the twenty-seven day meeting opens. Eleven stake events, each at $2,500, are on the schedule. Three are to be run this week.

Railroads Provide Service.

The Fighter, Silverette, King's Blue, Torchy, Smart Crack, Joe Schenok, and other good performers are entered in tomorrow's feature event, the Crete handicap.

The next stakes are scheduled for Saturday. These will be the Dearborn handicap for 2 year old fillies and the Kankakee handicap for fillies and mares, 3 years old and up.

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad will operate trains directly to the track. The Illinois Central will carry race fans to Homewood, where special buses will be waiting to complete the trip. There will be parking space for several thousand automobiles.

SOX COME FROM BEHIND TO WIN IN 9TH INNING, 5-4

Brown and Lee Rescue Starter Jack Knott.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 23.—Larry Rosenthal, who currently is unhappily assigned to the job of warming a spot on the bench, was summoned for active service this afternoon just as the White Sox were about to be swallowed up by defeat. In the guise of a pinch batter the extra man wrapped a single around some passes and thus built up a two run ninth inning splurge by which the Chicagoans prolonged their sinister influence over the Senators. The score was 5 to 4, making the fifth victory in a row over Washington this season.

Rosenthal's feat not only decided who was going to be who for the day in the victory column but also marked the third time the third place occupants had jumped ahead of the opposition. Jack Knott, who started powerfully strong, was tendered a two run lead in the fourth but it melted into a tie in the sixth. They gave him another edge—one run—in the seventh, but he dropped behind by 4 to 3 before the inning was concluded and that was all the scoring until the last minute touch was applied. But Knott long since had departed.

Haynes Is Good for a While.

Until the ninth the Sox found one Joe Haynes, a 21 year old freshman, was carrying all the tricks of a talented veteran. But he brought his own house of hopes tumbling down on his shoulders when he walked Marvin Owen to start the ninth. This was where Rosenthal came in to hit for Mike Tresh. The switch produced a single to left, Owen tearing to third. Henry Steinbacher, batting for Doc Clint Brown, who saved Knott from additional distress in the seventh and also pitched the eighth, walked and the bags were filled. Pete Appleton came to Haynes' rescue and long sacrifice flies by Ollie Bejma and Joe Kuhel brought home the tying and winning runs.

Knott's pitching was of such a high grade for five innings that two runs looked ample for his first victory of the year. But a homer by Joe Case, the Senators' third hit, after a pass in the sixth erased the two run lead built up by Rip Radcliff, Luke Appling, Mike Kreevich and Owen in the fourth. Then in the seventh, after a single by Bejma had driven the Sox into the lead in their half, Knott wilted under pressure of a pass followed by doubles from Jake Early and Haynes. But Brown did his twelfth rescue act of the season and Thornton Lee took care of matters in the home ninth. Brown got credit for the victory.

The Scoring Starts.

The fourth, which the Sox selected as the spot for a two run rally, began with Walker's infield out, but an infield hit by Radcliff came next. Kreevich slashed a single to right, Radcliff scoring and Appling galloping to third. Appling scored on a twisting single hit to short by Owen. The bases were filled on a pass to to Tresh, but the splurge was halted abruptly by Knott's roller, which grew into a double play.

Knott walked Haynes to open the sixth. Then Case turned loose the drive which rolled into the left field corner before Walker could catch up with it. As Walker's throw-in was reaching Appling in short left, Case was going into third and Coach Clyde Milan flagged him down. Case disregarded the signal and kept going until he had stretched his blow into a homer and tied the score.

After Tresh walked in the fourth there wasn't another Sox member on base until he walked again with one out in the seventh and this gift was nursed into a run. A stray pitched ball which hit Knott in the back

HIGBE CREDITED WITH VICTORY THOUGH ROUTED

Mesner Accounts for Seven Runs.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Walter Kirby Higbe, who hails from Columbia, S. C., yesterday found the 45 degree temperature in Wrigley field much too cool for his hot southern blood, but went far enough in his first starting assignment to get credit for his second victory of the season when the frozen Cubs vanquished the frappéed Boston Bees, 15 to 8.

Walter Kirby was the boy wonder he was expected to be for five innings, but got into trouble in the sixth through hits and a pair of errors by his mates and had to be replaced by Charley Root. Root finished the game without allowing a run until the ninth when the Bees made three before Ralph Hodgin ended the game with a strikeout.

Four Hitless Innings.

Higbe entered the game with a record of 16 2-3 innings of relief pitching in which he had not allowed a run and only four hits. He did not allow either run or hit in the first four innings yesterday, then was nicked at the start of the fifth on a single by Hodgin and a double by Al Lopez.

In the next inning three hits and errors by Bill Herman and Steve Mesner made the seas a bit too rough for Kirby, and before Root could get the side out the Bees had scored four runs to rise within one tally of a tie.

The Cubs stepped out in their end of the sixth for five frostbitten runs to make certain the victory would be written in Higbe's book. A triple by Herman, a single by Gus Mancuso, five walks and a squeeze play figured in the big production.

Mesner Keeps Going.

Having made five runs on two hits in the sixth the champs changed their tactics in the seventh and made four runs on five hits.

They made fourteen hits in accomplishing their biggest run total of the year. Capt. Herman led the slugging with a triple and a double and for the second successive day Mesner effected a double and two singles. Steve also walked and scored three runs, besides driving in four runs. What with accounting for seven of the fifteen runs, Steve was a very important young man. Other multiple hit fellows were Hank Leiber with a double and a single, Joe Marty with two singles, and Gus Mancuso with two singles. Augie Galan, who led the National league batters before the game, failed to get a hit, but scored two runs. Everybody in the starting lineup made a hit except Augie.

Cubs Score Early.

The Cubs scored a run in each of the first two innings. Hack opened the Chicago offense with a single to center, his first hit of the series. Herman popped to Miller, who purposely grounded the ball, and tossed to Warstler to force Hack. Galan forced Herman, then Leiber's grounder got through Warstler, Galan taking third and Leiber reaching first on the error. Marty singled to left, scoring Galan. G. Russell flied to Hodgin.

Mesner opened the second inning with a single to left, after which Mancuso popped to Miller. Higbe sacrificed and when Hassett threw late to second, Mesner and Higbe were safe. Hack walked, filling the bases, then

Blue Peter Heads Field of 30 in 155th Event.

EPSOM, England, May 23.—(AP)—All thoughts of political crises vanished from Britons' minds tonight as the advance guard of an expected crowd of 400,000 moved into this sleepy little town for tomorrow's 155th running of the English derby.

Headed by Lord Rosebery's Blue Peter, favorite at 4 to 1, thirty 3 year olds still were in the running for this greatest of English flat races—a gruelling mile and a half gallop over an up-and-down U-shaped track.

All night long the crowds continued to pour into town, coming by train, bus, automobile and even by horse and wagon. But one familiar face will be missing in the vast throng. Queen Mother Mary of Great Britain will be absent as the result of an auto crash today. The duke of Gloucester and perhaps the duke of Kent will be present.

Hypnotist Second Choice.

Late arrivals brought the latest odds callover from London, which maintained Blue Peter in the same spot he has enjoyed since he won the Two Thousand Guineas. Just behind him in the heavy betting was Hypnotist, bred and owned by William Woodward of New York, whose Johnstown won the Kentucky Derby early this month. Hypnotist, only American owned horse still in the race, was installed at 8 to 1.

City wagering, plus the great sums won and lost on the Calcutta and Irish sweepstakes, should make this the heaviest betting derby in years. Some $613,800 were sent across the board at the Victoria club. The Irish Sweeps alone will return almost $2,000,000 to Americans who hold tickets.

Fox Cub Held at 100-9.

Nearest to Blue Peter and Hypnotist among the public choices was Edward Esmond's Fox Cub, ridden by the great Gordon Richards, at 100 to 9, with Heliopolis, Casanova, Admiral's Walk, and Dhoti, the latter the Agha Khan's entry, all rated at 100 to 7.

Woodward had two horses nominated for the classic, Hypnotist running with Foxbrough II., a full brother to Gallant Fox, but the latter was withdrawn. Two other United States-owned entries, Mrs. Washington Singer's Orchill and Mrs. James Corigan's Signal Light, also were taken out of the race.

Patten Gym to Be Razed; N.U. Gets New One

Patten gymnasium, home of Northwestern university's athletic teams since 1910, is to be dismantled to provide space for the new technological institute made possible by a gift of $6,750,000 from the Walter P. Murphy Foundation. This was announced yesterday by university officials.

The original plan of moving the huge structure to a new location has been abandoned in favor of razing the building and erecting a new gymnasium at the southeast corner of Sheridan road and Lincoln street, three blocks north of the present site.

May Get Fieldhouse, Too.

Work on the new building, which will house the physical education department, swimming pool, and athletic offices, will begin as soon as architect's plans are completed. The present gymnasium will not be torn down until early next year.

Since the new gymnasium does not provide facilities for basketball and track, it is expected that the university will construct a fieldhouse for these sports on property adjacent to Dyche stadium.

K. L. Wilson, athletic director, said yesterday the swimming pool in the new gymnasium will be enlarged from 60 feet to 75 feet and will contain six lanes. The seating capacity of the pool will be increased also, he said.

New Baseball Field, Too.

The new gymnasium also will have greatly increased facilities for physical education and intramural sports. Rooms for corrective work in addition to faculty locker rooms will be included. Wilson also announced that a new baseball field will be constructed next to Dyche stadium, replacing the present diamond at Roycemore field. Plans call for the construction of both a varsity and freshman field.

MONARCH-PABST BOWLING SERIES OPENS TONIGHT

Diversey Yacht Club Puts in Bid for Beach House

Officers of the Diversey Yacht club yesterday asked park commissioners to let them use the old Diversey beach house for a clubhouse if the beach is closed. The club docks power boats in the lagoon opposite the beach. The commissioners are considering closing the beach because the water does not have proper outlets to the lake. No action was taken yesterday due to the absence of Robert J. Dunham, park board president, who was in Springfield.

KUTSCHER SEEKS TO BLOCK MUSTO, BARLUND BATTLE

Says Contract with Tony Is Still in Effect.

Michael W. Kutscher, also known as Billy Williams, will seek an injunction to prevent Tony Musto, Blue Island heavyweight, from going through with a scheduled ten round bout against Gunnar Barlund in Chicago Stadium June 8, it was learned yesterday.

The Illinois boxing commission recognized a Musto-Kutscher managerial contract at a meeting held last March 6, but the board also ruled that Musto can sign his own contracts for fights pending settlement of his dispute with Kutscher in a court of equity.

Plan Hearing June 5.

"My understanding is the commission will not permit any one to stop a fighter from making a living," Rand asserted. "As far as I know, we did not violate any commission ruling when we obtained Musto. Moreover, unless the commission reverses itself and refuses to allow Musto to fight, Tony will meet Barlund on the scheduled date."

Kutscher has informed the commissioners that he will hold them responsible if the match is held. He claims that at a recent meeting Joe Triner, commission chairman, ruled that Musto would not be given permission to box again until after Kutscher's rights have been determined in court.

The matter is scheduled to come up at the first session of the commission in its new quarters in the Steger building on June 5.

Barlund Is Due Monday.

However, Promoter Rand will attempt to arrange a settlement immediately.

"This is a serious proposition," he explained. "Unless it is straightened out right away it will hurt the drawing power of the bout."

Musto is doing preliminary training in Waukesha, Wis., while Barlund has started conditioning himself at Karl Ogren's camp near Stone Lake, Wis. Tony will return to open drills in Kid Howard's loop gymnasium on Friday. Barlund is to arrive Monday.

The boxing card in White City Thursday has been revised. The new list follows:

Tony Motisi vs. Eddie McGeever [8], 143.
Nick Castiglione vs. Earl Gibbs [8], 135.
Altus Allen vs. John Brown [4], 175.
Joey Russano vs. Jackie Page [4], 130.

THREE RECORDS ENDANGERED IN LIFTERS' MEET

At least three records are periled in the Middlewest A. A. U. outdoor weight lifting tournament in Chase park, 4701 North Ashland avenue, tonight. The Central A. A. U. light heavyweight record of 740 pounds, held jointly by Tony Petroline and Frank Kay, is expected to be broken by the latter.

Ray Garcia, Chicago's strongest possibility for the 1940 Olympic lifting team, predicts he will exceed his national junior mark of 625 pounds in the lightweight division. A third mark could be set by either Art Schmudde, Central A. A. U. welterweight champion, or Tony Petroline, Central A. A. U. middleweight titlist. The meet will be open to the public.

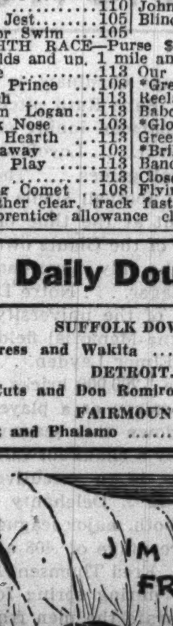
They will leave tomorrow on the liner President Roosevelt, bound for Paris, where they will play in the French championships, starting June 8. JAMES GORE, one of the founders of Chapin & Gore, had been a pioneer overland freighter between Denver and the Pacific Coast in the days of '49.



KENTUCKY became famous for its BOURBON WHISKEY because it has the proper type of water and other necessary and ideal conditions for the making of that product. The best results are obtained when only the finest selected grains are used and when the whiskey is distilled in the old-fashioned way. The mash must contain a sufficient percentage of small grains to give the product body. That type of whiskey will continue to improve with ageing—and when fully matured in the wood nothing can be added to it to improve its quality. For three-quarters of a century CHAPIN & GORE whiskies have never been MIXED—have always been marketed as STRAIGHT KENTUCKY BOURBON WHISKEY—the SOUR MASH METHOD. C & G "OLD RESERVE" KENTUCKY STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKEY has a rich distinctive flavor. This whiskey is now 4 YEARS and 6 MONTHS old.

MESNER SAVES HIGBE, ROOT AND CUBS; BEATS BEES

Higbe's long shutout string ended in the fifth in the following manner: Hodgin singled to left and scored on Lopez's double to left center. Warstler flied to Marty, Lopez taking third. MacFayden and Lopez then tried to put over the squeeze play, but Lopez was out at the plate, Higbe to Mancuso. Cooney bounced to G. Russell.

Bees Sting Higbe.

Higbe got caught in a whirlwind of hits and errors in the sixth. Miller led off with a single and was forced by Garms, Mesner to Herman, but when Herman tried to relay for a double play he threw to the dugout, Garms taking second. Hassett drew his third straight pass, then Mesner fumbled Simmons' bouncer, loading the bases. Hodgin singled to center, Garms and Hassett scoring and Simmons reaching third. West batted for Lopez and singled to center, Simmons scoring and Hodgin reaching third. Root replaced Higbe and Warstler singled to right, Hodgin scoring. West overslid third on Warstler's hit, and was out, Marty to Herman to Hack. Fletcher batted for MacFayden and was hit by a pitched ball. Cooney forced Fletcher to retire the side with the Cubs ahead, 6 to 5.

Herman Busts One.

Herman opened the home sixth with a triple off Posedel, the second Boston pitcher. Galan bounced to Fletcher, but Leiber and Marty walked, loading the bases, and G. Russell walked, forcing Herman across the plate. After Posedel threw two wide ones to Mesner, he was replaced by Lanning who tossed two more wide ones to walk Steve, forcing Leiber to score. Mancuso singled to left, Marty and G. Russell scoring and Mesner taking third. Root and Mesner put on the squeeze play, the latter scoring. Hack then hit into a double play.

The Cubs added four runs in the seventh on a double by Herman, a double by Leiber, a single by Marty, a single by G. Russell and Mesner's double.

The Bees made three runs in the ninth on singles by Outlaw, Garms, and Hassett and Al Simmons' only hit of the day, a double to right, which scored Hassett with Boston's final tally.

Lawrence French will be after his third straight victory for the Cubs when he goes against the Phillies today in Wrigley field. The Phillies will wind up the first invasion of the west by eastern teams with games today and tomorrow. Claude Passeau is scheduled to pitch for the Phillies.

The gent who interfered with Steve Mesner's homer in Monday's game was given a pushing around by some of his bleacherite neighbors, according to reports which reached Cub officials.

helped. The real assistance, however, came from Bejma, who singled to right, Tresh scoring and Knott getting to third. Kuhel flied to Wright and Knott, whose speed afoot is measured by minutes instead of seconds, figured he could score after the catch. He finally arrived at the plate, but not soon enough.

The effect of Knott's exercises on the base lines wasn't noticeable until after he had retired the first two batters in the Senators' seventh. One was Travis, who flied to right, and the other West, who was tossed out by Bejma. Then Knott swooned and walked Wasdell. A moment later Early sent Kreevich to the left center field wall for a two bagger on which Wasdell registered the tying run. Hayner also doubled, this one into Walker's corner and Early went home. This was where Doc Brown took charge and ended the disturbance by fanning Case.

NIGHT GAME NEXT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 23.—The White Sox are on vacation until 9 o'clock tomorrow night, eastern daylight time. About that hour, depending on how soon darkness descends over Philadelphia, they'll experience their first big league game under the new electric lights in Shibe park, home of the Athletics. Edgar [Lefty] Smith will face his former mates in the one game series.

The Sox have played two night games since the fad started to spread through the minors. One was a spring exhibition in Houston, Tex., with the Giants and the other a midseason affair in Indianapolis. It was in the Houston game that Ted Lyons hurt his arm, making him of little use during the 1931 season.

Manager Jimmy Dykes waited almost until game time this afternoon before announcing he had decided to shift his batting order. Luke Appling was moved out of the cleanup position because he had driven in only one run in the last eight games.

Chicago District Golfers Play for Four Class Titles Friday

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The second annual class championships of the Chicago District Golf association are to be decided Friday at the Edgewood Valley Country club in La Grange. This event was carried over from last year, so that it is open to the winners of club class titles in 1938 at every member club in the C. D. G. A.

Play will be all day at eighteen holes. Class A competition will be restricted to those champions with a C. D. G. A. handicap of from one through 12 strokes; class B from 13 through 18 strokes; class C from 19 through 24 strokes, and class D from 25 through 36 strokes. The entry fee is $2. The winner in each class will be given a medal, while all runnersup will receive merchandise.

The best auto route to Edgewood Valley is Roosevelt road west to Harlem avenue, south to Joliet road [route 4], west to the Willow Springs road and south one mile to the club.

Kildeer Country club, which next Monday and Tuesday will be the scene of the annual Western conference golf tournament, will hold its opening 1939 stag event today. Among the contestants are former President Tug Wilson, Northwestern university's athletic director; Ted Payseur, the Wildcats' golf coach, and Charles Shuesler, entering his third year as president of the club.

Following a day of golf, members and their guests will witness a Kildeer Amateur night.

The annual fathers and sons golf tournament of the Morgan Park Military academy will be held today at the Oak Hills Country club, 131st street and Harlem avenue. Forty fathers and sons will compete for trophies.

Mrs. Whitney Alice Harb, who as Helen Hicks captured the national women's title and then the western open after becoming a business woman golfer, writes that she and her husband have taken a cottage on Lake Hamilton in Hot Springs, Ark., for a month. Helen indicates that she hankers to win the 1939 western open, beginning June 12 in St. Louis, and to that end is priming her game daily.

Saddest note in the national open qualifying rounds Monday: Failure of Walter Hagen to make the grade in the Philadelphia trials. It won't be quite the same show without the old boy, for this happens to be his anniversary year. It was twenty-five years ago come August that Walter won his first open at Midlothian.

The North Shore Golf league, oldest of the Chicago district's competitive families, opens its 1939 schedule today at Ridgemoor. The first set of matches brings together Ridgemoor and Edgewater, Evanston and North Shore, Park Ridge and Sunset Ridge, and Westmoreland and Skokie. W. N. Lane of Skokie is president and F. R. Bowen of Park Ridge, secretary treasurer. Team captains are H. D. Fargo Jr., Edgewater; F. J. Haggerty Jr., Evanston; Jack Hoerner, North Shore; Dr. A. O. Young, Park Ridge; F. O. Rippel, Ridgemoor; W. N. Lane, Skokie; G. K. Whyte, Sunset Ridge, and J. H. Kincaid, Westmoreland.

Dick Metz, leading money winner of the 1939 golf season with a total of $5,586, will make his next move to increase that roll in the second annual $5,000 Goodall tournament, to be played June 1, 2, 3 and 4 at the Fresh Meadow Country club, Flushing, N. Y.

The Goodall tournament is one of the most exclusive events in the game, for only a select fifteen professionals, invited on the strength of their immediate records, will compete in it. The event offers four field days for spectators, since the fifteen competitors will play in five threesomes, making it easy for nimble galleryites to see all of them in action. The tourney is a round robin, based on the net of holes won and lost over the four day stretch.

YATES RALLIES, WINS 2D MATCH IN BRITISH AMATEUR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOYLAKE, England, May 23.—For a brief time today it seemed likely that Charley Yates' bid for second successive British amateur golf championship was going to expire in his second round match with Nonald Cameron of Scotland.

But the Atlanta, Ga., youngster, after being caught on the fourteenth green by his opponent, put on the necessary pressure and scored a 2 to 1 victory. Tomorrow he will meet Dick Chapman of Greenwich, Conn., in a third round contest. Chapman was in rare form today, defeating M. W. Budd, 5 and 3.

Yates Stages a Rally.

As a gallery of 1,000 watched, Yates drove two powerful wood shots on the sixteenth to win the hole. Cameron's second shot landed in a sand pit. The American came back on the seventeenth, his best shot being a mashie hoist to the center of the green. Yates was 2 up at the end of the first nine, shooting it in 37. On the tenth he sank a 45 foot putt to tie Cameron's birdie 3. The Scot finally evened the match on the fourteenth when Yates' chip shot rolled past the cup.

In the day's only upset, Cyril Tolley, the champion in 1920 and 1929, was eliminated by Walter McLeod of Scotland, 1 up.

Philadelphian Loses.

E. J. Phillips of Philadelphia, Pa., the only other American in action today, lost on the eighteenth green to John S. F. Morrison of England.

Woods and Waters By Bob Becker

Mr. Fisherman, here are a few more suggestions on where to fish in Wisconsin over the Memorial day week-end. The spots mentioned vary in distance from about 150 miles to 375 miles from Chicago.

Woodruff-Minocqua district—About 375 miles from Chicago. There are scores of lakes in this section, including a number of good muskie and pike lakes. Fishermen should not overlook Arbor Vitæ, Squirrel, Gunlock, Shishebogema, Fence, Crawling Stone, Squaw, Bucksin, and other lakes in or close to the Indian reservation. Crooked is another lake that we like for wall-eyes. The Sugarbush chain is an interesting group of three lakes which have muskies and pike in them. Crawling Stone produces some big ones every year. The connecting chain of lakes in the Indian reservation make it possible to try a number of good weedbeds or pike bars in the course of a day. We have been visiting this Woodruff-Minocqua country with our fishing tackle for more than fifteen years and there are so many lakes which may be fished up there that usually you can find 'em striking somewhere in the course of a day.

Northeast of this lake section is Lost lake, which makes an excellent base for fishing waters east of the reservation. Just above Lost lake are Plum, Star, and Razorback lakes. South a few miles are Big and Little St. Germaine and dozens of other fishing holes. All of these lakes are stocked heavily every year.

Lake Wisconsin . . . this stretch of water is for the fisherman who doesn't want to go very far. Lake Wisconsin, a widening of the Wisconsin river above Sauk City, is about 160 miles from Chicago. It's a big flowage, well stocked with panfish, wall-eyes, and other common species. This is a scenic country for the Dells are west of the river. [You can see the hills around Devils lake from the river valley.]

Waupaca chain of lakes. . . . About 220 miles from Chicago. This is a nice group of twenty-six small lakes. Good fishing for panfish in most of these lakes. Northern pike also are found in most of the lakes in the chain. There's pretty good trout fishing in several streams in this section.

SUPERHIGHWAY PLANS FOR CITY WIN APPROVAL

Legislative Committee's Report Drafted.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 23.—[Special.]—Mayor Edward J. Kelly, with the aid of three engineers and an assistant corporation counsel, tonight won a qualified indorsement of Chicago's $100,000,000 superhighway construction program from a joint legislative committee.

This committee, headed by Senator Nicholas L. Hubbard [D., Mount Pulaski], drafted a final report of its two months' study of the state's road policies. They favored urban highways with continuous grade separations and merely questioned the advisability of the methods of finance outlined in pending legislation.

Professor C. C. Wiley of the University of Illinois, consultant for the committee, had advised that such construction within Chicago should be financed from current revenues to save millions in interest payment.

Need Imperative, Says Mayor.

"With congress about to appropriate for federal coöperation in urban superhighway construction," said the mayor, "it is imperative that this assembly prepare to take advantage of this opportunity. Chicago's $100,000,000 system is needed to save lives, to stimulate automobile travel, thereby increasing gas tax revenue, and to furnish four years' employment for 15,000 men."

A companion proposal in the pending legislation, providing $40,000,000 for secondary road construction, did not receive so gentle treatment from the joint committee. The report held that in building roads for purely local service the state should not bear the major portion of the cost. It added that future construction funds should be concentrated upon deathproof construction within all large cities of the state and upon the main avenues of cross country travel.

Compromise Discussed.

In view of these objections to the secondary road part of the program, there was talk of a compromise so as not to jeopardize the Chicago program. It was suggested that the $40,000,000 for downstate might be divided between city and rural construction with local participation in costs, as contemplated for the Chicago work.

Under the bills as they now stand, the state would issue $80,000,000 in notes to be retired from the state's future revenue from the gasoline tax revenue, half for downstate farm roads and half for Chicago's super highways. Chicago and Cook county would each be authorized to issue $30,000,000 of the same type of notes to join with the state's $40,000,000.

MILITARY RITES TOMORROW FOR B. F. FERGUS, 86

Benjamin F. Fergus, 86 years old, will be buried tomorrow with military honors in Graceland cemetery. He died Monday in the Scottish Old People's home, Riverside.

Benjamin F. Fergus.

Mr. Fergus was the son of Robert Fergus, pioneer Chicago printer and publisher. His playground as a child was a spacious section of the State street area opposite Quincy street. Todd Lincoln was one of his classmates in the old Dearborn grammar school, which used to be on the McVickers theater site. He and his brothers operated for many years the printing business they inherited from their father.

With Mr. Fergus' death only one man, Col. Charles S. Diehl of San Antonio, Tex., survives of the original members of the 131st infantry—the Dandy First—who signed the regimental roster in the Grand Pacific hotel in 1874. He was a life member of the veterans' corps.

REPORT KANSAN CONSIDERED FOR EVANSTON CHIEF

Reports were current yesterday that O. W. Wilson of Wichita, Kas., had been asked to become Evanston's chief of police. Mayor Henry D. Penfield, who accepted the resignation of Chief William O. Freeman several days ago, refused to confirm the reports, and Wilson, who is stopping in a loop hotel, also was reticent.

Wilson, who has been chief of the Wichita force for eleven years, is on a year's leave of absence. It was granted him ostensibly that he might do research work for the Public Administration service, an organization which maintains a clearing house for municipal information. Its police headquarters are at Northwestern university. Wilson insisted last night that he had come here solely in connection with the research job.

Wilson is 38 years old and was one of the prize pupils of Prof. August Vollmer, head of the police administration department at the University of California. He worked his way through college doing police work.

HARLAN PARLEY FOLDS UP; DENY PEACE HOPE DEAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Harlan, Ky., May 23.—[Special.]—Negotiations for settlement of Harlan county's mine war were recessed indefinitly today after a brief conference between the coal operators and a committee from John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers of America.

Speaking for the C. I. O. miners, William Turnblazer, president of district 19, declared the recess was requested by the operators and that the discussions probably will be resumed Thursday morning. This was denied by George S. Ward, secretary of the Harlan County Coal Operators' association.

"We have recessed indefinitly, subject to the call of the union," he said. "When the call will come, I do not know."

Both sides were emphatic in declaring that the negotiations have not hit a snag, but the impression prevailed that no progress was made in the conferences yesterday.

Late in the afternoon Turnblazer announced that the Black Mountain corporation, employing 1,100 men in its mine at Kenvir, Ky., had signed a contract carrying the C. I. O. closed shop clause.

DISCHARGE CHIEF CLERK OF COUNTY JAIL IN MYSTERY

Warden Frank G. Sain of the County jail yesterday announced the suspension of Michael Starczewski, chief clerk at the jail. Sain said he was being disciplined for being absent two days without permission. Sherif Thomas J. O'Brien did not concur in this explanation.

"Starczewski no longer is in the employment of this office," said Sherif O'Brien. "I don't know him and can't tell why he is being replaced, but it is certain he is not short in his accounts.

"I asked the county auditor to examine all funds at the jail. That's not because I suspect anything, but because I want to know what is being done in the jail."

PEACE DEADLOCK KEEPS 65,000 IDLE IN AUTO STRIKE

Detroit, Mich., May 23.—(AP)—Failure of attempts to open settlement negotiations today marked a strike which in two days has thrown 65,000 persons out of jobs in nearly 20 automotive plants.

Neither the Briggs Manufacturing company, seven units of which closed yesterday when their union employés struck, nor officials of the CIO affiliated United Automobile Workers, who have demanded a union shop in Briggs plants, retreated from positions taken before the strike started.

The Briggs plants alone employ 15,000. Also idle were ten plants of the Chrysler corporation, employing 47,500 persons; the Lincoln division of the Ford company, with 5,000 employés, and 250 workers at the L. A. Young Spring and Wire company here.

The strike followed a breakdown of grievance negotiations after union officials charged the management wanted to "horse trade" on legitimate grievances. The union shop demand was contained in union proposals for revision of the working agreement with the company, which expired May 16.

MOTHER OF FOUR KILLED IN PLUNGE FROM OVERPASS

Mrs. Betty France, the mother of four children, plunged 40 feet to her death yesterday from the pedestrian overpass over the outer drive at 47th street. Several motorists were forced to swerve their cars sharply to avoid striking her body. Mrs. France, who was 35 years old was unidentified until her husband, Harry, returned from a fishing trip. He began a search when he found her missing from their apartment above their restaurant at 1215 East 47th street and learned that a woman with her initials in her wedding ring had died in a plunge. France said his wife had been suffering from nervousness.

NEWEST DEAL WOULD TAKE OVER PRIVATE FINANCING

Berle Tells Scheme to Control Basic Industries.

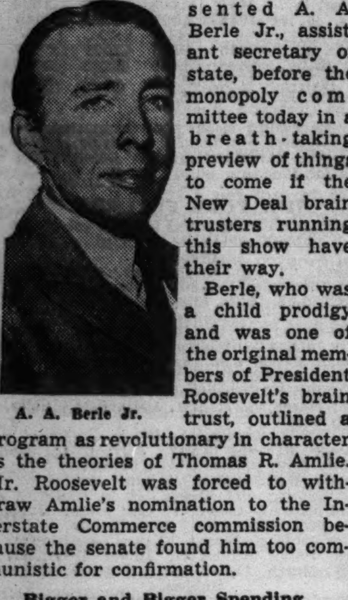
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 23.—[Special.]—The Securities and Exchange commission presented A. A. Berle Jr., assistant secretary of state, before the monopoly committee today in a breath-taking preview of things to come if the New Deal brain trusters running this show have their way.



A. A. Berle Jr.

Berle, who was a child prodigy and was one of the original members of President Roosevelt's brain trust, outlined a program as revolutionary in character as the theories of Thomas R. Amlie. Mr. Roosevelt was forced to withdraw Amlie's nomination to the Interstate Commerce commission because the senate found him too communistic for confirmation.

Bigger and Bigger Spending.

The Berle program contemplates government spending on a scale hitherto undreamed of, but that would be only a starter.

The government not only would supplant the existing private system of capital financing, but would take over the basic industries.

A public works finance corporation, which Berle recommended for immediate adoption, would operate entirely outside the federal budget through the sale of its own obligations or the privilege of rediscounting its notes at the federal reserve bank. Under such a system there would be no occasion for New Deal defeats, such as the senate's rejection last week of the 200 to 300 million dollar Florida ship canal.

The national economic committee, before which Berle unfolded his program, is made up of representatives from the justice, treasury, labor and commerce departments, the SEC and the federal trade commission, and three members from each house of congress.

Must Be Taken Seriously.

Congressional members of the investigating committee regarded Berle's recommendations as a symptom of what is fomenting in the minds of Roosevelt's inner circle advisers as they contemplate the approach of the 1940 election.

Berle's program was presented under circumstances that must be regarded seriously. First, the SEC is conducting the current series of hearings, and Berle was the star witness of that New Deal agency.

Secondly, his recommendations were presented in response to Mr. Roosevelt's request that the committee ascertain why vast amounts of capital lie idle in stagnant pools.

Thirdly, the Berle recommendations constituted a logical sequence to President Roosevelt's defense of government spending before the retailers' forum last night.

Since the current series of hearings began 10 days ago, the SEC has sought patiently to support a thesis which might be concisely stated thus: Pump priming as a temporary stop gap expedient has failed; therefore the government must do the pumping, and on a permanent basis.

Warns Change Inevitable.

Berle bluntly informed the committee that the private financial system, as at present constituted, does not work.

He declared that unless fundamental changes are adopted the country, within four or five years, will reach a period of stress, a major down turn of the business cycle which might

NEW DEAL PLOT TOLD BY BANKER 11 MONTHS AGO

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The time is June, 1938. Around a breakfast table are grouped some of the best known bankers in the United States.

The talk is not about fishing, nor is it about breakfast. One of the group has just tossed into the conversation a bit of information which has dulled the appetites of those present.

"I know what I'm talking about," says this member of the party. "It may sound fantastic, but I have it from the inside—on real authority.

"I have just come from Washington and I know it to be a fact," he says in a tone of conviction that bodes no interruption. "The New Dealers are not interested in business recovery.

Basis of Scheme Told.

"They want a continuation of depression so that as one economic emergency dissolves into another they may use the very desperation of the people as an excuse for bringing about the socialization of the country along the lines they have in mind."

At this there were expressions of doubt from those who were listening. "Listen," the speaker continued. "I have just come from Washington. I have talked there with high officials of the administration—men who are in a position to know what is going on. They are appointees of the New Deal, but they do not believe in the theories of the Cohen-Corcoran crowd. They are there because they still believe that it is possible to salvage what is left and gradually restore prosperity."

There was silence in the room as he continued, for this man was not only high in banking circles but he had pipe lines to the administration that no one present dared question.

Known Only to Inner Circle.

"This is the program being engineered in Washington," he continued. "It is a subtle scheme—so subtle that only those in the inner circle are cognizant of it. Congress is out in the cold. The plan is to go on with the big spending program The government will continue spending huge amounts in excess of its revenues under the guise of 'priming the pump.'"

"The argument will be that because private business does not absorb the unemployed, the government must go on spending money It will be argued that the expenditure of government money will stimulate purchasing power, thereby gradually increasing the national income so that business may catch on and sooner or later business will thus be stimulated to a point where further government expenditures for extraordinary purposes will be unnecessary.

"But they—and by 'they' I mean the inner circle of brain trusters close to the President—know that it will not work. It will only hasten the ultimate reckoning.

"Then what? The answer is al-

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 23.—President Roosevelt's determination to continue the radical New Deal policies reaped an outburst of criticism today from small business men.

Last night in addressing the retailers' national forum sponsored by the American Retail Federation, a pro-New Deal organization, Mr. Roosevelt said he would not budge on the administration's spending, debt, or tax policies.

Today the reactions broke out, even splitting the calm atmosphere in which the delegates were supposedly to hear plans for even closer coöperation between the retailers, who benefit by lavish government spending, and the administration. But some of the merchants in addressing the forum thought otherwise.

Business Leader Speaks Out.

The chief reaction, however, came from De Witt M. Emery of Akron, O., spokesman for small business men throughout the country in his capacity as president of the National Small Business Men's association.

Here are Emery's own words on his reaction:

"There were many things in the speech with which all business men are in full agreement.

"Whether you are a big department store or do business in a small way on the main street of a small town, your sales are dependent on how much money the average family in the community earns.

"On the other hand, I don't think he went far enough when he said: 'You know what happens to storekeepers if they buy twice as much as the public can buy from them.

Another Thought on Spending.

"I thought he might have added: 'You also know what happens to storekeepers who spend two dollars for every dollar they take in.'

"I guess the reason he didn't mention this was that if he had some folks might get the impression that the same thing happens to a government which spends two dollars for every dollar it takes in.

"I couldn't quite follow what he was driving at when he referred to the 'conservative New Dealers.' Had he mentioned 'reactionary New Dealers' I'd have known what he meant.

"It took something like 4,000 years for man to rise above being a pawn of the state, but it's taken the New Deal only six years to get him headed right back in that direction.

Charges Business Persecuted.

A Mount Vernon, O., merchant handed the forum a shock when he attacked the administration as promoting class feeling and persecuting successful business men. He was John W. Rudin, head of a department store.

He proposed a nine point recovery program, including a balanced budget, curtailed spending, and elimination of government subsidies.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace picked up the President's refrain by attacking idle capital. He accused capital of "timidity," which has thrown on the government unusual responsibilities.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], chairman of the monopoly investigating committee, said that federal licensing of corporations appeared to be the only escape from interstate trade barriers being erected by individual states.

Revise Truck Bill; Fixing of Rates Dropped

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 23.—Rate fixing provisions of the motor vehicle commission truck regulation bill were removed by amendments approved today at a joint meeting of two committees of the house of representatives. The committees then recommended passage of the amended bill, which in many respects would revolutionize the public's control over highway freighting.

By striking the rate provisions the committees assumed a new philosophy toward the ills of motor transportation. The commission, in its original draft of the bill, adhered to arguments of some of the truck line operators that it was necessary for them to be protected against wildcat competition.

Operators Make Complaints.

Some of the established and responsible truck line operators said their business was hurt by truckers who could cut rates and haul below standard tarifs by overworking drivers and by not carrying insurance.

In today's deliberations it was decided that such competition would be eliminated more effectively by enforcement of safety requirements than merely by enforcing rates high enough to pay the costs of safety requirements. Taking part in the deliberations were the house committee on motor vehicles and trafic regulations, headed by Arthur T. Broche [R., Chicago], and the house committee on roads and bridges, headed by David Hunter Jr. [D., Rockford].

Would Require Insurance.

The bill, as recommended for passage, would require all for-hire trucks to carry liability insurance. All such vehicles would have to pass mechanical tests twice a year. Bills of lading or bills of sale would have to be carried with cargoes, the aim being to curb hijacking and thefts from farms. Drivers could remain on duty a maximum of 15 hours and at the wheel a maximum of 12 hours in any 24 hour period.

The regulation of for-hire vehicles would be removed from the commerce commission to the highway department. Sections of the public utility act of 1921 would be repealed so that a common carrier certificate for permission to operate over a specified route would not be exclusive, that is, monopolistic.

WOOD SAYS HITLER, ROOSEVELT, IL DUCE HOLD BUSINESS KEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 23.—Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, today put the responsibility for the business outlook on "Mr. Hitler, Mr. Mussolini, and Mr. Roosevelt."

He had said he looks for "pretty fair" business this fall unless war breaks out and then told reporters who had questioned him: "If you can tell me what Mr. Hitler, Mr. Mussolini, or Mr. Roosevelt are going to do, maybe I can help you."

He said he did not think business was being harassed or annoyed by the federal government, but that removal of deterrent taxes would help. He also denied that dissatisfaction with administration policies had caused him to resign as business adviser to Secretary of Commerce Hopkins. It would have required full time application to the job to do any good, he said, adding his business affairs would not permit this.

"And besides," he said, with a grin, "the trout season was opening."

Gen. Wood addressed the retailers national forum this morning.

ILLINOIS SENATE STIRRED BY MOVE TO END 2 PROBES

Springfield, Ill., May 23.—[Special.]—The discharge of two senate committees which are investigating Chicago businesses was sought in the senate today, but consideration was postponed until tomorrow by Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, presiding officer, when the move started a battle.

Senator George M. Maypole [D., Chicago] moved for the killing of the committee now inquiring into fees and rates charged by the Union Stock Yards and Transit company of Chicago and the East St. Louis Stock Yards for use of their facilities. Maypole said it would be a waste of money to continue the investigation.

An angry reply came from Senator Joseph E. Heckenkamp [D., Quincy], chairman of the committee.

"If the committee is discharged I will conduct a one man filibuster for the remainder of the session," he said.

R. Wallace Karraker [D., Jonesboro] jumped into the fray with a demand that the committee to investigate certain practices of the Chicago board of underwriters also be shelved.

Wheat futures were on the upgrade in American markets yesterday. The July delivery on the Chicago Board of Trade sold at 75⅝ cents a bushel at one time, a new high price for the season. All deliveries at Minneapolis went into a new high ground. Closing sales on wheat futures on the local exchange were at gains of 1¼ to 1⅜ cents.

The high loan price that will be given by the Commodity Credit corporation on this year's wheat crop compared with the prevailing market level for futures brought speculators into the market as aggressive buyers. Farmers can secure 80 cents a bushel on the No. 2 red and hard winter wheat harvested this year, on track at Chicago, or 4½ cents a bushel higher than the closing price yesterday on the July contract.

Kansas City Leads Upturn.

The Kansas City market led the advance in wheat and closed 1⅜ to 1½ cents higher. Reports of record high temperatures in Oklahoma and Texas had considerable influence on the western market. Many points in the two states reported temperatures of 100 degrees and above on Monday. It is feared that the wheat crop will ripen prematurely.

Reports received yesterday from Chicago crop experts indicate that the winter wheat crop is deteriorating in parts of the Texas panhandle, western Oklahoma, and western and central Kansas and Nebraska.

Hot winds prevailed yesterday in parts of the southwest. There were good rains in parts of North and South Dakota, and in southern Canada.

Investigate May Contracts.

Reports were current yesterday that the business conduct committee of the Chicago Board of Trade is investigating the May wheat situation. When trading in that grain ceased on Monday there was a total of 2,335,000 bushels of uncompleted contracts. A delivery of cash wheat is now required under exchange rules to complete the contracts. The sellers of May wheat have until May 31 to deliver the cash grain.

Rye was affected by the strength in wheat and closed 1¼ to 1½ cents higher, reaching new seasonal high ground. Corn lagged and gained only ⅛ cent. Oats closed ⅝ to ¾ cent higher. July soy beans declined 1 cent on scattered selling.

Gurley Chosen Vice President of Santa Fe

Fred G. Gurley, for many years with the Burlington railroad, yesterday was elected vice president of the Santa Fe railroad. He will act as general executive assistant to E. J. Engel, who recently was elected president of the Santa Fe to succeed the late Samuel T. Bledsoe. The change is effective June 1.

Another change in railroad executive personnel was the election of Harvey C. Couch as president of the Kansas City Southern railway to succeed C. E. Johnston.

Couch, a public utility man and formerly a member of the board of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, has been chairman of the board of the road. Johnston was made president of the Western Association of Railway Executives at the beginning of this year.

Gurley, who is 50 years old, began his railroad career as a clerk for the Burlington in the superintendent's office at Sheridan, Wyo., in July, 1906.

Flour Prices Are Raised 5 to 10 Cents a Barrel

Flour prices were marked up another 5 to 10 cents a barrel yesterday. Trade authorities estimated the new boost puts wholesale quotations to levels 50 cents above those which prevailed a month ago, when the current rise in wheat futures began. They said the new advance was justified by the rise in quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade, based on reports of crop deterioration in parts of the winter wheat belt.

REPUBLIC STEEL SUES LEWIS, CIO FOR 7½ MILLION

Allege Conspiracy in 1937 Strikes.

Cleveland, O., May 23.—[Special.]—The Republic Steel corporation, principal target of the disastrous C. I. O. strike against "little steel" in 1937, today filed a $7,500,000 damage suit against John L. Lewis, his radical labor organizations, and numerous persons associated with him.

The company, third largest steel producer in the nation, claimed it had been damaged directly to the extent of $2,500,000 by the labor violence and asserted it was entitled to treble damages, costs and attorneys fees under the Sherman and Clayton acts.

Conspiracy Charged.

The lengthy bill, filed in the United States District court here, charged that the defendants conspired in 1937 to force complete or partial closing of Republic plants in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Illinois, New York and elsewhere.

The company charged that the defendants entered into a conspiracy in restraint of trade. They interfered with interstate and foreign commerce by preventing the loading and unloading of Republic cargo from ships and trains, it alleged.

Sixteen men were killed during the strike, ten at the company's plant in South Chicago, Ill. One hundred thousand workers were idle in the Great Lakes area at the height of the strife.

The strike ended in Ohio when National Guardsmen were called out. The movement soon collapsed in the other states involved and the C. I. O. did not obtain the bargaining contract it demanded.

Acts of Violence Cited.

Republic's suit recited a long list of acts against it. Among them were:

Workers were shot at, assaulted and abducted. Wives and children of employés were approached and threatened. Workers' homes were damaged.

Republic plants were blocked and surrounded. Pickets formed into armed mobs and fired on law enforcement officers and employés alike.

The defendants caused a suspension of United States mail service to some of the plants. They shot at airplanes, thus stopping the movement of medical supplies and food to besieged employés.

As a result of these illegal acts, Republic said, it lost business.

C. I. O. Heads Defendants.

Heading the list of defendants were the Committee of Industrial Organizations and its principal subsidiaries, the Steel Workers organizing committee, and the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America.

Named individually and as agents of the unions involved were the highest officials of the three organizations and approximately 700 Ohio-

New York Stocks.

New York, May 23.—Stocks closed mixed today. Selling in the last two hours erased moderate gains registered after early irregularity. A total of 225 issues advanced, 215 declined, and 168 closed unchanged. Most representative shares, however, showed losses ranging from fractions to more than a point, with the result that the averages closed lower.

Disappointment over President Roosevelt's remarks on taxes was credited with bringing out some selling at the opening.

A flare up in aviation shares on reports of more orders brightened the afternoon trading for a time, but the advance faded out when it failed to receive support.

Curtiss-Wright issues turned popular, both gaining fractions. The volatile Wright Aero stock spurted 4 points. Douglas, however, met resistance and lost ¾ point. Sperry, North American Aviation, United Aircraft, and Glenn Martin also eased.

News of strikes and other labor difficulties fostered caution in standard industrial shares. United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, United States Rubber, and General Electric incurred losses running to 1½ points.

Santa Fe preferred featured the rail section, jumping 3½ points on news that directors had ordered a dividend of $2.50. Elsewhere minor fractional losses ruled.

New York Bonds.

New York, May 23.—(AP)—Industrial and railway issues headed a slight upturn in the bond market today.

Fractional gains were recorded for Bethlehem Steel 3½s and 3¾s, Consolidated Oil convertible 3½s, Goodrich 6s, Illinois Central 4¾s, International Paper 5s, National Dairy 3¾s, Pennsylvania General 4½s of '65, and Youngstown Sheet & Tube 4s.

Utilities were uneven over a narrow range which saw minor advances for International Hydro Electric 6s and Western Union 5s of '60, and slight declines for Portland General Electric 4½s and Consolidated Edison 3½s.

United States governments were mixed, with some gains running to 10-32. Foreign loans were uneven,

Chicago Stocks.

Advances outnumbered losses in trading on the Chicago Stock Exchange yesterday. Of seventy-three issues traded, thirty-one closed higher, twenty-three lower, and nineteen unchanged. Commonwealth Edison, which again led the list in volume, rose fractionally. Bastian-Blessing gained more than a point, reflecting more satisfactory earnings as announced Monday. Wieboldt stores preferred, traded for the first time in nearly two weeks, advanced 7 points to a new 1939 high at 90. Sale of an exchange membership was arranged at $1,800, an advance of $100 over the last preceding transaction.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks changed hands at steady to higher prices yesterday, dealers reported. The gainers included Continental Illinois, quoted at 72½ bid and 74½ asked, against 72 and 73½ on the preceding day. Northern Trust was up $5 to a bid price of 545.

Commodities

Short covering in the July world sugar contract led to an advance of 0.065 cent a pound in the New York futures market yesterday, but later deliveries declined 0.03 to 0.055 cent. The advance in the July delivery, which followed an upturn at London, was accentuated by a scarcity of offerings.

Several other commodities for future delivery advanced in price. Wool top futures rose as much as 0.10 cent and lesser gains were shown by cottonseed oil and crude rubber. Raw silk closed 2 cents higher to 4½ cents lower.

The Lexington Utilities company, a unit of the Middle West corporation system, reported net income of $78,911 for the March quarter, against $69,278 a year earlier. Southwestern Gas and Electric company, in the same system, had March quarter net income of $396,360, against $427,240 a year ago.

Trustees System Discount Company of Chicago, a loan company, reported net income of $6,504 for the fiscal year ended March 31, compared with a net loss of $10,517 in the preceding year.

U. S. WILL PROBE BOOST IN PRICE OF NEWSPRINT

Washington, D. C., May 23.—(AP)—The justice department announced today that its agents were investigating trade practices in the newsprint industry. It asserted that evidence secured by the Federal Trade commission "indicates that concerted action by Canadian manufacturers restrains freedom of competition in the United States newsprint market."

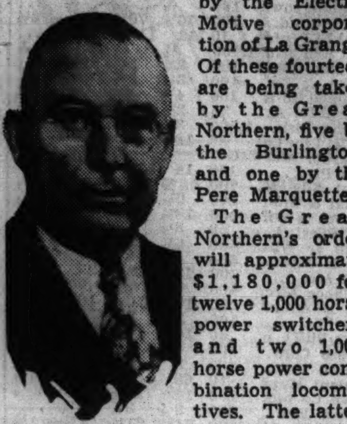
At the same time it was made known the subpenas were issued today requiring the presence of witnesses at an inquiry before a federal grand jury at San Francisco. This proceeding, it was stated, is limited to activities of newsprint producers and distributors in the Pacific coast area.

The "general investigation of newsprint trade practices" applies to other parts of the United States. Describing conditions in the industry, the justice department cited recent advances in the price of newsprint, which, it said, have been "generally uniform among all manufacturers."

RAILS ORDER 20 DIESEL-ELECTRIC ENGINES BUILT

Great Northern Takes 14, Burlington Five.

Orders for twenty Diesel-electric locomotives were received yesterday by the Electro-Motive corporation of La Grange. Of these fourteen are being taken by the Great Northern, five by the Burlington, and one by the Pere Marquette.



Edward Flynn praises Diesel powered switch engines.

The Great Northern's order will approximate $1,180,000 for twelve 1,000 horse power switchers and two 1,000 horse power combination locomotives. The latter are for use either in passenger or freight service on branch lines.

The road recently took delivery on ten 1,000 horse power Diesel-electric switch locomotives and two of 600 horse power.

The Burlington's order consists of five 600 horse power switch locomotives. Edward Flynn, executive vice president of the road, said the order was placed as a result of highly successful experience with nine Diesel-electric switchers which were delivered late last year and early this year. Of the nine seven are of 600 horse power and two of 900 horse power.

In 24 Hour Service.

The nine have been used in the Burlington's Western avenue yards. Each is in twenty-four service, getting a rest of only eight hours once each week for oiling and minor adjustments. Of the switchers ordered, one will be used in Peoria, one in Quincy, and three in Lincoln, Neb. They will cost of a total of $310,000.

The Pere Marquette locomotive will be of 600 horse power for probable use in the Detroit area.

Electro-Motive recently delivered a 2,000 horse power passenger Diesel-electric engine to the Kansas City Southern railway and it will deliver another of the same horse power in July.

Plant Opened in 1936.

Since the plant of the company, which is a subidiary of the General Motors corporation, went into operation in January, 1936, it has built about 266 switch locomotives worth about $19,000,000. About fifty passenger locomotives of various sizes have been built. They are now running 30,000 miles a day.

The company now employs 2,500 persons at the La Grange plant, compared with 1,500 at this time last year.

APPROVES BILL TO RELAX BANK STOCK LIABILITY

Springfield, Ill., May 23.—[Special.]—A bill passed by the house for the purpose of relaxing double liability for state bank stockholders received senate concurrence tonight, by a vote of 35 to 6.

It provides that no suit to collect under the double liability clause of the state constitution may be filed after June 1, 1940, against stock owners of record up to July 1, 1939. If the liability is by reason of stock owned after July 1, 1939, the suit must be filed against the owner while he still has it, or within one year of its sale or transfer.

Opponents said the bill is illegal. Voters failed to approve a constitutional amendment to eliminate the double liability clause in a referendum last year, they point out. The legislature has no right to pass laws to weaken the constitution, they contended.

CHARGE CHICAGO BROKERS WORK RACKET IN FEES

Evidence has been uncovered in Chicago implicating a number of brokers in an "advance fee" racket in which business men in various parts of the country have been defrauded of several million dollars, it was learned yesterday.

W. McNeil Kennedy, regional administrator of the Securities and Exchange commission, said the evidence has been forwarded to Washington, D. C., for action by the commission. Chicagoans definitly implicated with brokers operating in other parts of the country face loss of their registration privileges and possible prosecution by postal authorities under mail fraud statutes, he said.

OIL REFINER WILL COMPENSATE MEN WHEN JOBS CEASE

East Chicago Plant to Be Dropped.

Tentative arrangements have been made to compensate employés dismissed by the Shell Union Oil corporation when it discontinues refinery operations at East Chicago, Ind., officials announced yesterday. These operations are to be shifted to Wood River, Ill., under plans announced last December.

The company, which now employs 650 men at East Chicago, plans to retain only 150 at East Chicago when the realignment of refinery operations is made and the Indiana plant is converted into a bulk station for the distribution of gasoline and other petroleum products.

Jobs Found for Some.

Shell officials said that other Calumet area manufacturing companies have agreed to absorb a small group of Shell refinery employés, and that these efforts will be continued to minimize the hardship of dismissed employés. They said the scale of dismissal indemnities will be announced within a few weeks.

The contract of Shell's union employés expired last March 1, and union officials refused to negotiate for renewal of the contract until the company agreed to pay "separation bonuses," it was said. Since March 1, union members have continued at work without a contract. The results of a secret strike vote have not been made public.

Move May Be Delayed.

Company officials said the shift to Wood River, originally scheduled for next Jan. 1, may not be made until the summer of 1940. They said they were unable to determine yet how many of the 500 employés now facing dismissal might be transferred to Wood River.

The shift was planned, officials said, in the interests of "economy and flexibility of operations." It was explained that the Calumet refinery was becoming obsolescent and that it was advantageous to improve facilities at Wood River.

The company intends to use the East Chicago plant for distribution by tank car and barge of petroleum products received by pipe line from Wood River.

N. Y. WILL RETAIN FIVE CENT FARE, BUREAU ASSURES

New York, May 23.—[Special.]—The 5 cent fare is inviolate so far as the transit commission is concerned, its special counsel asserted today at a hearing on the plan for purchase of the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit properties by the city for $175,000,000 as a major step toward unification.

Chester W. Cuthell, the special counsel, said:

"The 5 cent fare has become part and parcel of the life of the city. Nobody is going to change it unless there is an enormous public demand for a change, something that is inconceivable. The transit commission has been the everlasting champion of the 5 cent fare. The deal for acquisition of the B. M. T. Lines was worked out on the basis of a 5 cent fare, and no other.

Previously Harold Riegelman, counsel to the citizens' budget commission, predicted that if the lines are operated at a 5 cent fare they will show a deficit of $800,000 a year.

GOODRICH PLANS REFUNDING ISSUE OF 18½ MILLIONS

The B. F. Goodrich company, tire and rubber manufacturer, was reported yesterday to be negotiating with an investment banking house for the sale of new securities to refinance $18,500,000 outstanding 6 per cent debentures of 1945. This amount represents the remainder of $30,000,000 of debentures which were originally offered in May, 1930.

Goldman Sachs & Company, New York investment banking house, is reported to have taken part in the negotiations. This firm was a member of the syndicate that offered the debentures in 1930.

A syndicate headed by the Harris Trust & Savings bank, Chicago, was awarded an issue of $3,715,000 general purpose bonds of Rochester, N. Y., on a bid of 100.03 for 1.30 per cent coupons. The bonds are due serially from 1940 to 1958.

Propose to Farm Out Taxes on Fire Policy Premiums

The city council finance committee yesterday approved the farming out of a contract for collection of back taxes on fire insurance premiums. Insurance companies incorporated outside of Illinois are taxed 2 per cent on premium payments to help support the fire department. The committee's recommendation will be referred to the city council today. The proposed contract would go to Thomas & Co., Chicago auditors. The city would be required to pay a commission of one-third of the unpaid taxes which the firm collects.

Berle Tells Plan to Take Over Basic Industry.

present all the factors for an explosive situation.

"We may, of course, navigate safely through that period, leaving the final reckoning to be made at some later down turn of the business cycle," Berle conceded. But in any case, he said, the next decade probably will force a showdown.

Government Becomes Owner.

"The government can create, and does create," he said, "wealth in the form of roads, parks, public buildings. public hospitals, etc.

"Plainly these as they now stand are not sufficient to serve as the market for more than a fraction of the capital goods production in the United States.

"Briefly, the government will have to enter into the direct financing of activities now supposed to be private; and a continuance of that direct financing must mean inevitably that the government ultimately will control and own those activities.

"Put differently, if the government undertakes to create wealth by using its own credit at the rate of 4 billions or so a year, and if its work is well done, the government will be acquiring direct productive mechanisms at the rate of four billions' worth a year or thereabouts.

"Over a period of years the government gradually will come to own most of the productive plants of the United States."

Berle said frankly that he is biased in favor of public ownership of certain forms of wealth, such as the railroads, electric power and mineral resources. He said the government could mine and deliver iron ore at the Minnesota field, and conceivably it could smelt the ore into steel. He admitted that private industry would be more efficient in the specialized business of fine steel castings.

Frowns on Bank Profits.

Berle then diagnosed the private financial machinery of the country and found it sadly lacking in social outlook.

"The theory that a bank must 'make a profit' today has ceased to be valid, except in an extremely limited sense," he said. "The profit of the bank is interesting as showing that by financial standards its work has been well done. In the sense, however, that the bank is 'entitled' to a profit, as a reward for some thing or other, there seems to be no reason for its existence.

"A bank today is a mechanism for creating currency. It receives this privilege from the government; there is no more valid reason why a bank should make an unlimited profit for creating and supplying currency than there is why taxes should be farmed out to the highest bidder, and tax collectors allowed to make a profit on their collection."

What is needed, he said, is an institution to keep an even flow of capital construction and see that the country is well served. This might be accomplished either by public ownership, or by private ownership with limited dividends, he declared.

Interest Based on Social Needs.

The witness said the interest rate should be determined as much by social factors as by any desire to reap a profit. He advocated a highly flexible rate, perhaps 4 or even 5 per cent from a commercial enterprise, and as little as ⅛ of 1 per cent for a noncommercial enterprise, such as a hospital.

Berle's public or quasi-public banks would take deposits, but "such deposits should be definitely less withdrawable than ordinary commercial bank deposits, and this should be distinctly understood," he said.

For immediate adoption, Berle urged his public works finance corporation and a stop-gap expedient such as the bill introduced by Senator James M. Mead [D. N. Y.] under which the government would insure private banking loans to small businesses, on the principle of the Federal Housing administration.

Seversky Aircraft Given War Department Order

Washington, D. C., May 23.—[Special.]—The war department today announced the award of a $974,324 order for airplanes and parts to the Seversky Aircraft corporation, Farmingdale, N. Y. The company will build a new type of all metal, low wing, single seater monoplane, to be powered with Pratt and Whitney engines.

Aldrich Lashes Deficit Spree; Warns It Will Wreck Nation

New York, May 23.—[Special.]—In answer to President Roosevelt's address of last night, Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank, warned today that continued spending and unbalanced budgets will lead to financial chaos and complete internal regimentation.

Winthrop W. Aldrich.

Aldrich compared America's eventual fate, if deficit financing is continued, with the present situation in Germany and Italy.

Addressing the Bond Club of New York at the Bankers' club, he said:

"There is no question whatever that continual government spending, continually unbalanced budgets and continual deficit financing, will in any country ultimately lead to such financial chaos that complete internal regimentation will be necessary.

Sees Incentive to Conquest.

"To accomplish this regimentation self containment and economic nationalism become inevitable, and from this will follow the necessity, where the country is not sufficiently large to be economically self sustaining, of attempting to obtain necessary goods and foodstuffs by conquest."

Aldrich said that the balancing of the budget of the federal government was an absolute necessity.

"Here we have a position of extraordinary political difficulty," he continued. "Always in the past it has been the President of the United States who has been the economizer. It has been the congress that has been the spending body.

"A Hopeless Feeling."

"There is a hopeless feeling on the part of some that without presidential leadership a real retrenchment is impossible."

Aldrich urged business men throughout the country to ask their congressional representatives to curb spending.

He said that he agreed with the President that the repeal of the undistributed profits tax was not an all important factor but that he was pleased that such legislation was planned by congress.

Aldrich said he is optimistic regarding avoidance of war in Europe. People in every country oppose war, he said.

NEW DEAL PLOT TOLD BY BANKER 11 MONTHS AGO

Socialized Industry Scheme Traced.

ready being prepared. A fellow by the name of Berle is at work on what they call the 'third line of defence.' When government spending does not produce the desired results and the depression only deepens, they will be ready to wheel in a brand new scheme. This scheme, although it is not yet fully worked out, will, I am told, embrace a sensational plan for the socialization of the important industries and the government control of the capital markets."

The enormity of the scheme outlined by the speaker and the degree of conviction with which he spoke chilled the group.

That was eleven months ago. The government's spending program continued. It has continued ever since. Business—at least the socalled "consumer goods" industries—appeared to improve for several months, but lately the situation has turned for the worse.

Events Fit the Pattern.

A few days ago President Roosevelt asked the senate "monopoly" investigating committee to determine "why a large part of our vast reservoir of money and savings has remained idle in stagnant pools." On Monday in an address before the Retailers' National Forum of the American Retail federation the President declared: "Today, in order to provide customers for business, your government uses government capital to provide jobs, to prevent farm prices from collapsing, and to build up purchasing power when private capital fails to do it."

Yesterday Assistant Secretary of State A. A. Berle Jr., leading "brain truster" and that same Berle who eleven months ago was working on the socalled "third line of defense" to take up the slack when the familiar government spending-lending program should fail, sprang his scheme for altering the whole national economy and socializing not only the sources of capital but also the leading industries of the nation.

Presented as the Answer.

Berle's recommendations were openly presented as a response to President Roosevelt's previous question as to why vast amounts of private capital were idle in a nation which needed the investment of capital to bring about business recovery.

Berle yesterday testified that his revolutionary program would result in the ultimate taking over by the government of "most of the productive plants of the United States."

Because of the remarkable manner in which the breakfast table predictions of eleven months ago have been borne out by subsequent developments—particularly yesterday's disclosure of Berle's revolutionary scheme—the writer last night called the banker-forecaster by long distance telephone to apprise him of the materialization of his prediction.

"It has come about exactly as it was outlined to me," the banker said.

which the President refers are paid for by the numerous lending corporations whose wholly guaranteed obligations are not included in the direct public debt. Even considering the total of such loans in the aggregate of the direct and contingent debt, the percentage would fall far short of 'a large part' of the total debt. No appraisement of these corporations has been made. The losses are certain to be large and must be paid by direct taxation.

Figures Show His Point.

"If such loans are to be considered as recoverable, the debt today should be stated as follows:

|---|---|
| Direct debt ................ | $40,229,000,000 |
| Wholly guaranteed contingent debt of government corporations reported by the federal reserve board..... | 6,310,000,000 |
| Total ...................... | $46,539,000,000 |

"The fact is that only an inconsequential part of the direct debt is 'offset by debts owed to the government.'

"The President says the national debt is an internal debt and infers for that reason it is of little consequence. He says, 'If our children have to pay interest on it, they will pay that interest to themselves.' This is the Eccles policy of popularizing debt by minimizing its evils. When examined its utter fallaciousness is quickly apparent.

"Today the average public debt in America is $1,600 per family. How many families own $1,600 of public bonds and will draw their share of the interest of which Mr. Roosevelt speaks? The vast majority will be paying taxes to pay interest to the small number of families owning the bonds."

Baldwin Locomotive Has Sharp Upturn in Orders

New business booked by the Baldwin Locomotive Works in the first four months of 1939 amounted to $24,270,797, compared with $10,667,080 in the corresponding 1938 period, the company announced yesterday. Shipments aggregated $7,587,635, against $15,461,159.

LEADERS SHAPE DRIVE FOR FUNDS TO PUSH CHICAGO

Executives of 254 Firms Plan Personal Calls.

Plans for an immediate drive for funds which will make possible the increased activity contemplated in the "Greater Chicago" campaign of the Chicago Association of Commerce were outlined yesterday.

Joseph Magnus.

Joseph Magnus of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company presided at a lunch at the Palmer House at which executives of 254 business establishments were enlisted in a drive to make personal calls on companies that will be asked to contribute.

Program Is Outlined.

The executives who will make the calls were given the general outline of the program through which it is hoped to start the city moving forward. The program in its entirety is to be announced by Oscar G. Mayer, president of the association, at a meeting at noon tomorrow at the Stevens hotel.

Among the points stressed yesterday, which had been brought out at the "business clinics" held by the association, were:

1. Increase the treasury funds of the association of commerce to $600,000 from the present $200,000.

Propose $250,000 Advertising.

2. Carry on a $250,000 advertising campaign to tell the city's advantages.
3. Set up a department of civic affairs to consider obsolete areas, taxes, and other subjects.
4. Set up an industrial department to bring new industries to Chicago.
5. Set up a legislative department to keep an eye on legislation proposed in Washington and Springfield that will affect Chicago.
6. Set up a department to unite Chicago business in support of the city's cultural and educational activities.

ELEVATOR FIRE'S RUINS GIVING UP MUCH GOOD CORN

An unexpectedly large portion of the corn stored in the Chicago elevators which burned recently is being recovered in good condition, salvage company officials reported yesterday.

Large quantities of corn in the Calumet "C" elevator and the Rosenbaum "B" will be suitable for processing after being cleaned, the officials stated. The news came as something of a surprise to grain men, who had expected the double damage by fire and water to make most of the grain unfit even for feeding to animals.

Trade estimates placed the total quantity of corn stored in the five elevators at the time of the fire at 2,900,000 bushels. On the basis of that figure, it was said, 500,000 to 1,000,000 bushels of the corn might prove to be suitable for industrial uses. There were indications that the rest of the grain will be good only for feed.

The salvage work is being done by the Brooks Elevator company of Minneapolis. It is one of the largest such jobs ever undertaken.

RELIGHT TWO FURNACES.

American Steel and Wire company has resumed operation of one of its two blast furnaces at the Donora, Pa., plant. The furnace was closed down during the recent coal tieup.

Work on Garden.

May 23, 1939.

TENDER young onion plants are six inches high in the new family size vegetable garden at the Du Page county farm. They should be ready to pull as green onions in about a week. The sets were planted less than a month ago.

Onions started from seeds at the same time are up about two inches. These likely will be used for pickling next fall. Some may be saved for planting as sets next spring.

Included in the early plantings was part of a row of turnips, ordinarily considered a fall crop. The plan is to harvest an early crop of turnips this summer and then replant for fall harvest. Turnips grown early in the season usually are not as palatable as those that mature during the cool days of early fall. The gardener says if the first plantings turn out well he will be that much ahead and if they don't nothing will be lost but the seed and a little work.

Good Rain Aids Garden.

The garden was refreshed by a good rain Sunday afternoon. Many new plants have come through the ground since the rain and others have been growing rapidly.

Watermelons, muskmelons, cucumbers, squashes, and pumpkins are being planted today. Other plants to be set out this week include tomatoes, peppers, celery, eggplant, cauliflower, and late cabbage. Seeds of Chinese cabbage will be sown.

Authorities say that a vegetable garden probably adds more to the health and economy of a family than any similar amount of farm land. Cash value of a quarter acre garden may exceed $100 a season if the excess vegetables are canned or stored for winter use, according to estimates based on the cost of the vegetables when bought at the store.

Green and yellow vegetables and tomatoes are considered the most valuable types of vegetables for food. This is mainly because of their vitamin content. Dietitians suggest that enough green and yellow vegetables should be raised for each member of the family to have one or the other every day of the year, in addition to potatoes and one other vegetable.

Corn Plants Thriving.

Corn is coming up fast since the rain Sunday. The young plants are showing the full lengths of the rows in all the earliest planted fields. Stands are good. An extra field of corn that was not included in the planting plans is being put in this week. It is a thirteen acre field of clover that was to have been left for hay, but the stand is unsatisfactory and the men decided to plow it up and plant it in corn.

Workers started cultivating the early corn yesterday. They are going over all fields with either harrows or rotary hoes, followed by rollers.

ans identified by Republic as individual strikers and union officers.

The list of individuals was headed by John L. Lewis, chieftain of the C. I. O. Then came Philip Murray, C. I. O. vice president, and James Carey, C. I. O. secretary and president of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America.

Other officers named were S. H. Dalrymple, president of the C. I. O.'s United Rubber Workers at Akron, O.; Van A. Bittner, regional director at Chicago of the Steel Workers organizing committee; David J. McDonald, S. W. O. C. secretary-treasurer; Clinton S. Golden, S. W. O. C. regional director; Harold J. Ruttenberg, S. W. O. C. research director, and Vincent Sweeney, S. W. O. C. publicity representative.

C. I. O. Seeks Back Pay.

The C. I. O. last week filed with the National Labor Relations board wage claims of about $7,500,000 against Republic. The labor organization claimed the amount was due as back pay from the time the NLRB ordered in 1938 the reinstatement of about 5,000 strikers as operations permitted.

Republic appealed the NLRB order and arguments have been set for hearing in August in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia.

LIFE SAVERS.

Investors' Guide: Will you please describe the Life Savers company? I would like to know its sales volume and profits in recent years. Is its stock speculative? Where is it listed?—A. C. W.

Answer: The corporation makes candies under the trade name "Life Savers," which are in mint form and of various flavors, "Pine Brothers Glycerin Tablets," and "Orasol," an antiseptic mouth tablet. A Canadian subsidiary manufactures and distrubtes Beech Nut gum in that country.

Sales and net income dropped off slightly during 1938 after reaching a five year peak in the preceding year. For the first quarter of 1939, however, the company reported an improved showing, with net income up to $220,706, or 64 cents a share, against net of $194,558, or 57 cents a share, in the corresponding period a year ago. Here's the earnings record since 1933:

| | Sales. | Net inc. | Inc. per shr. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1938 | $4,050,598 | $ 966,261 | $2.81 |
| 1937 | 4,079,302 | 1,015,906 | 2.95 |
| 1936 | 3,626,213 | 844,134 | 2.46 |
| 1935 | 3,330,806 | 814,431 | 2.34 |

| 1933 | 2,902,761 | 754,233 | 2.15 |

Life Savers has 343,799 shares of $5 par capital stock outstanding. The stock, listed on the New York Stock exchange, is considered medium grade.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

Live costs of top grades of hogs yesterday dropped below the $7.00 line for the first time in Chicago since July 25, 1934. On that date packers paid a total of $6.95 for top grades, but that price included the $2.25 processing tax which was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court in January, 1936. Yesterday's top price was $6.95, off 15 cents for the day and $1.55 under the 1939 peak in February.

Heavy selling of hogs by farmers in order to raise money for payment of taxes before the June 1 deadline brought 22,000 hogs into the stockyards, direct shipments included, the largest receipts for any day since Jan. 26.

Recent severe slashing of cattle prices resulted in a smaller run of stock on the market yesterday and prices were steady to 15 cents higher. Demand for lambs was lacking and prices drifted lower in one of the slowest sessions of the year.

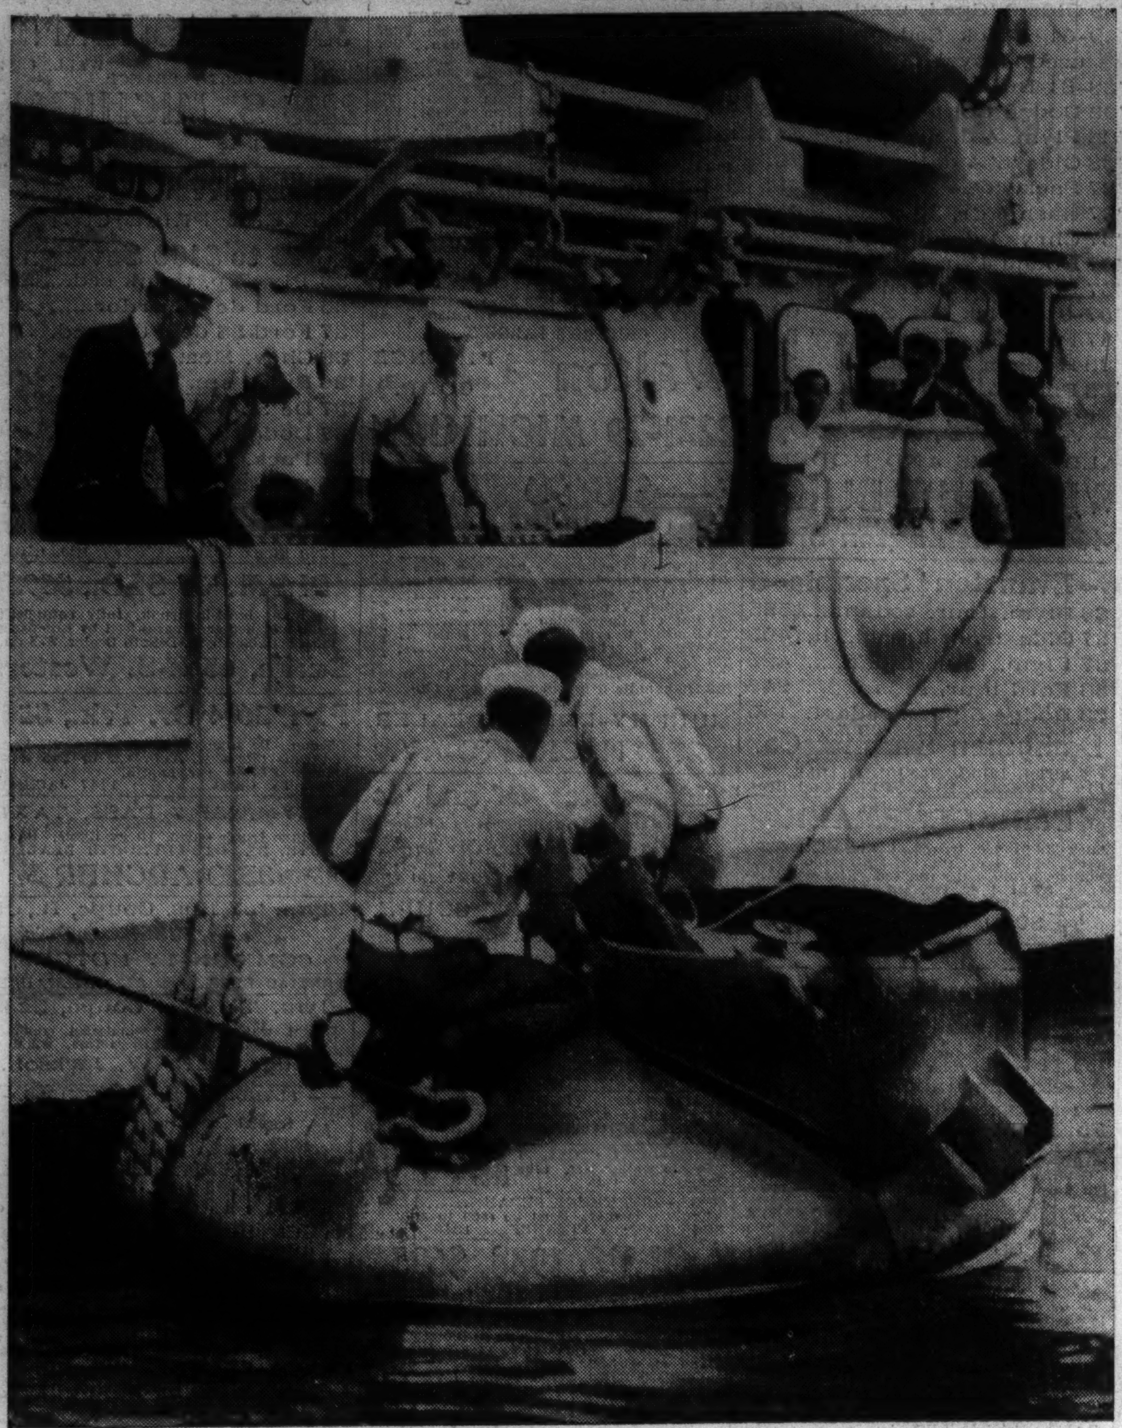
Navy Ready for Attempt to Rescue 59 Men Trapped in Submarine—Fear Felt for Lives of Some



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Navy diving bell of type to be used in attempt to rescue 59 men from Submarine Squalus off New Hampshire coast if efforts to refloat vessel are unsuccessful.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

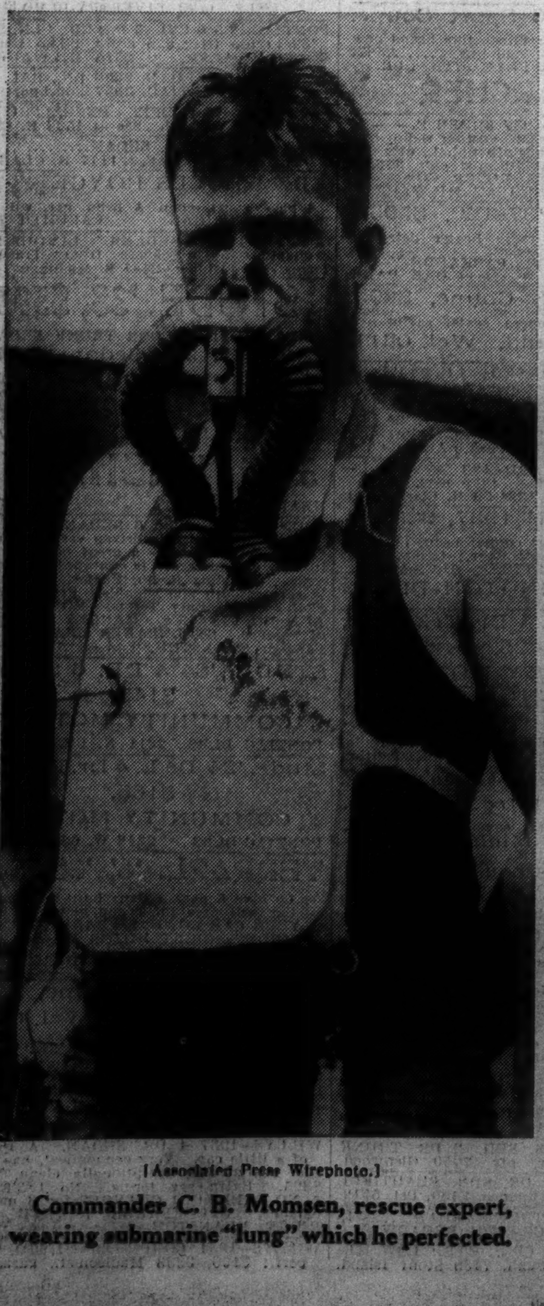
Plan for operation of navy's new 9-ton motorized diving bell which is capable of carrying eight men at a time from a sunken submarine. This method may be used on the Squalus as illustrated in inset (A). The bell consists of an upper chamber for operator and rescued, and a lower chamber whose hatch connects with submarine hatch. Around the edge of the bell's bottom is a rubber jacket which fits over the submarine's hatch.



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Diagram of a submarine showing the principal compartments and features of construction. The Squalus, which sank yesterday, was a new vessel and incorporated features which have not been made public. The commander of the Squalus reported that the aft compartments of his vessel were flooded.
